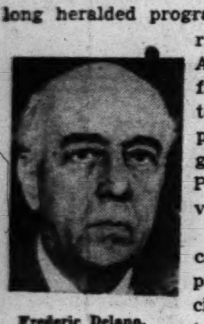
F. D. R. OFFERS BIRTH TO DEATH SCHEME OF LIFE

Uncle's Post-War Plan Released.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The long heralded program for post-war regulation of American life from the cradle to the grave was presented to congress today by President Roosevelt.



Frederic Delano.

The program calls for vast expansion of the social security system and orderly transition of American economy from a war to a peace time footing. It was contained in two separate reports prepared by the national resources planning board.

The board, a pet White House agency, headed by the President's uncle, Frederic Delano, has been studying expansion of social security and post-war planning for months. The house recently voted to kill the unit by withholding its funds as a war time economy move.

Fashioned on British Plan.

The reports, which contemplate sweeping social reforms on the pattern recommended by the Beveridge commission in Great Britain, were transmitted by the President in a special message to congress.

The Beveridge commission, headed by William Beveridge, released last Dec. 2 a revolutionary plan which provided for state control of every British subject from birth to death.

In releasing an American version of such a plan to the country, Mr. Roosevelt, in his message to congress, said:

"We can all agree on our objectives and in our common determination that work, fair pay and social security after the war is won must be firmly established for the people of the United States of America."

Asks "Full Consideration."

Mr. Roosevelt said it was his "earnest hope" that the congress would give "full consideration" this session to the problems pointed out in the two reports.

"We must not return to inequities, insecurity, and fears of the past, but ought to move forward toward the promise of the future," he said.

Thruout the capital the release of the two reports by the President was accepted as a definite bid for a fourth term. The reports were released within a week of the raising of discussion of the fourth term issue by Frank Walker, postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Report Dated Last September.

The report on social security expansion, entitled "after the war—toward security," was dated September, 1942. It has long been known that the President had the 62 page booklet on his desk since last December and it was felt that he was holding it for release at what he considered an opportune time.

The recommendations on transition of economy from war to peace consisted of 10 double column printed pages. These were not dated so that it was not readily apparent how long they had been held by the White House before release.

Four Points Emphasized.

The social security program embraces development of programs for security and public aid for protection against fear of old age, dependency, sickness, unemployment, and accident. Four main points were emphasized in the report:

"First, that our economy must provide work for all who are able and willing to work. Included in this is a special responsibility for an adequate youth program which should be an integral part of any governmental undertaking to establish security. This will be peculiarly true in the post-war period.

Public Assistance Program.

"Second, that for great numbers whose work is interrupted, the social insurances must carry much of the load of providing adequate income.

"Third, that where the insurances or work policies fail to take care of an interruption in income, adequate guarantees of minimum aid and assistance must be given both to in-

U-BOAT VICTIMS LASSO A SHARK, SNARE 23 BIRDS

2 Die at Sea After 66 and 77 Days.

Miami, Fla., March 10 (AP).—The story of three men who survived 83 days on a life raft was told here by a United States navy gunner who never gave up hope "because I knew God was with me all the way."

Daily prayers were answered, said 20 year old Seaman Basil D. Izzi of South Barre, Mass., by occasional rain storms which provided water and by the birds and fish which were caught for food.

Altho the navy has kept no official accounts of the number of days sailors or aviators have been adrift on life rafts during the war, navy officers expressed belief the 83 days of Izzi and his companions was a record.

Izzi, who lost 58 pounds during the ordeal, and two Dutch merchant seamen were picked up by an American warship Jan. 24 about 2,200 miles from the spot where their allied freighter was torpedoed Nov. 2, 1942, off the coast of South America.

2 Others Die at Sea.

Two others, Ensign James Maddox of Lafayette, Ind., and Seaman George Beasley, both of the United States navy, died before the raft was found. Their bodies were dropped into the sea while Izzi and the Dutchmen mumbled prayers.

Maddox was commander of the gun crew on the vessel and Izzi was one of the gunners. Beasley was gunner on a ship which had been torpedoed earlier. Of the 299 aboard, 135 were feared lost.

Two torpedoes struck the ship and she sank rapidly.

Hangs on Wreckage 2 Days.

"I jumped overboard," Izzi related. "For two days and nights I stayed afloat by holding to wreckage. Finally I sighted a raft with four men on it. They pulled me aboard."

On the raft with Maddox and the others were about 10 gallons of water, nine cans of milk, a box of chocolate, and a few dozen biscuits.

"The food lasted about 16 days altho our water supply lasted until the 25th day," Izzi said.

Lassoed a Fish.

"With the food gone, we started catching sharks, little fish, and birds. We got the first shark, about four feet long, with a lasso. The fish swam thru the noose and we caught it by the tail.

"The birds — I think we caught about 23 of them—alighted on the raft because the sea was too rough for them to come down in the water.

"We prayed all day on Sundays," Izzi said, adding that on other days they prayed each evening.

Convoy Is Sighted.

After three weeks Beasley became ill but lasted until the 66th day. Maddox died on the 77th day, after the little company had been out of water supplies for five days.

"The next night it rained hard and we had water again, and we caught a big bird," Izzy recalled.

They saw an airplane the following day. On Jan. 24, they sighted a convoy and signaled one of the escorting vessels.

Izzi, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Izzi, has been transferred to the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md.

FOUR SAVED IN JUNGLE

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 28 [Delayed] — (AP). — The rescue of four United States flyers from the Amazon jungles after one of them, taking a million to one chance, had drifted down the turbulent Caqueta river on a flimsy raft to summon help, was disclosed today.

The man who went down the river was Pvt. A. C. McDavid, a Texan, who "won" the toss of a coin and the dubious privilege of boarding the raft. His success is regarded as little short of miraculous, for crocodiles and numerous other terrors of the jungles beset him and night overtook him before he sighted the lights of a settlement.

2 Officers, Sergeant with Him.

The men were flying in an amphibian plane from Bogota to a point in the Amazon basin when they were forced down in the Caqueta, a tributary of the Amazon. At the place where their plane sank the waters are

CUT EXPECTED TODAY IN POINT VALUES FOR DRIED BEANS AND PEAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—A reduction in point values of dried beans, dried peas, and lentils probably will be announced tomorrow by the office of price administration, informed officials said tonight.

The change, which will be the first revision in point values since rationing of canned and processed foods started March 1, will cut these foods from eight points a pound to six points or possibly lower, officials said.

It was said that supplies of these products were more plentiful than previous estimates had indicated.

OPA officials also are considering changes in point values of some canned vegetable products and fruit juices to iron out inequities, it was learned.

Canning officials have urged, for example, that the value of tomato paste, which now can be bought for the same number of points per pound as canned tomatoes, be raised because the paste is a concentrate with a food value about three times as great as an equal weight of tomatoes.

Meanwhile, Paul M. O'Leary, in charge of OPA rationing, announced that between 80 million and 100 million extra cans of foodstuffs were declared in the recent nation-wide rationing registration.

REPORT 8 ALLIED SHIPS SUNK OFF SOUTH AMERICA

New York, March 10 (AP).—Aneta, Netherlands news agency, reported today in a dispatch from Paramaribo, Surinam, that "several allied ships—probably eight—have been sunk by enemy action near the coast of French Guiana." News of the sinkings was disclosed when 30 survivors were landed at Paramaribo this morning, it said.

66 Saved from U. S. Ships.

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—Sixty-six survivors of a torpedoed United States freighter have landed at a British port, the United States shipping board announced today. Nine of the crew are missing.

[A special German communique yesterday said that in the last five days 23 vessels totaling 134,000 tons had been sunk by German submarines in actions ranging from the North Atlantic to the Cape of Good Hope. Six other ships were reported torpedoed.]

No Help Left to Answer Man Power Questionnaire

Newark, N. J., March 10 (AP).—Acting County Auditor Henry Peer received a long federal government questionnaire for listing the county's man power. He took it before the Essex county board of freeholders, which authorized him to inform the federal authorities it was impossible to fill out the questionnaire because of man power shortage.

New Congress Members Are F. D. R. Guests

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Freshmen legislators drank beer or soft drinks and chatted with President Roosevelt at the White House tonight at a gathering which was generally interpreted as a conciliatory gesture from the administration toward congress.

The 117 new house and senate members—and apparently every one of them showed up—heard no formal speeches and received no special form of entertainment, but they did get an opportunity to shake hands with the President and to talk with him briefly.

"Purely social," was the way Speaker Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] and House Majority Leader John W. McCormack [D., Mass.] described the affair.

Threw No Bricks—Wallace.

"It was just a nice party—everything sweetness," Vice President Wallace remarked on the way out. "Nobody threw any bricks."

For many of the new members it was their first visit to the White House, and some of them did a bit of sightseeing in the famous East room.

The party was in the state dining room, with the legislators seated at small tables covered with white table cloths. They had their choice of beer, soft drink, cheese and crackers, and cigars and cigarets.

In groups of 20 or 30, Rayburn shuttled them up to President Roosevelt for a few moments of personal conversation. White House officials said Democrats and Republicans alike were in the groups.

Rayburn said he thanked the President for a grand evening. He added:

President Just Himself.

"Everybody enjoyed it hugely. Everybody had a grand time and the President was himself. All were charmed to meet and greet the President and see him in his home, just being natural."

He said the President had explained that he was so busy now in war time with various reports and conferences with his chiefs of staff and other key advisers that it was no longer possible to receive 12 or 15 visitors a day as in former years and asked that the legislators understand this if they are delayed for a few days when they seek appointments with him on important matters.

Italians Name Gen. Rossi Deputy Chief of Staff

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio last night quoted Rome dispatches as saying a newly created post of deputy chief of the general staff of the Italian armed forces had been assigned to Gen. Francesco Rossi, 58 year old chief of the Italian army ordnance department. Rossi has been a member of the general staff since 1921, said the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

ANY FLOWERS IN YOUR LUGGAGE, LADY, THEN YOU'RE UNDER ARREST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Members of parliament continued sniping today at the government order forbidding transportation of flowers by rail. It was disclosed, however, that in the last pre-war year 400 railway cars were required to bring cut flowers to London.

P. J. Noel-Baker, parliamentary secretary for the ministry of war transport, asked whether it was intended to search passengers' luggage to ascertain if it contained flowers, said no such instructions had been given, but that if railway employés suspect that blooms are being carried they "are expected to take steps to prevent a breach of order."

One member of parliament, who said plenty of flowers were available every day in Covent Garden, questioned whether the motor transport increase was not negating the railroad restriction. Noel-Baker replied that the prohibition was effecting transport economies.

NAZIS BUILD NEW 6 ENGINE PLANE; CARRIES 130 MEN

LONDON, March 11 [Thursday] (AP).—The Germans are producing a new six engine troop transport plane capable of carrying 130 men, it was disclosed today. It is called the power glider ME-323 and is being manufactured by the Messerschmitt company.

The ME-323 is a monoplane equipped with six French Rhome-Rhone 14-M radial engines arranged abreast along the leading edge of the wing. Each engine turns up 500 to 800 horse power at 10,000 feet. Built into the bottom of the nose is a multi-wheeled undercarriage for aiding in landing on rough terrain.

It is the second six-engined plane recently introduced into the German air force. The first was the Blohm and Voss 222 flying boat, some of which have been shot down while ferrying troops and freight to North Africa.

Hint at Raids on U. S.

New York, March 10 (AP).—Expanding on recent vague German threats of reprisal raids on America, the Rome radio tonight described at length the new German Heinkel-177 bombers, which it said "can carry more than a six ton cargo and are able, without any difficulty, to reach New York, bomb the city and return to their bases." The Italian announcer said the new German planes were being produced "on a large scale."

Canada Finds Plenty of Meat, Oil, and Shoes

BY ROY GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Canada is a land of milk and honey overflowing with bacon, canned goods, new bicycle tires, five course dinners, mountains of shoes and most of the luxuries denied to Americans under the rationing system, a tour in that country from Montreal to Toronto discloses.

In Canada you can get all the oil you need to heat your home providing it is not a multiple flat building and houses no commercial enterprise such as a barber shop or store. You don't need coupons for the oil. All you require is a permit.

You can even buy a brand new automobile providing it is not in what is known as the government pool.

Canadian stores are loaded with the finest cuts of meat. Opened refrigerator doors in such stores reveal long rows of juicy carcasses. You can buy all the meat you want—steaks, pork chops, lamb or beef. You also can buy mechanical ice boxes, typewriters, sewing machines, rifles, shotguns, gas and electric stoves, and all the ammunition you need.

Bacon Business Booms.

One Montreal store [Eaton's] does such a big bacon business that it uses a slicing machine equipped with a four foot conveyor belt to take care of the demand.

This same store displays signs in both French and English, asking customers to buy a minimum of fresh pork products.

But almost underneath the sign, the show case is loaded contradictorily with ham, pork chops, and bacon slabs.

Another sign contains an enlarged reproduction of a letter dated Sept. 17, 1942, signed by A. M. Shaw, director of marketing service of the Canadian department of agriculture, in which customers are requested to forego fresh pork, bacon, and ham purchases "during the next six weeks" to enable Canada to fulfill her commitments of sending 600 million pounds of bacon to Britain during the third year of the war.

A Heartening Sight!

A customer almost knocked the sign down while reaching for her purchase consisting of three pounds of pork sausage, a package of bacon and a small pork butt which she bought while this correspondent was standing next to her viewing the luscious display.

I told a floor walker in the food department of this same store that it was a heartening thing to see such plenty in contrast with the lean days that had come upon my fellow countrymen who were finding it increasingly difficult to obtain a Sunday roast just across the line.

"Yes," he said, "we're not so bad off. But of course we don't get the best cuts any more. We don't get any blue or red brands [red is the best grade and blue the second best under the Canadian meat grading system]. Come and I'll show you."

Not Gremlins' Work.

He took me over to the meat counter and there staring both of us in the face was a generous display of

MARCEL DEAT, FRENCH NAZI LEADER, FIRED ON BY A GUERRILLA

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—The German radio reported tonight that a machine gunner had attempted in vain to assassinate the pro-Nazi French leader, Marcel Deat, last night.

Marcel Deat.

The Paris radio previously had reported that a gunman had fired several shots at Deat while he was visiting at Nevers with his wife, but that neither had been hit.

A policeman with Deat was reported seriously injured. Paris reports said the assault had become known there only this afternoon "as persons who performed it had previously cut all telegraph and telephone wires."

The German version, placing the locale at the town of Arbouse, said it was "at first assumed to have been a pistol plot, but it was established later that the assassin used a machine gun, which was found near by."

HOUSE VOTES FOR EXTENSION OF LEND-LEASE

Senate Committee Urges Curbs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Extension of lend-lease for another year was approved by the house today by a vote of 470 to 6.

The legislation now goes to the senate for final congressional action. The senate foreign relations committee reported out the measure this afternoon and it is scheduled for floor consideration tomorrow, the anniversary of the day on which it was originally enacted two years ago.

Restrictions Stipulated.

Senate committee action was unanimous, but in concession to senators who are insisting that the program must be confined to the limits of war time emergency the report stipulated:

"The committee believes that there is no authority in the lend-lease act to warrant any general post-war commitments or post-war policies in agreements made under the terms of the lend-lease act."

Debate in the house lagged noticeably as the last of the three days alloted for consideration by that chamber drew to a close. The only controversy arose over an amendment which would have required congressional ratification of final benefit settlements and all master war aid agreements between the United States and the allies made after June 30, of this year.

Fears Treaties Involved.

This proposal, introduced by Rep. John M. Vorys [R., O.] was rejected on a teller vote, 178 to 118, despite bitter complaints that the house leaders were demanding passage of the legislation "without dotting an I or crossing a T."

"It is being jammed down our throats," asserted Rep. Frank B. Keefe [R., Wis.].

Vorys declared that some of the agreements might carry the weight of treaties and vitally affect post-war planning. Therefore, he insisted, members of congress have a right to pass upon them.

"It is with the hope that we can take steps now to set up the machinery to prevent the ghastly battles between congress and the executive branch that followed the Versailles treaty that I urge this house to take this step today," he asserted.

Minority Leader Is Opposed.

Majority and minority leaders on the foreign affairs committee joined in opposing the amendment, however, saying that it would have adverse effects upon dealings between this country and the allies and might affect agreements already made or being negotiated.

"Such an amendment would cause our allies to doubt whether congress and the administration are together on the prosecution of the war," warned Rep. Luther Johnson [D., Tex.]

Johnson urged that the measure be passed without change.

"This is not the Bible or the holy writ we're enacting here," replied Rep. Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.]. "It's simply a bill like any other bill and if we desire to insert a clause here or there, that's what we're here for."

BLACK-OUT RULES IN U. S. BROKEN BY BRITAIN'S WAAFS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Capt. H. H. Balfour, undersecretary for air, today told the house of commons that two WAAFs [members of the women's auxiliary air force] attached to the British embassy in Washington, D. C., had violated local black-out orders there. He said the breach was unintentional, but strict instructions were issued to the Washington delegation emphasizing the necessity of rigid observance of black-out regulations.

Britain's WRENs—women royal navy auxiliaries—who have been stationed at shore bases, will serve afloat "if and when it is found practicable," Capt. R. A. Pilkington, civil lord of the admiralty, informed commons. He said:

"There is no objection by the admiralty to the WRENs serving aboard ship. If you gave them half a chance they would sail a battleship. The real objection is the difficulty of accommodations aboard."

COMMITTEE O.K.'S PAY DEDUCTIONS FOR 1942 TAXES

House Group Passes Up Pay-as-You-Go.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Amid derisive comments and warnings of revolt when the matter reaches the floor, the house ways and means committee today virtually completed work on a new tax collection program.

Rep. Harold Knutson.

The plan provides for a 20 per cent withholding tax for wage and salary earners, starting July 1, to pay off last year's tax debt, and monthly payments for other tax payers, beginning next year, also to pay off the prior year's liabilities.

Thus little remains, in the committee version, of the original proposition for a pay-as-you-go system. It was the widespread demand for an up to date collection plan which caused the committee to begin its work six weeks ago.

Labors Bring Forth Mouse.

"The mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse," declared Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], a ranking minority member of the group.

"It is obvious that the house will have to take the matter into its own hands if tax payments are to be made current," Knutson asserted. "The plan adopted by the committee will be a great disappointment to taxpayers, who have been urging that personal income tax payments be placed on a current, pay as you earn basis.

"All the committee has done is continue the present archaic system of collecting the income tax the year after the income tax is earned. No taxpayers are on a current basis. They will continue to be a year or more in debt for their income tax.'

G. O. P. Plans Action.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican leader, announced that house Republicans will meet Monday seeking to put the party's representatives behind the Ruml plan to skip an income tax year in arriving at a current payment basis.

Martin predicted "an overwhelming majority" of Republicans will fight it on the house floor and battle for the Ruml plan, as modified and embraced in a bill by Rep. Frank Carlson [R., Kas.].

Under the committee version, taxpayers will file their returns and pay at least their first quarterly instalment as usual next week. They will also pay the second instalment on June 15. Then, beginning July 1, a 20 per cent pay roll tax on wages and salaries, after exemptions, will be applied against pay envelopes to pay off the last half of the 1942 liabilities.

This amount covers the normal and first surtax brackets and that part of the present victory tax which is retained by the government. The exemptions are the same basic ones allowed in existing law plus 10 per cent for other deductions such as charity contributions, interest payments, etc. The normal and first surtax brackets cover those making up to $2,000 per year taxable income.

Overpayments for 1943.

Wage and salary earners above the normal and first surtax brackets would continue to make the Sept. 15 and Dec. 15 quarterly payments, less the amount which had already been withheld at the source.

Those whose tax bills are below the amounts withheld, that is, who make less than $2,000 net taxable income, would have the extra amount applied to their 1943 tax liability. The extent of these overpayments would represent their progress toward catching up with their obligations or their progress toward achieving current payments, it was explained.

In the wage and salary class there are also about 4 million who are making a taxable income for the first time this year, therefore do not have any liability for last year. The committee took cognizance of their status providing that the money checked off their pay in the last half of this year will apply against the 1943 taxes so that at the end of the year they will be 50 per cent current in meeting their obligations.

It appeared that this group alone will be the only one which will even approach a current payment basis thru the committee's proposal.

All other taxpaying categories on whom a withholding tax cannot be applied would pay their last two quarterly instalments as usual this year. This group includes farmers, independent business men, professional men, and others who are self-employed. Next year, under the plan, they will be permitted to pay on a monthly basis if they do not pay their entire tax on the date they file their returns.

Plan Earlier Filing.

The committee also instructed its tax advisers to work out a plan for advancing the filing date ahead of the present one of March 15 in order to speed up the tax collection procedure. It also was disclosed that the group will consider some form of incentive—probably thru a system of discounts—to encourage as many taxpayers as possible to double up their payments and thus get on a current basis voluntarily. This was made the next order of business at the meeting Friday.

Under the Ruml plan, no doubling up would be necessary since the entire 1942 liability would be written off the books and revenue collected this year on this year's taxes would replace the anticipated yield from last year.

EXPLAINS TAX DUE ON GAINS IN SALE OF INVESTMENT

Expert Shows Amount of Deductions.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Those who have not yet made out the income tax returns which the government demands, with remittances, by March 15 have slight hopes of getting the help of competent government agents, unless they are willing to undergo the hardship of waiting for hours in line.

Officials of the bureau of internal revenue have suggested that taxpayers who can do so should make out their own forms and, where possible, pay by check or money order. The officials' task has been complicated by the fact that there are about a million new income taxpayers in the Chicago area this year and also because many of the eligibles have been waiting till late in the vain expectation that congress will soften the tax rates.

Net Gain Is Explained.

It is to help the taxpayer, struggling at home and pressed for time, that THE TRIBUNE is running this series of articles and sample forms made out by Matt E. Lorenz, information expert for the revenue bureau. Today's analysis discusses the back pages of the return of a mythical Paul Roberts and his wife. The first page was reproduced yesterday with an explanation of the taxable status of annuity income and that derived from government securities.

One of the items of income for the Roberts couple was $243.50 reported as a net gain from the sale or exchange of capital assets, in this case the sale of a vacant lot which Roberts purchased in 1935 as an investment or speculation. It was sold last August.

The sale price was $1,800 and the price paid by Roberts was $1,200, leaving a gross profit of $600. There was, however, a certain amount of expense connected with the sale and the holding of the property and this was figured at $113, leaving the profit at $487.

Not all of this is taxable. Since the property was held more than six months the taxable portion is one-half the whole, or $243.50. All would have been taxable had the period of the Roberts ownership been less than six months.

The whole history of the transaction, in brief, is contained on one line of the return.

Another item shows the name and address of the trust company from which the couple derives fiduciary income, which is a term meaning the dollars come from a trust.

16 Per Cent Over $2,000.

Reporting contributions, the couple named a church, a community fund, and anti-tuberculosis fund as recipients. They paid $163.40 interest on a home mortgage. Their tax deductions included levies on realty and personal property. They deducted $46 for sales taxes and $6.40 for amusement taxes. The latter is permissible for reasonable amounts.

The Robertses had, when it was all figured up, a surtax net income of $2,783.70. On the first $2,000 the tax is 13 per cent, or $260. The remaining $783.70 must be paid for at the rate of 16 per cent; the amount is $125.39. Adding all surtax to the normal tax of $142.42, the Robertses' whole tax is $527.81.

Inexperienced taxpayers should read the instruction sheets issued by the government. Many of the answers to puzzling problems may be found there. For taxpayers with gross incomes of less than $3,000 in 1942, derived wholly from salaries and wages, dividends, interest, and annuities, the special form 1040A may be used. To use it the taxpayer needs to know little more than the total amount of his or her income; the figuring is kept to a minimum.

HIGH COURT ENDS CREDITOR'S FIGHT TO JAIL RAKLIOS

The Appellate court yesterday apparently put an end to the long fight of a creditor to jail John Raklios, former millionaire restaurant owner, for failure to satisfy in full a $2,500 judgment.

The judgment was obtained by Sam Ingalls, a tavern owner, and Raklios paid only $500. In 1939 Ingalls succeeded in having Raklios jailed for three days, but Raklios was freed when the malice clause in the bill was found to be faulty.

For several years the case went the rounds of the Municipal, Appellate, and Supreme courts, then back again to the Appellate court. In its opinion yesterday that court held the judgment did not specifically find that malice was intended by Raklios and that the judgment cannot be amended at this late date.

INCOME TAX OFFICE PREPARED TO HANDLE LAST MINUTE RUSH

Daniel J. Conerty, chief deputy in the income tax division of the collector of internal revenue office, said yesterday that the office is prepared for a last minute rush of taxpayers' returns as the March 15 income tax deadline nears. He said that only 150,000 persons have been assisted in filling out returns so far this year; that 250,000 persons in this area were assisted last year, and that the broadened tax base will make another 800,000 persons liable to file returns in the Chicago area this year.

The office has 1,400 employés, about 1,000 of them helping taxpayers fill out returns. Mail to the collector's office hit a new high yesterday of 100,000 pieces, most of which are handled by a night shift crew.

Daniel Horgan, assistant to Collector Carter H. Harrison, said that only six persons had asked for extension of time to make their first income tax payments in spite of the fact that such relief was offered recently to persons who can prove actual need for such extensions. Three of these persons, he said, were unemployed.

U. S. PAY ROLLER ARMY REPORTED NEAR 3 MILLIONS

Job Standards Slashed, Witness Declares.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The house civil service committee heard these declarations today at the opening of its long awaited investigation of charges of waste, pay roll padding, and inefficiency in government agencies:

1. Federal civilian pay rolls skyrocketed from 1,014,000 employés June 30, 1940, to 2,810,951 Dec. 31, 1942.

2. There is no government power, other than that of budgetary limitation, to prevent federal agencies from overstaffing.

3. The civil service commission can determine various agencies' man power, needs, but has no power to set limits.

4. If the commission had such powers and exercised them, its restrictions would be used as alibis by agencies which come under fire for inefficiency.

Report Standards Drop.

5. The commission has lowered its requirements for employment and has rushed inadequately qualified workers to jobs to escape being "blasted" publicly.

6. Government agencies are expanding beyond their authority.

7. The commission daily is unable to supply the vast number of workers demanded by agencies.

The declarations were made in testimony by Arthus S. Flemming, member of the civil service commission. His data was supplemented by assertions from members of the committee itself.

Flemming told Chairman Robert Ramspeck [D., Ga.] and the committee members that the largest increase in civilian personnel has been in the army and navy, but that all other agencies were swelled by 31 per cent in the period of his report, which covered the June 30, 1940-Dec. 31, 1942 period.

Increase Is 177 Pct.

The increase of all agencies, he said, was 177 per cent. He gave these other statistics:

War department civilian employés increased 815 per cent, from 137,318 to 1,257,094. The navy departmen's increase was 374 per cent, from 117,981 to 559,590. The increase of all other federal agencies was from 758,818 to 994,267.

He offered comparisons with civilian work in World War I. Six arsenals operated by the ordnance department employed 35,781 civilians in World War I., he said, as compared with 87,744 in the same arsenals last Jan. 31. And modern war, he said, has brought far greater increases in some branches. The chemical warfare service, which employed 500 civilians in World War I., had 18,000 civilians when the last report was made.

In response to questions by Rep. Clarence E. Kilburn [R., N. Y.], Flemming explained that the commission conducts examinations and supplies job candidates, but that agency heads do the hiring.

Holds Curb Power Lacking.

"If the agency asks for 1,000 employés," said Kilburn, "you supply them. But you don't ask if the agency needs them, do you?"

"No," Flemming answered, explaining that there is nothing but budgetary limitation to halt agencies' hiring.

Kilburn asked about determining the agency's need and furnishing only workers found essential.

"That would provide the agencies with an alibi," Flemming explained. "If we tell them they can get along with half and they fail to get their work done, they can say it is our fault."

He said the commission places 60,000 persons in jobs in a normal peace time year, but that it had placed 247,000 in January alone this year.

DEALER'S TRUCKS SEIZED BY WPB AMID BIG FANFARE

Claim He Let 11 Rust; Now He Must Take Loss.

The war production board, heralded by a fanfare of publicity, cracked down yesterday on a Chicago automobile dealer, seizing 11 of his new, 1942 model, 1½ ton trucks, after charging that he had allowed them to deteriorate thru neglect, in violation of a WPB directive issued last Dec. 31.

The cast of characters of the production, enacted before a large audience of reporters and photographers in the B. & W. Motor company salesrooms at 827 West 35th street, included Edward P. Campbell, president and manager of the firm, and five assorted government officials, who descended upon him in a body.

WPB Aid Is "Public Defender."

In the government's cast were Harry H. Grimm, regional chief of WPB's automotive branch; J. A. Hertel, his assistant; Deputy United States Marshal Edward J. Sullivan; E. B. Berndtson, attorney for the Defense Supplies corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Earl B. Harvey, representative of WPB's redistribution section, who played the rôle of "public defender," saying he was trying to look out for the truck company official's interests and see that he got a "fair deal."

The publicity flourish came from the office of war information, which informed reporters and photographers that a "big story" would break in Campbell's place of business at 9 a. m. yesterday.

Charge Trucks Were Rusting.

It was explained that WPB investigators had found nine of Campbell's trucks, which are new chassis without bodies, stored in a garage at 3356 Parnell avenue, and two others in his 35th street salesroom. The investigators said they found the trucks rusting, and still standing on their tires, with batteries ruined and windshield wipers deteriorating.

The WPB conservation directive required all dealers owning new trucks to take 18 conservation measures, including removal of batteries, greasing of all parts that might rust, jacking trucks up off the floor, removing windshield wipers, and "blocking" the clutch.

New trucks are in what is known as "deep freeze." They cannot be sold without WPB priorities, and they are ordered conserved as vital war material.

Cites Shortage of Mechanics.

Campbell replied that he had been in the truck business since 1931, was now maintaining day and night service for trucks hauling war materials and was short of mechanics. He said that the motors of his trucks had been filled with rustproof oil at 78 cents per gallon, and the batteries removed in most instances, except where the trucks had to be moved.

Grimm and Hertel charged that Campbell had "flagrantly ignored" the order, permitting essential war materials to go to ruin. They said his was the only such case among 1,800 auto dealers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa.

Harvey, saying he was acting as "referee," stepped into the arguments frequently. He is a former salesman of automatic fountain pens and pencils, while Grimm and Hertel are former automobile salesmen.

Washington Delays "Show."

About noon, Harvey said he would have to call his superior, William McCaw, chief of the requisition section, redistribution division, WPB, in Washington, to see what he thought. McCaw said he was busy, and would call back.

The conference stalled for nearly three hours, when McCaw finally advised Harvey by long distance that Campbell had violated WPB regulations and would either have to sell his trucks to the Defense Supplies corporation at cost, or suffer having them "requisitioned" by WPB.

Campbell said he wouldn't sell. So the WPB officials ruled that his trucks be requisitioned. They will be hauled to a garage at 30 East Lake street, dismantled and appraised for repairs to the damage allegedly caused by neglect.

Campbell will receive the price he paid for the trucks, less the cost of repairs. He said he had been offered $350 above cost price for each vehicle. The WPB values all 11 trucks at $10,000, it was stated.

STORY OF 3 MEN RESCUED AFTER 83 DAYS ON RAFT

Rain, Birds and Fish Keep Them Alive.

so swift that native swimmers avoid the river.

McDavid's companions were Lieutenants W. S. Briggs and N. W. Mann and Sergt. E. M. Ondrej, also a Texan. McDavid had no time to don a lifebelt and was soon in difficulties. Briggs had a gashed arm and a face wound but gave his belt to McDavid.

For two hours the men battled the current before they reached an island as crocodiles began to close in on them. Briggs also was attacked, as they neared land, by a school of "caribes," tiny fish which become enranged at the sight of blood and are so vicious they will devour a man in a short time. Briggs was forced to keep his wounded arm out of the water because snapping fish attacked it.

With their shoes and most of their clothes gone, the men got ashore. Lt. Mann, like Briggs, had been injured in the landing. Among the four, they had one cigaret lighter, a penknife, and a few cigarets in a waterproof bag.

They were in a vast jungle, where there was slight hope of being spotted from the air or reached by land. They cut vines, gathered branches together and constructed a raft and placed two of the life jackets on top to give it greater buoyancy.

Saved by Colombia Soldiers.

The coin was tossed and McDavid started out about 4 p. m. The raft turned madly in whirlpools, scraped rocks, slowed in still water, tilted when one of the life belts was carried away, but still went on. A crocodile tried to nose it over. McDavid held on.

Darkness came and the raft still drifted. Around 11 o'clock he saw a light on the right bank and began yelling. Dogs started to bark.

"Just as I was losing hope," McDavid said, "a canoe manned by Colombian army officers and men came along and picked me up. I learned that they were from the garrison of La Pedrera, where I had first seen the light."

McDavid, who speaks no Spanish, conveyed to the men the plight of the others. They gave him food and dry clothing and soon an expedition started upstream. After many hours they reached the island.

ADMITS DESERTING FROM ARMY.

Lawrence Webb, 23 years old, 5531 South Maryland avenue, confessed to police last night after he had been arrested on a larceny charge, that he deserted from the army at Fort Lewis, Wash., a month ago, and had financed his way back to Chicago by seven holdups in western states.

NIGHT WORKERS WANT SHARE OF DAYLIGHT JOBS

Candy production at the Mars, Inc., plant, 2019 North Oak Park avenue, was halted for two and a half hours last evening while 700 workers on the night shift debated what to do about their feud with the 700 workers on the day shift.

Three-fourths of the plant workers are women, and none of them likes to work nights. The night force has demanded that the day force take over the night work half of the time. The day force offered to compromise by working nights in one week out of every five. This offer was spurned by the night workers, who walked out of the plant before quitting time on Monday and Tuesday nights.

When the shifts changed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday the dispute threatened to turn into a hair-pulling contest. Lt. John Scherping of the Cragin police station sent a patrol wagon to the scene. This restored order and the night force held a meeting which lasted until 6 p. m. Then the workers returned to their jobs, announcing that they would give the day force two weeks in which to agree on a settlement. If none is reached, outside arbitrators will be sought. Officials of the company have maintained a hands off attitude toward the strike. There is no issue of wages or working conditions.

Sons Find Father Killed by Shot from Army Rifle

Gus Burgerson, 54 years old, a brick maker, was found fatally wounded last night in the kitchen of his home at 17918 Ridgewood avenue, Lansing, by his two sons, one of whom is a private on leave from Fort Lewis, Washington. A Springfield rifle of World war vintage was lying on the kitchen table, with cleaning tools and bullets. Police Chief Edward Van Laningham said one cartridge was discharged, and Burgerson may have been killed accidentally while cleaning the gun.

RUBBER PLANTER SEES BIG CENTRAL AMERICA SUPPLY

Ex-Chicagoan Says It Will Free U. S. of Far East.

The program of rubber culture in Central American countries, if developed as now projected, will make the United States independent of far eastern sources, Maj. Leon J. Ellzey, engineer in charge of an American rubber seedling program in Nicaragua, said in Chicago yesterday. Ellzey has just returned from his project in the jungles of southern Nicaragua for company consultations and will return in two weeks, taking his wife and son to Managua, the capital.

Maj. L. J. Ellzey.

This rubber venture has been undertaken jointly by the Firestone Plantations company and the United States department of agriculture in coöperation with the government of Nicaragua, Ellzey said. President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua made available tracts of jungles where nurseries are now being developed and these in time will be transformed into plantations of 10,000 acres each.

Expect It to Be Major Industry.

Ellzey said President Somoza expects rubber culture to become the major industry of the country. Soil, climate, rainfall and other factors are all suitable. Nicaragua now has a small annual yield of rubber from native trees, but these are not of the most productive types.

Finding a site with the most favorable factors took Ellzey to a spot 120 miles from a railroad and 35 miles from a dock. Even burros could not be used because of the thickness of the jungle, he said. Workers hacked their way step by step thru the wilderness. Then came the formidable work of clearing the jungle with simple tools because machinery could not be brought in. Ellzey now employs 120 natives on the development.

Project Begun in June.

The project was begun in June. Some 1,200,000 seeds were scheduled to be shipped there by mid-September by the United States government. However, they got lost, and it was Dec. 29 before they reached Ellzey. The seeds, each about the size of a pecan, were specially packed but after the long delay in transit none germinated. Thus, a full year was lost in getting the nurseries under way. Five years are required before trees are ready for tapping for latex.

This season Firestone officials have announced they will rush the seeds to Nicaragua from their plantations in Liberia, on the west coast of Africa.

The Nicaraguan government is giving every encouragement to the rubber development, Ellzey said. The land has been made available without charge, there is no land tax and no duties are imposed on imported equipment.

Central American rubber sources, when developed, will be the most accessible to the United States, Ellzey said. Shipping charges will be much less than on far eastern, African, and Brazilian rubber. And, in his opinion, Nicaraguan rubber will cost less than half the price of artificial rubber, even when the synthetic product is produced in great quantities.

Ellzey, a former Chicagoan, maintains contact with his home town thru radio station W-G-N.

Greeks Give Roosevelt Half Ton Bust of Himself

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP). The Greek order of Ahepa presented to President Roosevelt today a stone bust of the chief executive, the work of Walter Russell, New York sculptor. The half-ton bust was too heavy to bring to the White House, but George C. Vournas, Ahepa president, showed the President pictures of it. Eventually, the bust will be installed in the President's library at Hyde Park, N. Y.

REARRANGE VISIT OF MME. CHIANG FOR MARCH 22

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of China's generalissimo, will speak at a massmeeting in Chicago Stadium Monday night, March 22, J. M. Cleary, secretary of the citizens' committee in charge of arrangements, announced last night.

Mme. Chiang was originally scheduled to appear here Saturday, March 13, but illness made it impossible for her to leave New York. Yesterday, Mr. Cleary said, he received a telegram from H. K. K'ung, Mme. Chiang's secretary, assuring him that she will appear here on March 22. In New York last night it was announced that her projected transcontinental tour is to be curtailed.

Mr. Cleary said tickets sold for the March 13 program will be honored March 22, but that persons who will be unable to attend at the later date may obtain refunds by presenting their tickets at the First National Bank of Chicago.

SPEED UP PLANS FOR RIVER BUSES TO RUN BY MAY 1

Probability increased yesterday that cabin cruisers, carrying passengers on the Chicago river between Michigan avenue and the Union and North Western stations, would be in operation by May 1. The plan, proposed to supplement the city's overtaxed transit system, has been pending before the city council three months while details were being worked out, and approval of the office of defense transportation and coast guard was sought.

Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], chairman of the council's committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges, said he expected an ordinance authorizing the service to be approved by his committee tomorrow and by the full council March 18.

FRENCH PATRIOTS KILL HUNDREDS OF NAZI TROOPS

Revolt Against Labor Draft Growing.

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—The German radio tonight denied reports of rioting in France, where the Fighting French in London said hundreds of Germans have been killed trying to draft laborers for shipment to German factories.

The Germans said there was "no truth to foreign reports about riots in Paris and the rest of France" and that such reports were "maliciously issued by countries hostile to the axis."

A Fighting French spokesman asserted that "resistance and outbreaks are mounting in France daily."

No Full Scale Revolt.

He added, however, that "there are no signs of full scale revolution" and that the three underground organizations—Liberation, Combat, and Franc-Tireur—still are calling only for passive resistance until the invasion comes.

"Guerrillas who are leading the rioting now are the more militant members of those organizations, whose combined membership totals several million," he said. "The members of those movements have been armed from secret sources, but as yet there is no sign that any quantity of their arms has been brought into use."

A Reuters [British] dispatch from the French frontier said 50 Germans, including 33 officers, were killed when two German troop trains collided as a result of sabotage near St. Pol on the channel coast, 30 miles northeast of Brest.

Demands Resistance.

Another spokesman called for greater resistance in a broadcast to France, declaring that "from Lille to Marseilles, from Brest to Strasbourg, the whole French nation has risen like one man to resist the German invader.

"In Lorient and Brest hand grenades have been thrown at the Germans. Telephone cables have been cut. In La Rochelle sabotage is increasing in the railway yards. In Metz and Colmar Alsatians are refusing to join the German army. In Paris tension has reached a peak."

Fighting French headquarters said 29 German soldiers were killed or wounded in a daylight attack by French guerrillas who threw hand grenades at a Nazi column marching thru a workers' district in Lyons, and that a loaded ammunition train was blown up between Valance and Vienne.

Meanwhile the Vichy radio reported that 29 peasants had been sentenced at Lyons for refusing to declare their stocks of grain and cattle.

British Endorse Wallace's Plea for Amity with Russia

Collaboration Urged

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Enthusiastic reception of Vice President Henry A. Wallace's assertion that an understanding between the United States and Great Britain with Russia is necessary if a third World war is to be avoided was climaxed today in a London Times editorial, which said the future security of Europe would be impossible of attainment without the support of the soviet military power.

The editorial referred to the effectiveness of Adolf Hitler's "bolshevist bogey" as a double edged weapon, "not only in that it creates fears among European nations but discord between the united nations." The editorial asserted that "Hitler's chances of making mischief have been swollen by official hesitations, both in Britain and America, to recognize that Russia at the moment of victory will enjoy the same rights as her allies to judge for herself the conditions she deems necessary for the security of her frontiers."

The editorial did not mention the ideological portents of the extension of Russian frontiers, but it assumed that Russia would be content to allow other countries to enjoy freedom under her protection, adding:

"If Britain's frontier is on the Rhine [300 miles west of Berlin] it might be as pertinently said that the Russian frontier is on the Oder [50 miles east of Berlin]."

Welcomes Proposal

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today that the British government welcomed the proposal made by Sumner Welles, United States undersecretary of state, for a conference now on post-war aims and economic problems.

Eden said there were continuing conversations with the dominions and India on financial questions and that there had been a number of informal meetings with allied governments represented in London.

Replying to a query by Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite, whether Russia had been consulted in such discussions, Eden declared that Shinwell apparently was referring to Welles' statement on United States and soviet consultations and that this was a matter for the two governments concerned.

Shinwell pressed him as to whether bilateral discussions were going on, in which Britain was not consulted. Eden answered: "They will no doubt in due course keep us informed."

To a suggestion that the proposed meeting of British and United States representatives to discuss the refugee problem be held in London, not in Ottawa, Canada, Eden said the British were ready to meet the Americans at any mutually convenient place. He added that he had told Secretary of State Cordell Hull that the British welcomed the suggestion of a preliminary and formal discussion.

GOERING IN ROME; URGES MORE AID TO NAZIS, REPORT

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, March 10.—Marshal Hermann Goering has been in Rome since Saturday, according to private advices. The ostensible purpose of the visit is to inspect German air forces in the peninsula.

Nevertheless, such a visit cannot escape political associations. There seems no doubt that Rome hesitates to engage more troops on the Russian front as well as to send more workers to Germany. It would prefer to organize the defenses of Italy rather than send troops abroad. Italian eyes now turn chiefly toward Tunisia.

Part of Goerings' mission, it is understood, is to convey to Rome that the interests of the coalition should be considered ahead of those of the individual member thereof. It is understood Goering has seen Premier Mussolini several times, as well as military leaders, and that he was received by King Victor Emmanuel today.

BEVERIDGE SAYS HE WILL STUDY WORLD SECURITY PLAN IN U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—William Beveridge, leading spirit of a comprehensive social security plan recently submitted to parliament, told a British-American audience today that his object in visiting the United States soon was to study a plan designed to solve the unemployment problem in all countries after the war.

At the same time, a new move was made today by a group of Conservative members of parliament to persuade the government to appoint a minister of social security to prepare legislation to implement the Beveridge plan.

Eden Silent on Whether Nazi Still Chain Prisoners

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today said he was unable to give further information as to whether British prisoners of war still are chained by Germany. Eden said the Vatican had given much material aid and moral comfort to British prisoners in Italy and the far east.

SENATORS FIND 3 BASIC FAULTS IN WAR PROGRAM

1. Planning; 2. Conflicting Powers; 3. Hesitancy.

Offered Weiner's Job

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Chester Davis, chairman of the Federal Reserve bank of St. Louis, has been approached to become director of an enlarged and strengthened office of civilian supply, it was learned today, but has said he does not want the job. The offer reportedly now has been made to another man, whose name could not be learned. Whoever gets the job would succeed OCS Director Joseph L. Weiner. WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson, however, was represented as desiring Weiner to stay with OCS under the new chief.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Declaring that the nation faces the "toughest and grimmest" year ahead in its history, the Truman senate committee investigating the war program tonight warned administration agencies to remedy the existing lack of planning and confusion of authority.

The committee's survey of the war program to date and recommendations for improvements were contained in its second annual report.

"If we are to do the job we have set for ourselves and cut down the loss of life in this war, this year will demand harder work, longer hours, greater sacrifices, and more single handed, devotion from every American," the report said.

Three Basic Weaknesses Found.

The committee continued that America's war production record in 1942 is one in which the nation can be proud, but more could have been done "by recognizing and correcting the weaknesses and the mistakes which have slowed our war effort."

Three basic weaknesses have been responsible for nearly all the failures and shortcomings the committee has found in its investigations, it said, listing them as follows:

1. Inadequate over-all planning within government agencies at the beginning of various programs and delay in determining basic policies necessary to carry out such programs effectively.

2. Conflicting authority over and responsibility for various phases of the war program, resulting in delays and buck-passing.

3. Hesitancy of government to adopt unpopular or unpleasant policies long after the facts clearly indicated such policies were necessary.

Great progress has been made in correcting these weaknesses, but during the coming year attention must be focused on the primary need for clearly defined and centralized authority in a few officials, "each of high ability," said the committee.

The committee praised the results achieved by Rubber Director William Jeffers and said WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson has recently taken steps to exercise the full powers granted him, but regretted that he had delegated so much authority to the war and navy departments and various czars during the earlier period of his incumbency.

The committee approved the centering of authority in Charles Wilson, vice chairman of WPB, over allocation of raw materials and rescheduling of war material production, saying this centralization of authority is "a long step toward eliminating one of the worst organizational faults of the war setup."

Navy Policy Criticized.

The committee criticized navy department policy on providing escort vessels for merchant shipping, saying that while a fine record has been made in building merchant ships, that alone is not sufficient.

"We must have escort vessels to protect them, and the navy must take every action necessary to obtain them," said the committee. "This means that the design must be simplified and 'spit and polish' sacrificed so that they can be built in huge quantities. Action in this respect was long delayed, and too much attention has been concentrated on the larger and more complicated naval vessels, but progress is now being made. The results will show up later. . . .

"The submarine menace is still far from met. The navy has failed to publish figures on sinkings, but the enemy has succeeded in sinking a large tonnage of cargo vessels and tankers with the consequent loss of valuable cargo as well as the ships.

Call for Proper Protection.

"Because of these sinkings it is not sufficient simply to build huge quantities of new merchant vessels. Proper protection of convoys by escort vessels must be provided. Every method possible to speed up production of escort vessels should be adopted."

The food situation is serious, said the committee, attacking the lack of initiative by the department of agriculture under Claude R. Wickard in meeting this problem better.

"The department of agriculture, altho it has a wealth of statistical information on which to base them, has been slow in formulating basic policies, has lacked vigor and initiative in pushing its program and, in the case of such factors its farm machinery production quotas, has been far less vigorous than it should have been in pressing on the war production board the requirements of the food program," the report declared.

Experienced Man Needed.

Civilians needs must not be overlooked in conduct of the war, the committee warned, saying the office of civilian supply [headed by Joseph L. Weiner, frequent target of criticism] "should be headed by a man of first rate experience and ability, who will have the courage to fight for materials for essential civilian programs and will possess the judgment to make curtailments of less essential programs."

As to man power the committee said strong, firm policies are needed, backed by coöperation of labor, industry, and agriculture. The committee said it is "unfortunate" that strong action has not been taken to reduce absenteeism.

REDS WIN MANY MORE TOWNS IN SMOLENSK PUSH

Smash Nazi Attacks on New Kharkov Line.

LONDON, March 11 [Thursday]—(AP).—Russian troops captured Bely and scores of other towns yesterday in a smashing central front drive to knock out Smolensk, 80 miles away, while in the south Moscow said today the Germans had lost 800 more men and 35 tanks in attacks which collapsed against new Red army defenses below Kharkov. Berlin broadcasts claimed German troops were menacing the outskirts of Kharkov.

The Russians also punched new holes in Nazi positions below Lake Ilmen on the front northwest of Moscow, capturing several more localities on the approaches of Staraya Russa, Nazi 16th army headquarters, a midnight bulletin disclosed. These gains put the Russians within 15 miles of Staraya Russa.

German recovery of approximately 100 miles of strategic territory in the Ukraine around Kharkov, admitted by Moscow Tuesday night, had threatened to overshadow the continuing Red army successes on the central front, but the latest bulletin indicated the Russians now were holding firm there.

Overwhelm Nazi Defenses.

The capture of Bely, 180 miles west of Moscow, put the Russians 70 miles northwest of Vyazma in a further flanking of that most exposed Nazi eastern position. Vyazma itself was imperiled by Russian columns driving close to the town from the east and north.

The midnight bulletin said these latter columns had "overwhelmed the enemy's defenses" and captured scores of hamlets. Before the Russians announced the seizure of Bely yesterday in a special communique Berlin already had acknowledged its loss, saying it was evacuated "according to plan."

Berlin radio broadcasts acknowledged that the Russians also had reached the Sevsk area, only 20 miles from the Bryansk-Kiev railway, in a sector where the Red army is trying to cut enemy communication lines linking the central and southern fronts.

Repulse Foe's Attacks.

But it was claimed by Berlin that German troops were rallying to hold the Russians in that area. Moscow did not mention this sector in its latest communique.

South and southwest of Kharkov, said the communique, "our troops repulsed fierce attacks of enemy tanks and infantry."

The Russians have taken up positions southeast of Kharkov on the northern bank of the Donetz river, which has been thawing for some time and was believed to afford a good barrier now.

Nine of the 35 destroyed German tanks were knocked out in one sector of this front by a soviet artillery ambush. In another area one Red army formation alone killed the 800 Germans and destroyed 26 more enemy tanks.

Nazis Use 200,000 Men.

The Germans were reported to have thrown more than 200,000 men into a tank and infantry battle raging in a semi-circle west of that city, and were within 15 miles of Kharkov itself after forcing the Russians to give up eight strategic cities before and below it.

The one great issue—whether the Nazi command would be able to retake Kharkov, the key to the whole soviet front in this region—yet remained in doubt. Its recapture, in expert opinion here, is essential to the success of the whole German plan.

Aside from the Russian front to hold Kharkov's approaches the only other battle reported in the south was in the western Caucasus, where the communique said a number of additional populated places fell to the red army striving to knock out the Nazi pivot of Novorossisk on the Black sea coast.

Russians Learn of Food Supplies Sent by U.S.; Standley's Recall Demanded in House Attack

Stettinius Quoted

MOSCOW, March 10 (AP).—Two days after Adm. William H. Standley, American ambassador, said the Russian people were not being properly informed of American lend-lease aid, the soviet government newspaper, Izvestia, today printed a story based on a magazine article by Edward R. Stettinius Jr., American lend-lease administrator.

Food Called Bulk of Aid.

Standley's statement has not been published, nor has a recent Stettinius statement concerning trucks, jeeps, motorcycles, military tractors, rails, and telephones.

In the article printed in Izvestia, Stettinius was quoted as writing that the majority of food supplies shipped to Russia in 1942 consisted of pork, dairy products, fats, and eggs.

The article said "this policy will be continued during a period of time."

Totals of U. S. Aid.

"During 1942," the story continued, "America exported 1,112,000,000 pounds of pork, in other words 10 per cent of the whole American production in the same year; 815,000,000 pounds of dairy products have been exported which formed 3.4 per cent of the whole American dairy production. All this amount of dairy products was shipped to the soviet union.

"Besides these totals, Stettinius wrote that 723,000,000 pounds of fats and vegetable oil, or 13.2 per cent of American production, were exported, and 450,000,000 dozens of eggs, or 10 per cent of American egg production, were exported to England and the soviet union.

"The United States also shipped 156,000,000 pounds of fish, 415,000,000 pounds of corn, 393,000,000 pounds of wheat, 51,000,000 cans of vegetables, 89,000,000 pounds of canned fruits and fruit juices."

Why Envoy Spoke

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, March 10.—Adm. William H. Standley, United States ambassador to Russia, held his now famous press conference in a small study of his palatial Moscow residence. It was the result of a request by the president of the Anglo-American Press association in Moscow that he receive newspaper men for the first time since his return from Kuibyshev.

Standley said he had nothing special to say but would be glad to meet the press, which he received after his usual afternoon nap. It was his suggestion, when the conversation reached United States supplies, that his remarks be quoted.

No Record of Talk Kept.

The ambassador spoke without notes and no record was kept of his remarks other than what the correspondents wrote. The general impression was that Standley spoke on the spur of the moment, without forethought. It was a thoroly informal conference.

A hasty survey of Moscow provided several opportunities to probe the Russians' knowledge of the origin of American supplies.

Kinds of Food Provided.

The manager of a grocery said:

"Of course we have had American goods here; about 10 per cent of the total over six months, including cheese, lard, sugar, and cooking oil."

He said his customers knew the food was from America. Virtually the same tale was told in other stores. Most of the people took the fact that they were receiving American supplies as part of the way things are planned.

Asks Thoro Probe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10. — Criticism of Adm. William H. Standley, United States ambassador to Russia, for his frank discussion of soviet policies toward American aid being supplied to that country, continued in the house today during debate on an extension of the lend-lease act.

The fireworks over the Standley statement were precipitated in a speech by Rep. George H. Bender [R., O.] assailing the American ambassador and demanding a full congressional investigation of the state department. The Ohioan also demanded the recall of several top ranking envoys, including Standley.

Bender asserted that the Standley statement was the "climax to a series of foreign policy incidents with which the American people do not agree." He noted that the nation has been told the envoy spoke without prior consultation with the President or the state department, asserting:

"Something very strange has happened here."

Asks Recall of Three Envoys.

Bender also assailed the utterances of Carlton J. H. Hayes, United States ambassador to Spain. He urged the recall of Hayes, Standley, and Robert Murphy, envoy in North Africa.

Just as vehemently as Bender criticized Standley, Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] defended the envoy's statement in which it was charged that the Russian officials are not telling their people of the extent to which they are being aided by the United States.

Question of Propriety.

Speaking of the admiral's statement, which has aroused a storm of controversy in this country, he said:

"No one questions his honesty or the truth of the statement he made. "The only question was one of propriety and I am not going to discuss that as I haven't the information."

EXPECTS DRAFT TO HIT ALL 3-A'S BY MIDSUMMER

Charles Taft Hints at Rise in Induction Rate.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—A hint that the rate of draft inductions may be speeded came today in a statement from Charles P. Taft, assistant director of the office of defense, health and welfare services, that all 3-A registrants may be inducted by midsummer.

Charles P. Taft.

When Paul V. Nutt, war man power chairman, disclosed last month that the induction rate was 12,000 a day, it was indicated the 3-A class would not be exhausted before late this year.

Taft's estimate, based on "what the selective service people told me," was given a senate appropriations committee last week and was reported to the senate today as it debated proposals for deferment of farm workers.

Later the senate agreed to vote tomorrow on legislation to defer essential farm workers.

In another development on the man power question today, the senate war investigating committee, headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], put its support behind the military in the controversy over the size of the army and navy.

Tells of Warning.

The committee advised the senate that "because of the shortage of shipping" it privately had urged the military to take care in determining the size of the army and navy and of the production program so that the nation would not acquire trained men and material it could not use.

"The army has assured the committee that it has borne all these considerations in mind when determining its optimum size," it added.

In making public Taft's testimony, the senate appropriations committee approved a $2,973,000 fund to make grants to the states for the care of children of employed mothers.

Favor Married Women.

Taft said war plants had found married women more stable employés than single girls, and that there was a pressing need for nursery schools and other institutions. He added:

"In addition, as soon as you start drafting the 3-A's—which, according to what selective service has told me, will be pretty complete by the middle of the summer—you will have an increased number of employed women, who have husbands in the army."

70 FREIGHT CARS OF A BURLINGTON TRAIN DERAILED

Seventy cars of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy freight train No. 68, loaded with freight bound from Galesburg, Ill., to Chicago, were derailed last night at the Main street trestle at Lisle, Ill. Two tank cars rolled down a 20 foot embankment and 23 other freight cars overturned. One car was left hanging perilously from the trestle.

Some 250 yards of double track were torn up by the derailment and 50 yards of the main east and west line of the railroad was destroyed. Officials said the main line would be reopened before morning.

Section Foreman Harold Pierce of Lisle was driving on the street beneath the trestle when the derailment occurred. He leaped from his car as timbers began raining down.

8TH ARMY PROBES ROMMEL'S POWER AT MARETH LINE

French Troops Increase Pressure on Flank.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, March 10 (AP).—Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army began testing Marshal Erwin Rommel's crippled tank forces today preliminary to a Tunisian showdown.

Rommel was on the defensive behind his Mareth line in southern Tunisia.

French troops were menacing Rommel's western flank between Tozeur and Gafsa and allied pressure also was exerted on the axis lines of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim in the north.

Rommel "a Rat in a Trap."

Before Rommel's six attacks collapsed last Saturday against the 8th army, Montgomery had told his troops that Rommel was preparing to cripple himself and that then "it will be our turn to attack him."

"And having been crippled himself, he will be unable to stand up to our attack and we will smash right thru him," the general was quoted as saying. "He is caught like a rat in a trap and we will give him a very 'bloody nose.'"

Thus the allied squeeze play on the cornered axis troops holding southeastern Tunisia appeared to be under way.

Patrols Busy in North.

By seizing Tozeur, French troops narrowed Rommel's maneuvering room northwest of the Mareth line. The French were moving above the Chott Djerid salt lake toward Gafsa, 50 miles to the northeast. French troops captured prisoners near Metlaoui, about half way between Tozeur and Gafsa.

Allied patrols were "extremely active" in northern Tunisia, where the British 1st army is stationed, particularly in the Sedjenane area, 40 miles southwest of Bizerte, a high command communique said.

GIRL 'FLAGMEN' READY TO SERVE ON I. C. TRAINS

Two pretty girl "flagmen" who have served student days learning to collect tickets, call stations, and flag trains, were expected to go out on their first runs today as regular Illinois Central suburban lines train crew members.

They are Miss Marie Vonasch of 751 East 73d street and Miss Marjorie Hickey, 21, 1220 East 73d street. Both have passed rigorous physical examinations, including sight and hearing tests, and yesterday completed their final student runs under the guidance of experienced trainmen.

"Every one nearly jumped out of their seats the first time I squeaked 'Kensington,'" said Miss Hickey. "The traveling public seems to approve the idea tho, and every one congratulates me."

Pressed for help because of the war man power crisis, the company intends to put more girl "flagmen" on the various runs as soon as they complete a training program.

TUNISIA TEACHES YANKS A LESSON —THE HARD WAY

It's Need for More Intense Small Unit Training.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED FIELD HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, March 10.—On the testing grounds of this Tunisian "laboratory," the American army is learning the technique of modern warfare the hard way, but learning it thoroly, and it is rediscovering the need for intensive training of troops in small units.

That may sound like dull news, but often victory in battle and the life of the soldier depends on how thoroly he and his junior officers have been trained to fight by squads, sections, platoons, or similar small units.

After our largest peace time maneuvers in 1941, army observers urged improvement of small unit training. I was at Camp Forrest, Tenn., when the then 33d division commander, Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, started to reorganize its training.

Krueger's Thesis, Too.

Again last summer, during the Louisiana maneuvers, I heard Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, commanding the 3d army, repeatedly instruct his officers to give every soldier and young officer the most thoro training in how to operate effectively and independently in small units.

Many of our specialized troops, such as paratrooper soldiers, Rangers, and infantry used as assault troops, have been well trained down to the smallest units. This is true thruout other branches of the service, but by no means to the extent to which it should prevail. Many of our men have had to learn in battle under hazardous conditions.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander in North Africa, intends that his troops' training should never cease.

His officers believe there is no better soldier than the American, when properly trained and seasoned. And there is nothing wrong with the young Americans' handling of guns and planes in this army, but there is a definite need for improvement in small unit training.

When the enemy infiltrates an American position, the ordinary soldier and his young officers must have all the tricks of the trade at their command.

This is the time for the American soldier to hold his ground and work into a position where he can destroy the infiltrators. But if the soldier is inexperienced, he and his junior officers may be inclined to withdraw.

Example in Battle.

In the recent fighting in Kasserine valley, near the western Tunisian border, there was such a case when an American battalion had been hastily placed on the east side of Kasserine pass. Its position admittedly was poor, but it had to hold.

In attacking the pass, the Germans used infiltration tactics. When within speaking distance, some even called to our boys:

"Come on, Johnny, surrender. We'll take good care of you."

This type of enticement brought only hoots of derision and profanity from our men. But their small unit training did not appear to the best advantage and when the battalion was almost completely surrounded, its soldiers pulled back hurriedly, leaving a gap, which later was partially plugged by armored infantry backstopped by British armor.

The lessons learned at Bataan and Corregidor were: Greater need for small unit training and physical hardening for the American soldier.

Today these lessons still are being learned in Tunisia.

ALLIED BOMBERS SMASH FIVE JAP SHIPS; TWO AFIRE

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, March 11 [Thursday]—(AP).—Allied heavy bombers dealt punishing new blows to the Japanese merchant marine yesterday, attacking five merchantmen and heavily damaging two of them, the high command reported today.

Liberators and Flying Fortresses ranging from the Celebes to Wewak in New Guinea probably destroyed a 7,000 ton enemy ship at Boetong Island on the southeast end of the Celebes. It was left burning fiercely from the explosion of a heavy bomb. Another plane bombed two ships off Boeroe Island, but results were not observed. At Wewak, Fortresses sailed over two vessels in the harbor and one of 5,000 tons was smoking heavily when the bombers left. A coastal vessel was strafed near Regota Sermata Island in the Tanimbar Islands.

Grim evidence of the Bismarck sea battle was observed north of Goodenough Island. Floating rafts and lifeboats carrying dead Japanese moved slowly along on the two-mile-an-hour current.

Start Fires on Munda.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Two more heavy bombing raids starting large fires at the Japanese air base at Munda on New Georgia Island in the central Solomon Islands were reported by the navy today.

Your Gasoline Ration Book is your oil change guide!

MAYBE you've thought you didn't have to be so careful about changing your motor oil regularly since gasoline rationing has cut down your driving to essential short trips.

But there are two important reasons why you should be even more careful about oil change than ever.

FIRST—Even with reduced driving your oil is constantly exposed to impurities, dust and other abrasives carried through the air —and, at the same time, to the deteriorating effects of partially burned fuel particles!

SECOND—With today's short trips at lower driving speeds, your engine does not get hot enough to vaporize water formed by combustion and condensation. This water accumulates in your crankcase and further contaminates your oil.

Be on the safe side. Let your Shell Dealer flush your crankcase and change your oil EVERY TIME YOU GO TO A NEW GASOLINE COUPON NUMBER. That's every two months.

REMEMBER—a complete Shellubrication job can be done at the same time your Shell Dealer is changing your oil. Shellubrication means the right amount of the right Shell lubricants in the right places. You get a written guarantee with every job. It includes:

1 COMPLETE LUBRICATION of all moving parts with fresh Shell Lubricants. Inspection of transmission and differential lubricant levels.

2 BATTERY CHECK—Especially important now, as reduced driving may have allowed strength to fall below normal.

3 RADIATOR CHECK—Testing of solution, inspection of all cooling-system hose connections.

4 SPARKPLUG CHECK—Cleaning and adjusting if necessary. Dirty plugs can waste 10% of your gasoline.

5 CLEANING of all windows and interior of car. Inspection of fan belt, lights, and other motor accessories.

6 TIRE CHECK—Inspection, correct inflation, switching if needed (at a small extra cost)—the tire service you need to help GUARD AMERICA'S MILEAGE.

ASK MORE SHIPS, PLANES TO FIGHT U-BOAT MENACE

Commons Told Churchill Distorts Losses.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—In a house of commons debate on naval appropriations, most speakers emphasized today the danger from the U-boat menace and asked priority for all services directly concerned with fighting it.

Emanuel Shinwell.

"I wonder if the general public realizes how desperately serious is the situation at the present time and how grave the menace with which we are faced," Comm. Archibald Southby, Conservative, observed. He suggested, along with others in parliament, that it now was time "to tell the people of this country quite plainly and squarely where we stand."

Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite, suggested that the reason the admiralty was silent was to conceal deficiencies in its departments, and charged that admiralty instructions to three of Britain's finest and speediest vessels, of around 20,000 tons each, that they reduce their speed to 15 knots to save fuel had resulted in their being sunk by submarines, all within seven days.

Denied by Admiralty.

The admiralty denied the charge, explaining that the ships had reduced speed because they had been forced into a long detour and had to economize on fuel to make port.

Shinwell then wanted to know if the losses in merchant seamen in this war were as great as those of the last when 14,000 were killed, and charged Prime Minister Winston Churchill with distorting the facts.

"When the prime minister comes to the box and tells us that we have convoyed 3,000,000 soldiers and have lost only 1,400 men, what is one to say about it?," he asked. "That only 1,400 British soldiers drowned? Is that what he means? The language was carefully drawn up, but it simply is not true. The government knows it is not true."

Wing Comm. A. W. H. Jones, a Conservative, suggested that the advanced age of senior admirals was to blame for the lack of progressive methods in dealing with U-boat warfare. There is a "magnificent second 11 ready to step in," he said.

Asks Equality with R. A. F.

Comm. Rupert Arnold Brabner, a Conservative, a fleet air arm pilot, said that the air arm had received only cast-off royal air force machines. This condition has now been changed, he said, but he insisted that because of the vital service it is performing the air arm should have equality with the royal air force in airplane production.

Vice Adm. E. A. Taylor, a Conservative, complained over the use of slow ships and urged that special squadrons of ships be attached to every convoy so that when U-boats attack this force could be detached for hunting, harassing, and destroying the enemy.

Defending the silence of the government on the shipping peril, George Hall, secretary of the admiralty, said that the enemy, as well as the British public, would like to know details of losses.

He said that plans are going forward in England, the United States, and Canada for increasing the number of convoy escort vessels and that new types of aircraft were being turned over to the fleet.

Most of the shipyards which formerly built fast merchants are now building fast warships, Hall asserted. He said that to raise the speed of slow ships would mean losing half the cargo space.

COPENHAGEN HAS AIR RAID ALARM; RADIOS GO SILENT

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—German controled radio stations went silent late tonight and Stockholm reported heavy anti-aircraft fire in Copenhagen, Denmark, indicating the R. A. F. again was bombing continental targets in a follow-up to last night's heavy attack on Munich.

Pilots returning from the 500 ton blockbuster and incendiary raid on Munich, famous as the beer hall birthplace of the Nazi party, reported giant fires raging when they left. Eleven planes were lost.

PRESIDENT BACKS OWI IN DISPUTE ON PROPAGANDA

Military Will Pass on Foreign Programs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—President Roosevelt today placed foreign propaganda activities of the government in the hands of the office of war information, but made OWI's propaganda programs subject to the approval of the joint chiefs of staff.

The President's executive order covers all foreign propaganda except in the western hemisphere, where such activity is handled by the office of coördinator of inter-American affairs, headed by Nelson A. Rockefeller. The order was issued, it was said by informed officials, to clear up a jurisdictional dispute.

Harmed Allied Cause.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported in January to have appealed to the war department to curb OWI propaganda being distributed in North Africa on the ground it was doing more harm to the allied cause than to enemy morale.

Under today's order, the office of strategic services, headed by Col. William J. Donovan, will confine its activities to work of a purely military nature, but the OWI will be brought into line thru the requirement that it clear its plans directly with the joint chiefs of staff.

Meanwhile, the OWI announced that its domestic branch has been reorganized in an effort to cut out duplication of work. The reorganization involves combining a number of OWI bureaus and the abolition of the bureau of intelligence, which has been conducting public opinion surveys and research.

Using Too Much Paper.

Gardner Cowles Jr., director of the domestic branch, said the revision will reduce the branch's present staff of 1,500 by about 100 persons and will save $400,000 a year. OWI is planning a budget of 45 millions for all its activities for the next fiscal year.

Government agencies, Cowles conceded, are using too much paper in the form of press releases and other announcements, especially in view of the fact that newspapers and other private publications have been subjected to a 10 per cent cut in the use of paper.

Cowles said efforts will be increased to get private companies to use some of their advertising to educate the public on rationing programs and other policies affecting consumers.

Relief Predicted

Rising temperature was forecast for Chicago after an expected drop to about 10 degrees above zero early today. The mercury began descending yesterday afternoon after 2.3 inches of wet, sticky snow had fallen.

The snow began about 8 a. m., following a drizzling rain. Propelled by a strong wind, the snow soon laid a slippery blanket of slush over streets and sidewalks.

The snowfall brought the total this month to seven inches. This exceeds by more than an inch the total average snowfall for March.

Ontario Roads Blocked.

TORONTO, Ont., March 10 (AP).—Large sections of southern Ontario today were digging themselves out from under one of the worst snowstorms of the season. The wintry onslaught tied up rail and road communications for 48 hours in some places, with a snowfall up to a foot in depth.

Army Establishing a New Post Near Ironwood, Mich.

Establishment of Camp Norrie, a new army post on the grounds of the old civilian conservation corps camp near Ironwood, Mich., was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding general of the 6th service command.

SEES EXPANSION OF ALASKA ROAD AFTER THE WAR

Canadian Says Americans Will Be Welcome.

LONDON, Ont., March 10 (AP).—Joint Canadian-United States studies of economic development of Alaska, the Yukon and northern British Columbia should be extended to include northern Alberta and Northwest territories areas, J. H. Sissons, Liberal member of parliament, said in a speech today.

Dotted line shows location of new pipe line.

The interest of the United States in the Alaska highway and its related projects would not cease with the end of the war, said Sissons in an address to a service club.

To supply oil, a pipeline is being laid from Fort Norman, N. W. T., to Whitehorse, Y. T., a distance of 425 miles, with a refinery at Whitehorse, Sissons said. He added that a winter road from Grimshaw, Alta., to Providence on Great Slave lake had been improved, and new winter roads built from Providence to Fort Norman with the possibility that some portions at least would be made into all-weather roads.

Telegraph Line Built.

A telephone-telegraph line has been constructed from the United States to Alaska to permit direct contact with Washington, Sissons said.

He predicted that the United States would continue to be interested in the development of the Peace River country and other areas with which it has become familiar thru war time activities.

Pointing out that settlers from the United States played a large part in the development of the Peace River country, Sissons said, "They will undoubtedly play a larger part in the development of the future.

"Americans Are Welcome."

"I have been told by Americans working on the Alaska highway that about a third of the men express their intention of coming back to the country after the war. They will be welcomed because we know Americans have made good settlers," he said.

Canada has contributed to the defense of Alaska by the construction of air fields thru the north, Sissons said. He added that the Canadian and American forces in Alaska were being gathered there not only for defense but also "to stab at the heart of Japan."

New Chinese Ambassador Takes Up Post in Russia

FIND SHIPYARDS WORKER KILLED BERNICE CURTIS

San Jose, Cal., March 10 [Special].—A jury of eight housewives and four men judged Florencio [Frank] Alcalde, 29 year old shipyard welder, guilty of the murder of Bernice Curtis, 30 year old former Chicago girl, in a verdict brought before Judge William F. James here tonight.

Alcalde was convicted of murder in the first degree and without recommendation of clemency. Judge James will pass sentence Friday, imposing death in San Quentin's gas chamber.

Two women jurors, Mrs. Mary Colli and Mrs. Dorothy Rae, wept as the verdict was returned.

Alcalde was charged with bludgeoning blonde Miss Curtis last Nov. 22 and leaving her body in a muddy field south of Palo Alto. After first telling officers he did not know Miss Curtis, he testified he met her a month before she was slain and had dated her frequently, taking her to shows, on automobile rides, and to a dance the night before she was killed. He denied however that he was with her on the night she was killed.

HAWAII CIVILIANS REGAIN RIGHT TO GOVERN SELVES

HONOLULU, Hawaii, March 10 (AP).—Military authorities restored partial civil rule to Hawaii today as Adm. Chester W. Nimitz warned that Japan still is capable of attempting another destructive raid against the greatly strengthened island defenses.

Eighteen governmental functions were returned to civilians today by military authorities who had held complete control of the islands since Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

Martial law, however, remains in effect, along with the suspension of civil writs of habeas corpus.

The new general orders continue under military control black-outs, air raids, civilian security, aliens, military areas, identification and registration, communications, labor on military property and travel. They also define the powers of courts and the organization of the office of the military governor.

Functions restored to civil control include control of prices, food rationing, hospital and medical services, rents, food production and distribution, traffic except during black-out hours, public health, business hours, civil and criminal judiciary, civilian mail censorship, liquor and narcotics.

ROMULO FINALLY REACHES SAFETY —AND A BIG STEAK

But Thoughts of Bataan Kill His Appetite.

BY COL. CARLOS P. ROMULO.
[Copyright, 1942.]

We flew for hours. At last I felt a reassuring pitch of the plane as the pilot, Lt. Barnick, nosed it down. Below us lay a harbor—Cebu. It must be Cebu, for we only had enough gas to make Cebu.

Below us the long white ribbons of searchlights groped up thru the clouds, searching out our wretched little plane.

We knew those searchlights could only be pointing from the decks of enemy cruisers and destroyers. The enemy was there ahead of us! They were waiting for us at Cebu.

Old Duck Returns to Clouds.

Barnick said later this was his worst moment of the trip. He twisted the wheel and shot the Old Duck up and back into the clouds.

What now? An idea broke in my brain. I reached into the dispatch case I had refused to throw overboard and dragged out a map of the secret air fields of the Philippines. I had gone back into headquarters, just before leaving Corregidor, and asked for that secret map. The map saved our lives.

A little later we were circling over a secret landing field on an island that must not be named. Lights flashed on 200 feet below. Wearily the Old Duck lurched to the ground. Her gasoline tank was almost dry.

Has 6 Cups of Coffee!

There was a little restaurant near the airport. We stumbled into it and had breakfast. I ate eight fried eggs and drank six cups of coffee. Barnick had a dozen eggs and wanted to order more, but we restrained him.

Then we turned on the radio and heard about the fall of Bataan. We stood there on that air field, the tears running down our cheeks. And we didn't give a damn who saw us cry.

The next day, April 10, Barnick and I flew to Mindanao. There I saw boys trained to fight three to a gun because of the scarcity of guns. From April 10 to April 24 I traveled about the island.

Ordered Out Again.

One morning I was told:

"We have received an order from Gen. Douglas MacArthur. You are ordered out at midnight tonight."

At midnight we waited in a car at a secret air base. I left Mindanao by the same route followed by President Manuel Quezon and MacArthur.

I arrived at Melbourne, Australia, on the afternoon of April 25, wearing the uniform of a private twice my size. I had not regained the 29 pounds I had lost on Corregidor and was trembling so I could hardly stand.

Gets a Hearty Greeting.

Gen. Marshall and Col. Stevenot were waiting for me. They looked wonderful—fresh shaven and clean. I felt dirty and I knew I looked like hell, but they pounded me on the back.

MacArthur was waiting, standing by his desk. He put his hands out to me and said:

"Carlos, my boy! I can't bear to look at you!"

Marshall and Stevenot took me to dinner at the Menzies hotel. I felt shy about entering the dining room in a uniform that made me look like something out of "The Wizard of Oz." But my friends rushed me to a table and begged me to eat. "Order what you like the most," they urged.

Unable to Eat Steak.

What would I order except steak smothered in mushrooms, and ice cream to follow? Hadn't I dreamed of that every night for four months at Corregidor and Bataan?

Now the thick steak was before me. Suddenly I thought of the thousands of Filamerican captives who were being marched thru the streets of Manila in their rags and even their underwear—gaunt skeletons, half naked and half dead. I pushed the steak away.

Learns of Corregidor's Fall.

The ice cream came. I tried to swallow a spoonful and could not.

Marshall and Stevenot were watching me. They said quietly: "We felt exactly the same way."

I went to work with Col. Diller in press relations in MacArthur's headquarters. There, on May 6, MacArthur told me, "Corregidor has fallen!"

He handed me a statement in his own handwriting. Nothing else was said. The statement read tersely:

"Corregidor needs no comment from me. It has sounded its own story at the mouth of its guns. It has scrolled its own epitaph on enemy tablets. But thru the bloody haze of its last reverberating shot I shall always seem to see a vision of grim, gaunt, ghastly men, still unafraid."

Yes, we all had expected the fall of Corregidor, but it was like the death of a loved one we know must die: the death is no less of a shock.

I went to the men's room and was sick.

Terrible stories came to us from Bataan and Corregidor. We heard of Filipino soldiers paraded along the road from Bataan to Capas Tarlac, and dying on that road at the rate of 350 to 500 a day. We heard of American soldiers, sick and ragged, marched down Dewey boulevard on their way to Bilibid prison. We heard of unspeakable mass cruelties and individual cases of torture.

Closes Mind to One Horror.

We did not hear what took place when the Japanese hordes swarmed over the Rock and into the tunnel. About 70 Filipino and American nurses waited there. We tried not to wonder what happened to those girls. I have seen the faces of our greatest soldiers grow white when they speak of Corregidor.

I had dinner one evening with Melville Jacoby, the writer, who was killed in an accident the next day. He told me of the trip he and his wife had made from Corregidor. He said:

"I made it a point to write about our escape in detail. I wanted to open the eyes of America to the fact that help could get thru and that it was up to the American people to see that it did go thru to the Philippines."

Going Back to Manila.

On June 6 MacArthur called me into his office. He said:

"I am appointing you my aide-de-camp, not only because of the work you did in Manila and Corregidor and Bataan, but because to me you symbolize the Philippines.

"Whenever I look at you, Carlos, I see the Philippines.

"And I want you beside me as a reminder that some day you and I are going to march back into Manila together."

GERMAN TRANSPORT REPORTED BLASTED IN TRONDHEIM HARBOR

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 10 (AP).—Advices from Oslo tonight reported a German transport had been severely damaged by a bomb explosion aboard in Trondheim harbor and had been run aground to prevent sinking. No one was arrested for sabotage, but six persons were taken into custody as hostages.

[London newspapers last week said a powerful concentration of German warships had been assembled in the Trondheim area. Both in the United States and abroad speculation centered on the possibility that the Nazi high command is planning a surface campaign as well as an undersea offensive against supply lines to Britain and Russia this spring. Some of the best ships of the German fleet were reported in the concentration.]

100 CONTRACTORS DUPED IN DEPOT SCHEME, U. S. SAYS

Donald Vandercook's elaborate scheme to build 18 army supply depots yielded him at least $30,000 from more than 100 contracting firms in the central west, Assistant United States Atty. William J. Connor reported yesterday. The army has no plans to build such depots.

Connor and Postoffice Inspector Jack Stahl, who are investigating Vandercook's complex affairs, said contractors were still coming in to complain that they advanced preliminary expense money to the promoter on his representation that he was an agent of the war production board in the imaginary depot project.

A charge of mail fraud against Vandercook, filed March 2, was continued until March 29 yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

Vandercook, 44 years old, lives at 114 North Parkside avenue. He is the head of Equipment Engineering Associates, Inc., 64 West Randolph street, and is by profession an electrical engineer.

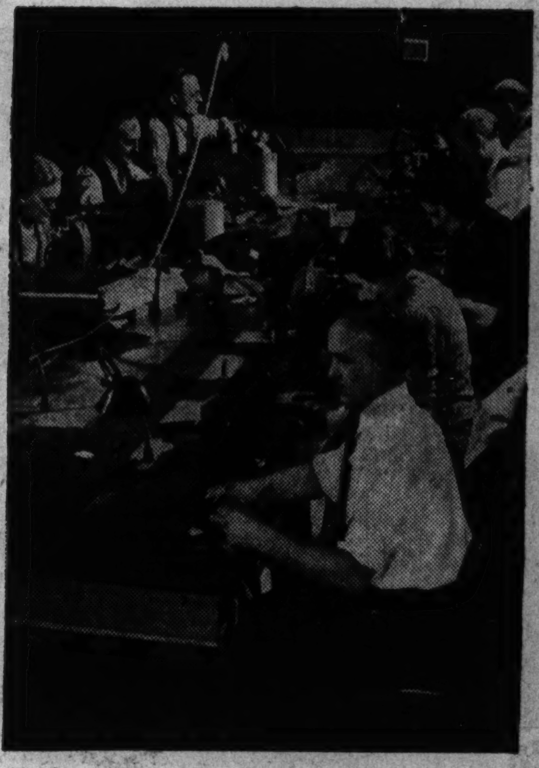
Mass Production of Uniforms calls for Electric Power

In making uniforms for the millions of men in America's armed forces—the Army, the Navy and the Marines—electric power is a vital force of mass production.

Electric knives and trimming machines cut out a number of uniforms at one time. High-speed electric sewing machines transform these cuttings into trim, comfortable, long-wearing uniforms. And electric irons apply the finishing touch with careful pressing and re-pressing to meet rigid inspection.

Electric power speeds the production of uniforms just as it speeds the production of tanks and ships and planes.



To keep pace with the mass production cutting machines, these tailors use high-speed electric sewing machines in putting uniform pattern pieces together.

American soldiers, sailors and marines on fighting fronts throughout the world are clothed in uniforms made at record speed with the aid of Electric Power.

CHARGES GENIUS MADE INGENIOUS HUNT FOR A WIFE

Friend's Answer to Suit Recites His Aid.

The quest of a young heir for a pretty candidate for "the job of being Mrs. Genius" was written into the Circuit court records yesterday with the filing of an unusual answer to an unusual suit.

Robert M. Hoffman Jr.

Principals are Richard M. Genius Jr., 35 years old, grandson of the late Charles H. Morse, a founder of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., and Robert M. Hoffman Jr., 38, of Barrington, president of the Bergonize company, a wall processing concern. Genius inherited part of his mother's 3 million dollar estate after her death in 1928.

The case opened Jan. 13 last when Genius filed a suit against Hoffman, his friend and business associate, seeking the recovery of $99,875 which he charged Hoffman obtained from him by raising Genius' personal checks.

Denies Raising Checks.

Hoffman, in his formal reply, filed by Atty. Robert N. Golding, denied the check raising, but admitted receiving large sums of money from Genius which he described as advance payments on a promised inheritance of $150,000 from Genius. Hoffman is married and the father of two children.

Hoffman and Genius met in 1936, became close friends, and in 1939 Genius became a partner in Hoffman's Bergonize company. At the time, Hoffman states, Genius had few friends and was searching for a wife. Also, he hoped to become a successful business man, but, Hoffman alleges, Genius suffered from an inferiority complex. So, Hoffman adds, he joined Genius in the latter's pursuit of success as a business man and of a wife.

The first plan was Genius', namely, to open branch offices of the Bergonize company, advertise for a stenographer, select the prettiest, then hope "thru daily office contact she would learn to respect his business ability, and learn to love him for himself alone"—not for his money.

Four Attempts Fail.

Genius, says Hoffman, agreed to finance the branch offices because "such branch offices were in reality primarily private matrimonial agencies operated by Genius for Genius' own benefit." The first branch office was opened in San Francisco. Romantically, it flopped, says Hoffman. Genius in succession then opened offices in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston with similar discouraging results.

During this period, Hoffman alleges, he was constantly at Genius' beck and call, socially and otherwise, and sometimes "paying off unsuccessful candidates for the position of Mrs. Genius."

Once, says Hoffman, Genius sought a wife at Arthur Murray's dancing school in New York. Other times he stayed at ritzy hotels or went on boat trips. Always, adds Hoffman, he cooperated with Genius to help the latter flee unprofitable hunting grounds by sending him "important business" radiograms or telegrams which gave Genius an excuse for departure.

Recalls Stuffed Letters.

Also, asserts Hoffman, he collaborated with Genius in preparing "stuffies," or blankfilled envelopes, addressed in feminine hand with which Genius "could impress females present as a much sought after business man."

In May, 1940, Hoffman sought to give less time to Genius' affairs, he says, but Genius told him not to worry because he intended to leave him $150,000 in his will. Hoffman suggested "he receive some of the money now," to which Genius allegedly agreed. Thereafter, declared Hoffman, Genius gave him several advance payments; the answer lists checks totaling $17,075.

Other financial items charged by Genius were business expenses, asserts Hoffman, including those involving Genius' quest for Mrs. Genius, which, so far as the suit indicates, is still unrewarded.

KAY KYSER ASKS F. D. R. TO SAVE HIM FROM DRAFT

Claims He's Essential as Morale Builder.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—From the self-styled "Professor of the College of Musical Knowledge"—Kay Kyser—to the President of the United States today went the question: Is morale building a qualification for draft deferment?

Kay Kyser.

Kyser's appeal for deferment from a 1-A classification has gone to the White House, supported by Director Elmer Davis of the office of war information which credited the 36 year old band leader with much of the success of radio's part in its various war campaigns on the home front.

The showman serves without pay as a program consultant for OWI's radio committee.

7 Other Deferments Asked.

In connection with the case, an OWI official disclosed that the agency has asked for draft deferments for seven other radio celebrities holding similar posts in the past, but that the practice was discontinued two months ago.

Douglas Meservey, head of OWI's radio committee, named the eight as Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen, Nelson Eddy, Lanny Ross, Red Skelton, Freeman Gosden [of Amos 'n Andy], Harold Pary [the Great Gildersleeve], and Kyser.

Kyser, Bergen, and Skelton are the only unmarried members of the group, and Kyser, Ross, Skelton, and Pary are the only members under 40, Meservey said.

Kyser's case is the only one that has reached the appeal stage and, altho the OWI no longer asks deferment for other than full time, salaried members of its staff in key positions, Meservey added, the agency is supporting Kyser because his case has stretched out for "four or five months" and withdrawal now would be unfair.

Believes Civil Aid Best.

Kyser appealed on the ground that he could do more for the war in civilian life than in the army.

Meservey said Kyser deserved major credit for aid in framing and putting over the OWI program swinging public support behind various home front war drives—such as the scrap salvage and labor recruiting campaign—thru use of radio. He added that Kyser had spent $104,000 out of his own pocket last year to cover expenses of putting on his programs from camps.

F.D.R. PROCLAIMS CRADLE TO GRAVE SCHEME OF LIFE

Post-War Plan Drafted by Uncle Issued.

dividuals and families thru a general public assistance system.

"Fourth, that where adequate services essential to the health, education, and welfare of the population are not available, public provision should be made for the development of such services."

This portion of the plan called for:

1. Enactment of permanent and temporary disability insurance.

2. Extension of coverage of old age and survivors' insurance and continuing efforts to provide for adequate minimum benefits.

Broader Coverage Urged.

3. Reorganization of the unemployment compensation laws to provide broadened coverage, more nearly adequate payments, incorporating benefits to dependents, payments of benefits for at least 26 weeks, and replacement of present federal-state system by a wholly federal administrative organization and a single national fund.

4. Creation of an adequate general public assistance system thru federal financial aid for a general relief available to the states on an equalizing basis and accompanied by federal standards.

5. Strengthening of the special public assistance programs to provide more adequately for those in need, and a redistribution of federal aid to correspond to differences in needs and financial capacity among the states.

Aid for Vets and Kin.

6. Adequate measures to insure the security of those serving in the armed forces and their families.

The post-war blueprint covers nearly every phase of American life.

The board expressed the conviction that it should be the declared policy of the United States government not only to promote and maintain a high level of national production and consumption, but also:

"To underwrite full employment for the employables;

"To guarantee a job for every man released from the armed forces and the war industries at the close of the war, with fair pay and working conditions;

"To guarantee and, when necessary, underwrite:

"Equal access to security,

"Equal access to education for all,

"Equal access to health and nutrition for all, and

"Wholesome housing conditions for all."

Partnership in Industry.

The post-war phase of the report proposed that the government retain partnership in major industries such as aluminum, magnesium, shipbuilding, aircraft, and the others in which the government has made heavy war investments. This phase of the report also contained recommendations for:

"Demobilization of men from the armed forces and from war industries;

"Demobilization of war plants and of wartime economic controls;

"Plans with private enterprise and for improvement of physical facilities—urban transportation, energy, land, water, and public works."

Also included are plans for the development of activities in health, nutrition, and education—and for social security."

Decent Jobs for All.

Congress also was told that the federal government should accept responsibility "for insuring jobs at decent pay to all those able to work regardless of whether or not they can pass a Means test."

Included in the recommendations for government post-war planning was "consolidation of railroads into a limited number of regional systems" and establishment of interconnected systems of electric transmission lines.

Must Accept These Facts.

In formulating a public aid policy, said the board, the American people must accept the following facts:

1. The need for public aid will be both large and persistent for some time to come.

2. The need for public aid is in large measure caused by serious maladjustments in the operation of our economy and by personal physical or psychological defects, many of which can be remedied.

3. The social problem created by economic insecurity is many sided and requires for its solution a series of diversified programs.

Dealing with the "broad objective of public aid," the report continued:

"The overall objective of public aid should be the assurance of access to minimum security for all our people, wherever they may reside, and the maintenance of the social stability and values threatened when people lack jobs or income."

Then followed a list of six "specific objectives" which included government provision of work for all adults able and willing to work who are not absorbed by private industry and assurance of basic minimum security thru social insurance as far as possible.

Measures for Youth.

Also in this list were such recommendations as:

"Increasing emphasis upon policies aiming at the prevention of economic insecurity thru a fuller utilization of our productive resources, including labor, and by more comprehensive measures to improve the health of our people.

"Appropriate measures to equip young persons beyond the compulsory school attendance age for assuming the full responsibilities of citizenship.

The board also urged creation of a general public assistance system to supply aid on the basis of need and rapid expansion of social services that are essential to health, welfare, and efficiency of the entire population.

Financing by Government.

Turning to financial and administrative principles for the program, the report stated that financing of public aid should be provided as a normal government function "in a revised and reorganized fiscal system." Public aid, even if "compartmentalized," said the board, should be coördinated with the broader economic and monetary policies of the government.

The board members reiterated the opposition of the Roosevelt administration to a sales tax, asserting that reliance upon consumption and earmarked taxes should in general be avoided. Such levies fall heaviest upon the poor, they asserted, and it would be contradictory to attempt to collect the largest share of funds for financing the program from the very groups the program is designed to aid.

State Coöperation Preferred.

Federal and state coöperation in administering the program is preferable as a general principle, the report went on, but the allocation of responsibility should be determined by [a] the capacity of the different governmental units to exercise financial, policy forming, technical, and routine functions and [b] the national importance of the attainment of the objectives in any given program.

Following are other points in this phase of the report.

"A distribution of financial responsibility for total public aid costs between the various units of government is advisable and should reflect differences in need and in economic and fiscal capacity.

Objectives Should Be Clear.

"The objectives of the various special programs should be clearly stated and distinguishable, and the beneficiaries of each should be those, and only those, for whom the specific program is appropriate.

"In jointly administered programs special attention should be paid to defining as logically and clearly as possible the respective responsibilities of the participating governments and to developing techniques for coöperative action.

"The advantages of administrative decentralization should be explored to the full, especially thru a more constructive development of the regional basis of organization.

Trained Personnel.

"The personnel administering public aid programs should be fully qualified by training and experience for the performance of tasks which call for a high degree of skill and professional competence.

"Citizen participation in policy and program operation should be encouraged wherever this is consistent with sound and impartial administration.

In its "specific programs," the board envisioned federal work programs for those willing and able to work; programs for youth, including educational grants for those above compulsory school age; work programs for the handicapped; broad revision of the social insurances, and a comprehensive general public assistance program.

Federal Works Program.

With regard to the federal works programs, the report urged creation of a federal works agency on a permanent basis to develop and administer the projects. State and local governments should be encouraged to intensify their efforts toward long range planning, said the board, with a view to "maximizing" the amount of work during periods of economic depression.

In minute detail, the report set forth recommendations that the character of such projects reflect the changing needs of the nation, that performance standards be equal to those required in private industry and that eligibility for employment be determined by relative employability and need for work.

Disability Insurance Asked.

The report specified that the federal government should carry the major financial responsibility for the work programs as well as the major responsibility for their operation.

Expansion of social security to include disability insurance and extension of unemployment compensation to cover many workers, including farm employés, not now under the program were also recommended. The unemployment benefits should be extended to 26 weeks, said the board, and the present federal-state system should be replaced by a wholly federal organization.

Extension of the old age and survivors insurance was another point on which the board urged action thru proper legislation.

FORBIDS YOUTH TO DRIVE CAR.

Judge N. J. Bonelli in Boys' court yesterday ordered Francis West, 17 years old, 2518 Flournoy street, not to drive an automobile until after July 9. West was found guilty of reckless driving.

PLENTY OF MEAT, SHOES, AND OIL FOUND IN CANADA

beef marked with the blue brand stamp.

The floor walker was obviously confused. "Now how did that ever get there?" he said.

"Them gremlins?" I asked. "O, no, not gremlins," he laughed. "This must be an unusual marketing day." And saying that he hurried away.

The only rationing Canada has today is on butter, tea, sugar, coffee and gasoline. You can get half a pound of butter a week, one ounce of tea or four ounces of coffee and half a pound of sugar per week per person. Children under 12 years of age can't get the tea or coffee.

The Canadian sugar ration is the same as that in the United States. The Canadian coffee allotment is greater than that here, where the ration now is a pound every six weeks, with no coffee for a child under 15! Butter and tea are not rationed in the United States, altho the office of price administration has announced that butter rationing will begin when that for meat is started, probably about April 1. While no figures have been given on the probable butter ration, it has been unofficially reported that it would be about a quarter pound per person a week.

Starting April, 1 gasoline will be rationed at the rate of 120 imperial gallons per year, when all cars save those in special categories go into what is known as a AA rating. An imperial gallon is roughly equivalent to a fifth more than an American gallon. This means that the average Canadian will receive slightly less than three American gallons of gas per week after the changeover from the present system is made. Representatives of the dominion oil controller's office say, however, that they have the power to cut the average car owner to less than this amount unless he can prove essentiality.

Present Ration 3 Gallons.

Right now Canadians are driving their cars under a multiple category arrangement similar to our A, B, and C ratings. Cars in the lowest, or A-1, category originally received 60 units of five imperial gallons each per year. This was later cut to four gallons per unit and then dropped to three gallons, the present status. Other categories which are to be eliminated include A-2, A-3, B, BX, C, D, E, and what is known as the "commercial" classification.

Cars in the latter group are permitted to make gasoline purchases as needed. They include farm vehicles, ambulances, taxicabs, and drive yourself machines regularly used and registered for hire. You can walk into any drive yourself establishment and the attendant will fill the tank of the rented automobile to the brim. After you have used the full amount you can return it and it will be filled again and as often as you have inclination to pay the mileage bill.

KENTUCKY FARM FAMILIES MOVE TO NEW LANDS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10 (AP).—Traveling in a special railroad car, under auspices of the farm security administration, wives and children of Kentucky farmers recently transferred by FSA to farms in New Jersey and Pennsylvania labor shortage areas, arrived here today en route to join their husbands and fathers.

The group, which included 89 persons, 68 of them children, left Winchester, Ky., yesterday. Largest family was that of Mrs. Flora Williams, who was accompanied by 10 children. One son remained in Kentucky to work in the mines and another is in the army.

The trip, Mrs. Williams said, "wasn't a bit of trouble. We'd be glad to go any place to help out in the war."

Bing Crosby Falls; Auto Runs Over His Left Leg

Hollywood, Cal., March 10 (AP).—Crooner Bing Crosby leaped from an automobile and fell last night as he was hurrying to catch the last Los Angeles bound train from Phoenix, Ariz. One wheel of the car passed over his left leg. Bing made the train, tho his companions, Johnny Burke and Jim Van Heusen, had to carry him on. Bing's business manager-brother, Larry, said Bing's injuries apparently consist of bruises and cuts. He will be in bed a week.

NOW! This Amazing New 8-Vitamin, 9-Mineral Tablet Takes The Place Of All Less Potent Preparations!

1. STAMS MEET ALL MINIMUM U. S. GOVERNMENT REQUIREMENTS FOR 5 VITAMINS!

2. STAMS GIVE YOU 3 ADDITIONAL B COMPLEX VITAMINS PLUS 9 MINERALS!

3. STAMS MEET PRINCIPLE APPROVED BY OFFICIAL DOCTORS' COMMITTEE*

IF YOU ARE NOT UP TO PAR BECAUSE YOUR DIET LACKS VITAMINS AND MINERALS NATURE CAN GIVE YOU MORE VITALITY AND PEP WITH STAMS!

Full Potency Is Guaranteed Including 5 Vitamins Of The B Complex

Banishes The Guesswork And High Cost For The Average Person

NOW at last! One of the world's largest producers does for vitamins and minerals what Henry Ford did for the automobile: banishes the guesswork; banishes the high cost.

A remarkable new invention that takes the place of less potent vitamin supplements for the average person because it gives you 8 vitamins and 9 minerals—17 elements in all!

And includes full minimum amounts of all 5 vitamins for which daily adult requirements have been established by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration ... plus added amounts of 3 additional B Complex Vitamins ... plus 9 minerals.

Full Potency Guaranteed

The name of this new 8-vitamin, 9-mineral tablet is Stams. It is based on the multi-vitamin principle approved by the committee on vitamins of America's leading medical association. Full potencies—including vitamins of the B Complex—are guaranteed as stated on the package, or your money back. Thus, by taking Stams, you know you get full potency of all 8 vitamins and 9 minerals.

3 Out Of 4 People Fail To Eat A Good Diet

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture authorities say 3 out of 4 people fail to eat a good diet. Thus, they do not get enough vitamins or minerals or other dietary essentials.

Even worse—most people know little about which to take—thus don't know which to buy—and probably couldn't afford the price anyway.

But, if you are one of the millions whose diet is deficient in vitamins and minerals, Nature can give you more vitality and pep with Stams.

Because in Stams you get all 8 vitamins and all 9 minerals listed in the chart. Yet you pay only about 5¢ a day—⅓ the price of a package of cigarettes.

Get Stams at any drug counter today. Take 3 tablets a day—every day. You'll be glad you did.

*Based on Multi-Vitamin Principle Approved By Committee on Vitamins of America's Leading Medical Association

ADMITS KILLING SISTER, 6, BECAUSE 'SHE WAS NOISY'

Flint, Mich., March 10 [Special].—John Wesley May, 16 years old, an addict of movie thrillers and detective stories, was charged with first degree murder today after he confessed to torturing and killing his 6 year old sister, Emmogene, "because she was noisy."

Prosecutor John Roach quoted him as telling the following story:

He was alone in the house when Emmogene returned from school for lunch yesterday. She was noisy and paid no attention when he asked her to be quiet, so he tied her hands behind her with rawhide.

Then he gagged her with a towel, cut away her underclothes, and mutilated her with an arrowhead. He denied he raped her, altho Coroner J. K. Sutherland said an attempt apparently was made.

"I guess I was mad and she was kind of tormented, so I shot her," John said.

With a .22 rifle bullet in her abdomen, the girl walked to the kitchen and asked her brother to take off the rawhide thong, which he did. Then, as she lay on the floor, he shot her twice more. Her body was found by another sister when she returned from school. John was arrested hours later when he came out of a movie.

CIGARET CAUSES $200 FIRE.

A cigaret left on a divan set fire to the rooms of a social club on the second floor at 955 North Ashland avenue yesterday, causing damage of $200.

IDENTIFY 2 NAVY OFFICERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Newport, R. I., March 10 (AP).—Two officers, who were killed in the crash of a naval plane near Richmond yesterday, were identified today as Ensign Robert Francis Wolf, 21, of South Clinton, Ia., and Ensign Robert Foster Crater, 21, of Gardena, Cal.

Two Army Flyers Die.

Eagle Pass, Tex., March 10 (AP).—First Lt. Lucian A. Marsh Jr., Mill Valley, Cal., and Aviation Cadet Malvern L. Hilliard, Pittsburgh, Pa., were killed yesterday in the crash of their training plane 25 miles northeast of here.

Marine Captain Killed.

Pensacola, Fla., March 10 (AP).—Capt. Lex Miller Christensen, marine corps reserve, was killed yesterday when two navy planes collided near here. Three other flyers parachuted to safety. Capt. Christensen was an instructor at the Pensacola naval air training center. His home was in Salt Lake City.

Iowa Pilot Killed.

New York, March 10 (AP).—The eastern defense command announced that an army fighter plane crashed this afternoon near Old Saybrook, Conn. The pilot who was killed was identified as 2d Lt. Clyde E. Dodds, 26 years old, son of Nathan B. Dodds of 806 Cedar street, Charles City, Ia.

$613 OVERCOATS STOLEN.

ILLINOIS SENATE PASSES MOVE TO BLOCK 4TH TERM

Democrats Duck Argument on Resolution.

BY JOHNSON KANADY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 10.—A Republican invitation for an argument on the question of third and fourth terms for presidents of the United State was rejected today by state senate Democrats, who failed to fight the Searcy resolution seeking a constitutional amendment limiting presidential terms to two.

The resolution was approved by the executive committee and was adopted by the senate by voice votes. Later in the day Republicans tried to force a roll call on the adoption in an effort to place Democrats on the record, but Sen. Richard J. Daley [D., Chicago], minority floor leader, forestalled the attempt thru exercise of a point of order.

The resolution was expected to win speedy adoption by the house next week. Copies then would be sent to the congress and to other state legislatures, which would be asked to pass similar resolutions.

Could Force Convention.

Under the fifth article of the constitution, congress is obliged to call a convention for the purpose of amending the constitution if two thirds of the state legislatures so request. The Illinois resolution, introduced yesterday by Sen. Earle Benjamin Searcy [R., Springfield], asks that a 22d amendment be adopted, limiting the tenure of any president to two four year terms.

Republicans have hailed the move as one of the first concrete utterances by an elected body against a fourth term for President Roosevelt, which is being pushed.

Only Democrat to make any move today to take up the challenge in defense of the party head was Sen. John M. Lee [D., Chicago], who said "If people don't want a man for four terms, he will be kicked out pretty quick."

Praise Jeffers' Efforts.

In another resolution the senate commended William M. Jeffers, rubber director, for his attempts to improve the nation's rubber situation, and chastised "other agencies of the federal government" for curbing the Jeffers program.

Approval was granted for the creation of a joint legislative committee to "study the causes of the present serious plight of small business in Illinois" and of possible remedies.

ASKS WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY MOVE TO BAN 4TH TERM

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10 [Special].—Lansing Hoyt, former Republican county chairman and Republican candidate for congress in Milwaukee's 5th district in last fall's primary election, today asked that the Wisconsin legislature pass a resolution asking congress to limit the tenure of office of the President of the United States to two four year terms.

Hoyt said his action was suggested by the introduction of a similar resolution in the Illinois state senate yesterday by Sen. Earle Benjamin Searcy [R., Springfield]. The senate today passed Searcy's resolution.

Hoyt's request to the Madison body was contained in a telegram to Sen. Milton T. Murray [R., Milwaukee] which read:

"In accordance with article 5 of the United States Constitution, I urge you to introduce immediately a bill calling upon congress to call a convention for the purpose of drafting a constitutional amendment limiting the tenure of any President to two four year terms. An overwhelming majority of the voting citizens favor this action, I am sure."

SEEK TO REBATE FOURTH OF SALES TAX TO COUNTIES

G.O.P. Girds for Fight on Assembly Move.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 10.—A measure introduced today in the Illinois house to rebate 25 per cent of state sales tax collections to county government brought prompt Republican preparations to fight the move. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce sponsored the bill and is enlisting the aid of other organizations to help pass it.

Democrats need only eight G. O. P. votes to get the bill thru the house and may be helped by the temptation which the promised easy money holds for the 102 counties. In the senate there is a better chance to defeat the measure, it was indicated by opinions expressed in a Republican caucus last night.

"We'll have to be against the bill," said House Majority Leader Reed F. Cutler [R., Lewistown]. "This is no time to jeopardize the state's hard won solvency."

Hints Democratic Plot.

"This bill smells too much like a Democratic plot to suit me," said Rep. Ragnar G. Nelson [R., Chicago]. "The Democrats would like to wreck the Republican state administration to improve their chances in next year's election. Cook county has the only county government that has squandered itself to the edge of bankruptcy."

Disagreement was expressed by Rep. Franklin U. Stransky [R., Savanna], who, with Rep. Henry J. White [D., Somonauk], introduced the bill.

"Despite the lament about declining state revenues, almost $2,500,000 was added to the state surplus in February," Stransky said.

Under the bill, counties would share in one fourth of the sales tax collections on the basis of population. They would be required to reduce their property tax levies by the amount received.

Offers "Home Rule" Bill.

A "home rule" bill was introduced by Rep. Harold D. Kelsey [R., Barrington]. It would give all municipalities, including Chicago, the power to make any law which is not contrary to the federal and state Constitutions.

Public utilities have opposed "home rule" bills, for fear their franchises might be upset, McLarty said. For this reason the Kelsey bill specifically states that it would not affect the jurisdiction of the state commerce commission.

Cited as illustrative of the manner in which the legislature steps in to city government was a bill introduced today by Rep. Robert H. Allison [R., Pekin] to forbid policemen to work more than eight hours a day and six days a week in municipalities with populations between 5,000 and 200,000.

SPANGLER WARNS PARTY LEADERS ON SMEAR DRIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican national committee, today warned the country to be on guard against "smearing tactics of the New Dealers aimed at congress and Republican leaders."

Harrison E. Spangler.

The statement was contained in the first of a series of bulletins to be sent from national committee headquarters to party workers thruout the country as a part of the program planned by Spangler for more intensive 1943 organization leading up to the 1944 elections.

"The drive to perpetuate President Roosevelt in the White House, which Republicans predicted when the New Deal party put over the third term, is now upon us," he said. "The coat tail riders and the burocrats have again been turned loose to connive and scheme for the fourth term at a time when winning the war and bringing our boys home should be our first consideration.

Hoover Made a Target.

"With this drive has come a new wave of smearing and below the belt attacks upon any who oppose the New Deal. What the New Deal cannot prove, it asserts; what it dares not assert, it whispers." Spangler cited recent New Deal smears.

"On Washington's birthday, honoring the father of our country, President Roosevelt turned from quoting scripture to imply that all who labor to correct the shortcomings of the New Deal are to be classed with Benedict Arnold, or are tools of Hitler," he said.

"On the same evening, Vice President Wallace poured out over the air a new smear upon former President Hoover—presumably because Mr. Hoover has sought to prevent a breakdown of the nation's food supply in the wake of 10 years of misplanning by Mr. Wallace.

"Even in the war publication, Victory, published by the government of the United States thru the office of war information, the smear technique is used against Republicans while a glowing picture of Roosevelt is painted, at government expense.

Anticipates New Attacks.

"The Republican party, in its march to a national victory, welcomes the presentation of a large number of brilliant and competent Americans as candidates for the presidency. We can be sure that each of them will have to suffer the smear machinery of the New Deal party and its allies among radical publications turned upon them during the coming months as the White House carries forward the fourth term program. Each will have to submit to a running fire of vituperation and deceit.

"This foreign technique of political purge and liquidation can be defeated and destroyed if all of us are vigilant, if we watch for and recognize the smears and the whispering campaigns, and denounce them when they appear."

TRANSIT MERGER COULD PAY OUT, ATTORNEYS AVER

Counsel Present Case to State Commission.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Assertions that the proposed unified Chicago traction company would have enough passengers and revenues to carry out every promise of its sponsors were made yesterday by attorneys arguing before the Illinois commerce commission.

The unification plan, which contemplates the issue of 179 million dollars of securities with which the surface and elevated lines properties would be acquired, cannot be put into effect without permission of the I. C. C. Two examiners for the commission drew up a lengthy report condemning the scheme as unsound financially and not in the public interest, and the arguments were directed namely at alleged errors of fact and conclusions in the report.

Carry 970 Million Annually.

William J. Friedman, one of the five attorneys appointed to present the case for the merger to the I. C. C., declared that the two traction systems are carrying passengers at the rate of 970 million annually, with gross revenues of $83,179,000. This is sufficient, he said, to cover all operating expenses, city compensation, ample renewal and depreciation reserves, federal taxes and bond interest [under the consolation setup] and leave more than $4,500,000 available for bond interest and modernization.

It was logical to assume, Friedman said, that the 970 million traffic level would prevail thru the war period and that passengers carried would not fall off more than 40 million in the post-war years. He contended that 930 million passengers would be enough to pay all charges and leave $2,767,000 for debt retirement and modernization.

Francis X. Busch, also representing the proposed company, outlined the history of Chicago traction since the days of the first horse cars. It was traditional, he said, for the city to demand compensation for use of its streets and also to make provisions in each transportation ordinance for municipal ownership under certain conditions.

Represents Years of Work.

He related that the plan as it stands represents nearly seven years of hard work and compromise. The city ordinance embodying it, and passed in 1941, is not perfect, he said but is in line with the traditions of 60 years. He gave his opinion that the ordinance would stand in the courts and defended the terminable permit or franchise to be given the proposed company. The examiners had called this permit a "perpetual franchise."

Busch derided the suburban towns and villages which have opposed being placed, by the terms of the plan, under a transit board appointed by the mayor of Chicago.

"The villages exist because of Chicago," he said, "and they have no home rule now."

Atty. Thomas L. Marshall is to finish the arguments for the consolidation side today.

The commission is expected to hand down its decision in a short time.

Plan to Induct 1,000 on 23d Birthday of Moose Lodge

Greater Chicago Lodge No. 3, Loyal Order of Moose, will celebrate its 23d anniversary March 19-21 in its headquarters at 130 North Wells street. THE QUESTION.

What is the best news you've heard from home? [Asked of service men.]

WHERE ASKED.

Service Men's center, 176 West Washington street.

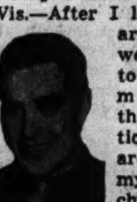
THE ANSWERS.

Pvt. John R. Cobb, St. Croix Falls, Wis.—Before I left to join the army my father had wanted to buy a farm. He couldn't find what he wanted then so he put it off. The other day I received a letter saying that we were now the owners of just the kind of a small farm we'd been wanting.

Edward H. Woods, chief petty officer, Cleveland, O.—My wife wrote me a cheerful bit of news in the last letter. She said she had put in a standing order for a turkey and as soon as I come home it will be delivered and then roasted. I'll be going home pretty quick now, so that letter looks better every time I read it.

Winstone W. Bell, aircraftsman, South Wales, Great Britain — The very best news I've had was from my 20 year old son, who is also in the army. After several weeks had elapsed I had a letter from him saying he had safely reached his overseas destination. It's hard for us to keep track of each other, so letters are a real binding link.

Arnold Schwenin, radio technician, Clarkston, Wash.—Some of the best news I've had has been the simple unexciting news. For instance I was glad to hear that my younger brother enlisted in the navy and that the friend of mine who was missing in the South Pacific had been located. It's nice to hear about the home town boys.



Corp. Farrell Russell, Lake Geneva, Wis.—After I left home to join the army I knew our home would seem quite empty to my father and mother. Of course, they've never mentioned it but now they are rejoicing because my sister and her two children are traveling all the way from Colorado to pay a long visit. They're very happy about it.

Pvt. Edward D. Kozoro, Detroit, Mich.—It's good news every time I get a letter from home if it begins with "Everybody is fine." I was glad to hear about my industrious 9 year old sister. She has joined the Girl Scouts and her letters are full of what she's doing for the Red Cross and her country. That does my heart good.

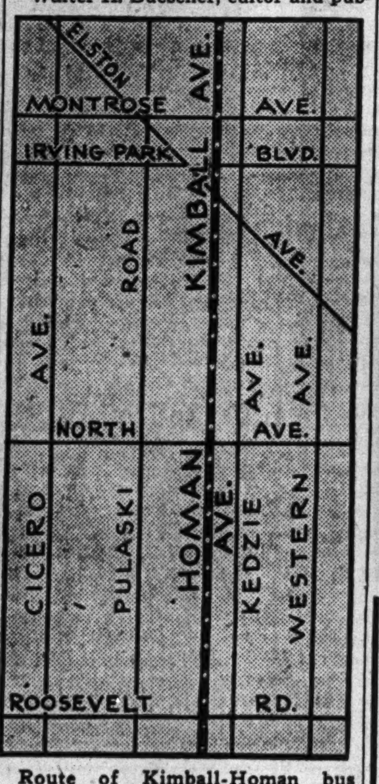
Report Spinal Meningitis 600% Greater Than in '42

Dr. Edward A. Pisczek, director of the Cook county health unit, said yesterday that an outbreak of spinal meningitis, with six times the number of cases reported at the same time last year, has occurred in Illinois this month. The increase is in the same proportion in Chicago and Cook county, he said. The disease in its mild form is frequently mistaken for intestinal influenza, Dr. Pisczek said. March, April, and May are the months in which it is most prevalent.

APPEAL FOR BUS LINE IS SENT ODT BY WAR WORKERS

A committee of five members, representing 21 west side war plants and 12,000 war workers, left yesterday for Washington, D. C., to appeal, at the request of Mayor Kelly, for restoration of the Kimball-Homan bus line, which was discontinued on Dec. 1.

Walter H. Buescher, editor and publisher of two west side community newspapers and chairman of the committee for the restoration of the Kimball-Homan bus line, said he would present to officials of the office of defense transportation requests from the war plants to reinstate the bus service.



Route of Kimball-Homan bus line, restoration of which is sought.

The committee's plea, Buescher said, is based on four problems encountered by the war plants since the line was discontinued: absenteeism, tardiness, sickness, and labor turnover.

Careful Survey Made.

Officials of the ODT will be told, the committee said, that a careful survey of the Kimball-Homan area had shown the bus line provided no duplication of service and that without its transportation facilities a serious decline in man hours and production had resulted.

The committee pointed out that the closest street car lines in the three mile area bounded on the east by Western avenue and on the west by Cicero avenue are the lines on Kedzie avenue and Pulaski road, which are a mile apart.

The committee chairman said there were no thru streets in the Kimball-Homan area, which has a population of 448,000, including war workers. There is no north or south transportation except that which was afforded by the Kimball-Homan bus line, Buescher declared.

Labor Turnover a Result.

Each of the 21 industries had complained of its labor turnover, reporting that many employés left Kimball-Homan industries to accept jobs with companies where better transportation facilities were offered. Increased illness has resulted, Buescher also said, from employés of the area waiting long periods for street cars, some of which are too crowded to pick up additional passengers.

Slow schedules of the cars, Buescher explained, result in tardiness; absenteeism results from the illness caused by waiting or walking in inclement weather.

Other members of the committee are: Alderman Joseph S. Gillespie of the 29th ward, representing Mayor Kelly; A. K. Olden, official of the Chicago Screw company; Joseph Denenberg of the Chicago Television and Radio corporation, and E. C. Woodside of the Chicago Transformer company.

$2,000 FIRE LOSS IN BUNGALOW.

Fire started by a defective heating pipe caused $2,000 damage yesterday in a frame bungalow at 5347 South Nordica avenue owned by George Chmiel.

'INNOCENT,' SAYS ACCUSED CICERO BOARD MEMBER

The first of the 11 defendants accused of mulcting Cicero school district 99 of $7,092 in overcharges on supplies and equipment sold by a dummy firm took the witness stand in Criminal court yesterday to deny the charges.

Under examination by Harold Levy, counsel for nine former members of the school board, George Schwebel, school superintendent and Henry Kroll, a supplies dealer, Joseph Idizaszek, a member of the finance committee in 1941, said he had not conspired with any one regarding purchases and had not accepted any payments.

Idizaszek, still a member of the board, has been employed by the Western Electric company 35 years. He said he believed he had not been present at a meeting in the spring of 1941 when the board approved bills totaling more than $13,000 for the Louis Farber company.

ADM. STANDLEY CALLS STALIN.

Altho the premonitions are all over the place, it would be altogether out of character if any one in the Washington administration foresaw that Stalin was about to double-cross his allies. He has proclaimed his disregard of the war aims as announced, chiefly by Mr. Roosevelt, and he is obviously undertaking now to justify his future actions by reiterating that Russia is fighting the war in Europe alone.

His references to the millions of Russians killed, and to the lack of a second front, and his disparagement of British and American contributions to the war serve notice on the allies that their voice at a peace table should be a thin one. He prepares the Russian people to be intolerant of any suggestions from abroad and of any peace terms affecting Stalin's desire or the soviet interests. This is all plain enough.

Slap Happy Henry Wallace has found some reason to say, if not believe, that the United States is about to double-cross Russia and, if it does, will prepare for World War No. 3. Henry's theme song is that the Russian people and the American people must work together for the salvation of the world. Just at present the Russian people in their foreign relations are Josef Stalin and no other. If Mr. Wallace doesn't know Mr. Stalin's character and life's work some one should take him aside and talk to him, not, however, with the thought that it will do much good.

Into these developing events Adm. Standley American ambassador in Moscow, has suddenly projected himself with a startling discourse. He called in the newspaper and radio reporters and, talking for public information, accused the soviet government of deliberately misrepresenting the American aid to Russia, of refusing to permit any military observers to go with the Russian armies, of misleading its own people, and clouding the true contributions of America and Great Britain in the war.

Such a procedure on the part of an ambassador, attacking a government in the open instead of taking up a grievance with the foreign office, would, in natural course, result in his immediate dismissal or recall. One line of conjecture holds that Adm. Standley acted on his own impulses and expressed his own indignation. Another line is that he was instructed to do so with the foreknowledge that he would be disavowed, as he has been, and might find himself, in consequence of obeying orders, retired in disgrace as an indiscreet and incompetent representative of his government. He has been disavowed, but the reporters observed that Mr. Sumner Welles of the state department was quite good natured about it and seemed to have taken no offense.

The response of the soviet government was also out of the usual order. It immediately put on the air the full statement which Mr. Stettinius made the other day regarding the large contribution of materials of all sorts to Russia. And there we're left guessing. It may be that Stalin decided that he had a bit overplayed his hand in giving out warnings of his intentions and that he backtracked a little rather than do what an autocrat naturally would do—fire the ambassador out of the country.

If any one in Washington has the idea that Josef Stalin is going to double-cross his present companions in arms at the first opportunity which suits his convenience and serves his interest, that person has a harder head and a clearer mind than would have been looked for there. At the present it is too strange to believe. However, the good has been done and it is good and not unfortunate, as Slap Happy Henry would have us believe.

The future will not be made the better by a total misapprehension of what Stalin is capable of doing. Apologists for him say he is a realist. That description does not justify or encourage confidence in his acts. They will be in character, and that character is bad.

HIRING HALLS.

By its refusal to force Great Lakes ore carriers to obtain their crews from union hiring halls, the war labor board has protected the nation's steel production.

Had the hiring hall demand of the National Maritime union been met the Communist draft dodgers among its leaders would have been permitted to dictate who should man the steamers that keep the iron ore flowing from the Lake Superior ranges to the mills. Ship captains under the hiring hall system cannot reject a man sent them by the union business agent unless the business agent agrees.

Hiring halls originated in the ocean shipping ports where unscrupulous shipping companies first used them to blacklist sailors who had been active in unionizing their fellows. When the union got control of the halls away from the ship owners it abused the privilege as thoroly as any employer had.

As the hiring halls operate on the Atlantic coast, a sailor rarely ships out for more than one voyage on the same vessel. The man who is shifted from job to job, suffering an insecurity which makes him dependent upon the union that imposes it, is not likely to develop any attachment for any employer or captain.

If this constant shifting of crews had been inflicted on Great Lakes shipping it would have wiped out the system of promotion on merit which most of the shipping companies practice. Many of their captains rose from the deck force of the boats.

Constant changes of personnel make it impossible to train an efficient crew. Not only is time lost by the crew changes, but the ships and the lives of their crews are endangered. Even if all of the men obtained from the hiring halls were equally efficient, which they are not, their unfamiliarity with one another, with their officers, and with the ship and its equipment would form a constant hazard to the safety of all.

Altho it refused the union demand that the hiring hall be imposed on Great Lakes shipping, the labor board made the novel requirement on the ore boat lines that each must hire a specified percentage of union members. By the law of averages the lines would do about this anyway if present membership in the union remained unchanged. But if union membership tends to drop off, as the union members get wise to the Communist activities of their leaders, the percentage requirement will operate to reward the fellow travelers who stick by Joe Curran, and penalize those who repudiate his leadership.

HANG ON TO YOUR HATS!

The report of the controler of the currency summarized in the financial section of Tuesday's TRIBUNE revealed how rapidly purchasing power in the United States is expanding. During 1942 the national banks of the country alone had an increase in deposits amounting to more than 11 billion dollars. The gain was larger than the aggregate deposits of national, state, mutual savings, and private banks in 1900.

The national banks have about 45 per cent of the total deposits of all banks. Assuming that the deposits of other banks increased in the same proportion, the aggregate expansion of deposits last year was more than 24 billion dollars. Nothing like this has ever before occurred. The deposit increase of all banking institutions in the United States was 19¾ billions for the entire five year period of 1915 to 1920, which included the terrific war and post-war price inflation.

The controler's figures show the source of the deposits growth. National bank deposits increased $11,094,000,000 in response to an increase of $11,752,000,000 in United States government security holdings. The government sold the national banks 11 billion dollars' worth of bonds and the banks paid for them by writing up their deposit liabilities by 11 billion dollars credited to government deposit account. Thru government spending 11 billion got distributed among the accounts of individuals and corporations. That is where the 11 billion dollars of extra spending money came from.

These figures suggest what is likely to happen this year. The government deficit will run to about 65 billion dollars. To finance this deficit the government will sell 65 billion dollars' worth of new securities and a good 30 billions of the total is probably to be absorbed by the banks. Thus bank deposits in 1943 seem destined to rise another 30 billion dollars, bringing the two years' expansion up to 55 billion dollars. What 30 billion dollars more of purchasing power can do to prices is not pleasant to contemplate.

Meanwhile, everything possible short of hampering the conduct of the war ought to be done to reduce what the government is spending. Dr. Melchior Palyi, in his letter published in the Voice of the People last Sunday, stated that expenditures could safely be cut by as much as 10 to 15 billion dollars. If surplus spending funds can be kept down by these amounts, time should not be lost in making the curtailments. Any economy move will have to come from congress. Nothing can be expected from the administration, which has asserted that the size of the debt does not matter for we only owe it to ourselves anyhow.

INVASIONS OF THE HOME HAD BEEN FORETOLD.

A man in clothing resembling a uniform, wearing a star on his coat and a badge on his cap, announced himself to a Gary housewife as an inspector from the OPA and demanded admission to search her home. He said the OPA had been informed that she was a hoarder and that it was his duty to establish the truth or falsity of the charge. The housewife admitted him and two assistants. Only then did the supposed OPA snoopers identify themselves as robbers. They tied up the housewife and her maid, cracked a safe, and escaped with $20,000, the life savings of the housewife's father.

When the OPA specified penalties of up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for failure to declare stores of rationed foods, it invited this sort of thing. Recently snoopers without warrants invaded homes in Baltimore, Md. The householders remembered enough of Leon Henderson's threats and had heard enough other burocrats sound off to expect their privacy to be violated. They may have heard that a home was safe from unreasonable search and seizure by provision of the Constitution. They may have known that the law required issuance of a warrant before a search could be made. But they were no longer certain that these ancient rights and immunities still applied.

Under the New Deal, even before the war, the people had become habituated to administrative tyranny. When war came they saw government by law yield to a concept of government by executive decree. Every administrative agency developed a whole body of law all its own. The people no longer knew where their rights began or ended. They were so conditioned to violation of their liberties that any impostor with a uniform and a badge pushing his way into their homes seemed plausible. It would be unbelievable if we didn't see the evidence before us.

BELLY LETTERS.

We learn from the advertising pages of one of the literary magazines that a New York publisher has brought out a volume entitled "Nervous Stomach Trouble." The world of letters has long been waiting for an artist to illuminate this subject and now the long wait is ended. There are "49 revealing chapters," together constituting, we have no doubt, a work of great charm and power.

The publisher's confidence in this book matches that of the makers of Peruna and Wine of Cardui in their products. Thus the prospective reader is told that if he doesn't feel better after a month's trial of the book he can have his money back and no questions asked. Not since Aristotle's Catharsis has a literary work been sold on terms so fair and attractive.

It is of interest to observe that testimonials are of as much value in disposing of great books as in selling great medicines. Thus the publisher quotes a former sufferer, Mr. J. D. of Chapel Hill, N. C., as saying "I found it very valuable." The Rev. Mr. C. of Sumter, S. C., reports as a humanitarian that he has "told dozens about it." Miss B. M. of Greenwood, Miss., says in ecstacy: "The very finest book I have ever read on troubles of the Digestive Tract."

Some day we are going to visit Miss M. in her plantation home not so much to admire the oleanders as to examine her matchless collection of Digestive Tractiana.

WHAT PRICE FIELD MARSHALS?

The President's desire to wave his magic wand and give the American armies a field marshal or two, so that they may meet the military big shots of the globe on an equal footing, has aroused this column's curiosity about the origin of that topflight ranking. It proves to be a long and complicated story.

Marshals of the pure blood came out of France and hark back to the dark ages when kings conversed and issued bulletins in a queer form of Latin. In early Frankish days they were masters of the horse soldiery, called marescalci. In the middle ages the marshals, who were fairly numerous, were outranked by the constable—another title that came out of the horse barns. Feudalism carried the marshal into the English and Scottish military nobility.

* * *

The French marshals pegged along quietly thru the centuries until Louis XIV. had his delusions of grandeur and conquest. He created 20 military commanders of this rank—or 21 if you want to count D'Artagnan, who received his baton at the end of "The Three Musketeers" series and then was killed by enemy artillery fire. Then the French marshals simmered down until Napoleon formed a galaxy that surpassed the Sun King's.

* * *

It should be noted that the French title is maréchal de France. Germany invented the field marshal. England imported him in 1736 under George II., who had a sideline as a German prince.

* * *

The full-fledged, unqualified American general is a much rarer bird than the European field marshal and should outrank him in any argument over precedence. Moreover, his title has no civilian associations. No one is likely to associate an American general with the marshals who are senior students at the University of Chicago, or village policemen, or leaders of Labor day parades. And what is a maréchal des logis in the French army? Merely a noncommissioned officer in a cavalry regiment.

MME. CHIANG KAI-SHEK.

A slender matron from an age-old land,
But child and lover of our country, too,
Today you speak to us of what we planned
And what your country also hopes to do.
We marveled when you used our words to tell
How warrior failed, the statesmen, and the sage,
How old indignities their menace swell,
How hope remains to save the present age.

"Mei-Ling," they called you in your orient tongue,
"Life Beautiful," and you did not forget.
In congress halls your words and tones have rung,
And linger still where grizzled cheeks grew wet.
If proof were needed of devotion's power,
Your frail strength brought it at a timely hour.

Chicago's First Earthquakes.

Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1804, was unusually warm at the frontier outpost of Chicago. At 2:10 p. m. a severe shaking of the ground was felt at Fort Dearborn and along the river, followed by a darkening of the sky and a strong hurricane which blew in from the lake and sent high waves rolling up the beach.

In these early years the Mississippi valley, according to the geologists, was undergoing a structural readjustment. The 1804 quake was merely a sample of what was to come in 1811-'12. At 2 a. m., Monday, Dec. 16, 1811, the garrison of Fort Dearborn and the settlers of Chicago were awakened by the creaking, groaning, and cracking of their log houses. Rushing outside, they found the ground in a state of agitation, which continued thru the night.

Days later, news came of earthquake shocks at New Orleans, Natchez, Pittsburgh, Detroit, and the Rivière aux Tranchées in Canada. The ground about New Madrid in Missouri territory was in a state of continual motion. There the earth shook like jelly, and the Father of Waters ran backward and around in circles and eddies, threw waterspouts high into the air, and sent tidal waves 14 feet high rolling over its banks.

The shocks increased in intensity for about a month and then died down, but on Feb. 7, 1812, the severest quakes took place. In Missouri territory the ground rolled in waves for several days. The tremors continued for about a year, and then California had its innings. There the quakes threw the native sons and daughters to the ground. In its annals, 1812-'13 is known as El Año de los Temblores.

Following closely on the great comet of 1811, which hung in the southwestern sky like a portent of doom, and the solar eclipse of Sept. 8, the earthquakes terrified the people, who thought judgment day was on hand. When the Indians started raiding the settlements in early spring they deserted the frontier and streamed back to safety, leaving such outposts as Fort Dearborn more isolated than ever. Captain John.

THE DREAMS OF THE YOUNG.

I see the young go forth to war,
Their treasured dreams laid gently by Till they come home again to claim
Their wealth—or stay to die.

Death might not cheat them overmuch,
For dreams are doubtful gold, 'tis true;
The old set little store by them,
But these boys do!

Letter to an Elusive Lady.

Dear Spring: My latchstring is out for you and the welcome mat is at my door. But hurry, darling, for the senile old fool that sits drooling on my hearth has worn my hospitality threadbare long since, and I know that he won't go until you come. So hurry, hurry! And do be careful that I don't smother you with the impetuosity of my embrace. Donnafred Baker Hoff.

Another connection between the stork [March 4] and the nursery: The female stork protects its young to the utmost. There is a German poem in which a mother stork burns to death in a church fire rather than desert her fledglings. The stork is often referred to in Germany as Freund Adebar. C. O. R.

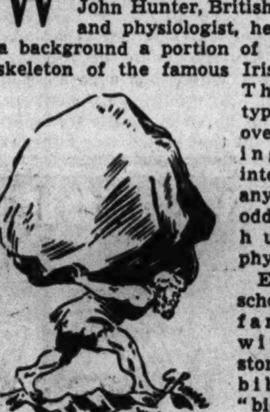
GIANTS AND THE PITUITARY GLAND.

WHEN Joshua Reynolds executed his famous portrait of John Hunter, British surgeon and physiologist, he used as a background a portion of the bony skeleton of the famous Irish giant. Thus he typified the overweening public interest in anything odd in the human physique.



Every schoolboy is familiar with the story of the biblical "big boys," particularly Og, king of Bashan, who had a bedstead nine cubits long. Goliath measured six cubits and a span. The huge men of mythology were so powerful that they could hurl mountains and forests against Olympus, ignoring the lightning of Zeus. In the Mutter medical museum in Philadelphia, there is the skeleton of what is known as the "Kentucky giant."

How do we explain great stature? We have learned that growth is governed by the behavior of the pituitary gland. In fact, there is a close relationship between enlargement of this structure due to tumors and the condition known as acromegaly. In this disorder, the bones of the face, hands, and feet may be greatly overdeveloped.

Normal increase in elevation is extremely unlikely after the process of sexual ripening has been completed. At this period, the lengthening portion of the bones [epiphysis] closes and ceases to elongate. But when extraordinary height is achieved, the individual may present a number of striking characteristics. This is explained by the fact that a pituitary tumor is expanding and indulging in greater activity.

Can anything be done for these unusual people? The physicians of a Boston hospital were privileged to observe a patient for six years. When first seen at 15 years of age, he measured 6 feet 6 inches, weighed 190 pounds, and wore a 16 shoe. X-ray examinations of the skull revealed a large pituitary gland. Roentgen treatments were given over an interval of five years. Despite this procedure, this patient added nine inches, altho the bony pocket housing the gland diminished. Pituitary hormone was administered by injection, which brought some response as it advanced the signs of maturity.

In these cases, the gland is probably engaged in manufacturing an oversupply of the growth factor. At the same time, the ingredient which changes the boy to the man is lacking or is grossly deficient. There remains, however, the suggestion that in extreme instances, surgical removal of the tumor may be indicated.

By and large we may regard giantism as an accident of nature because only rarely will tumors occur within this area of the brain. Occasionally, they will be accompanied by little or no physical handicap. The body may present symmetrical contours.

One victim exhibited but few abnormalities other than excessive size. This chap was the 11th of 13 children and, for several years, made his living as a showman. He towered 7 feet 6¾ inches. Apparently, in his case, the antics ceased before damage was done. In consequence, his life expectancy was not lowered. He was a robust athlete and appeared alert in every respect.

VITAMIN K.

S. writes: What is the function of vitamin K?

REPLY.

It assists the blood to clot. Without it a scratch might cause a severe hemorrhage. It is found in alfalfa, spinach, green leaves, and cabbage. Many physicians prescribe extra quantities for prospective mothers.

CRYPTIC.

A. R. writes: What is cryptitis? What are the symptoms?

REPLY.

Inflammation of a crypt. If the pit occurs in the tonsil the usual symptoms of tonsillitis ensue. Where is the crypt?

NOT EFFECTIVE.

G. writes: Are the sulfa drugs used in syphilis?

REPLY.

No. They are useful against bacteria but not parasites [animal forms].

STOREKEEPER RATION REGISTRARS.

Chicago, March 8.—I note Principal Tate's suggestion this morning on registering for rationing. Mr. Tate is anxious not to cheat the children, but how about the teachers? Does he think any of them would dare not to "volunteer" as he suggests? It was bad enough to go thru the agony of registering to get a No. 2 book, but what would it be if all the people of Chicago had to crowd in between the hours of 3 and 9 p. m. as he suggests.

Why does not Mr. Tate suggest a more simple plan? For instance, since the storekeeper is "trusted" to give out goods for ration coupons, why cannot he also be trusted to give out ration books Nos. 3, 4, etc., on presentation of the current book? A certain stamp in each book could be designated torn out to be exchanged for the new ration book. In this way all the agony of the perfectly unnecessary registering for each new book would be avoided.

Safeguards could be thrown about the books in the same way they are now. Each storekeeper could be charged with a certain number of books and would have to show either a book or a stamp from the old book, as with the present system of exchanging stamps for rationed goods. In this way people could get their ration books in their own stores and much inconvenience and hard labor would be avoided. Since the first two books have been registered, further registering represents only a futile and silly waste of time. RATION BOOKHOLDER.

MOTHER'S DARLING EATS IT UP.

Chicago, March 6.—On Dec. 21 my one and only offspring was inducted; he got the usual seven days furlough and then left Dec. 28 for Camp Grant; after a few days there he was sent to San Francisco where he is at the present time.

From the day he entered the serivce I have heard nothing from him but praise of every one and everything. The people in 'Frisco are "the finest he has met," they vie with each other to give the soldiers a good time; he is with the "swellest bunch of guys on earth," and he has never felt so healthy or so happy in his life. He gained 25 pounds in the two months he is in the service and is ready for anything that comes his way.

This is a boy who in civilian life had a white collar job and I wondered how he would fit into military life. So I hope all the mothers of only sons who are now waiting for that day when they must say "good-by" will say it with a smile. M. R. B.

OPA GESTAPO.

Chicago, March 8.—Housewives and grocery men should take notice. There are now operating on the streets of Chicago two man squads, apparently of military age, driving a government automobile, burning up the gasoline and tires, to see that the housewife buys a stale loaf of bread at the price of fresh, or that the grocery man throws it away, or [illegible] to pick it up and replace it with a fresh loaf. These squads follow bakers' trucks for miles and snoop at the salesman's performance, hoping for a chance to "crack down."

We are told there is a terrific man power shortage, but your taxes and bond money are used to pay salary and expenses for this sort of thing—and a thousand like it.

What does Germany have that we don't have? EYE WITNESS.

WHY THERE IS A FOOD SHORTAGE.

Lebanon, Ind., March 4.—A recent article by an AAA burocrat contains these statements: "We cannot afford to produce a bushel more wheat or a bale more short staple cotton than is actually needed. AAA acreage allotments will again serve as guides for planting the right acreage of needed crops."

According to these statements, if I sow 30 acres of wheat I will harvest exactly 546 bushels. If the AAA can control the sunshine, rain, wheat rust, and various other items, the American farmers will be able to produce the exact number of bushels actually needed. Thus far no one in Washington or elsewhere has been granted sufficient power to control those elements. After 10 years of AAA regimentation, we are faced with a serious food shortage. No one except the Washington planners can be blamed for this condition.

Secretary Wickard was before an agricultural committee a few weeks ago and was told the farmers did not want to go around with a tin cup in their hands. All they wanted was a fair price in the market place. Secretary Wickard said: "You cannot do away with subsidies." When asked why, he replied: "Because the government will lose control of the farms of America."

The way to gain more production and avert the famine which is the goal of the burocrats is to take the ceiling off farm prices and let farm prices rise to cost of production levels. Then we will not need AAA burocrats to regiment the farmers. If the people of this country, especially those in the towns and large cities, do not want to go hungry within the next year, they should tell the house and senate in definite words to scrap the AAA now and forever.

The agriculture department now has 75,613 employés and about 140,000 field committeemen. The American farmers produced ample food during the first World war and can do it again if this army, which is costing the taxpayers millions of dollars yearly, which has preached the theory of scarcity, and which has created the food shortage, is immediately removed from the pay roll. HERSCHELL C. GREGORY.

MORE MALE WAACS?

Chicago, March 4.—Speaking of "male WAACs," you ought to see the dandies in our building—shavetails—first looies, captains, majors, and what'll ya have? All fine husky, healthy looking fellows, many of whom sport medals on their manly chests which read "Pistol Expert."

Each morning about 10 o'clock these warriors may be seen in groups seated in the building restaurant enjoying their coffee-and, cigars, swapping yarns, and [illegible] shell. The early morning recess is not the only one these "male WAACs" enjoy, as most of their time seems to be spent thru the day in the restaurant with their coffee cups and cigars.

I wonder what Corp. Barney Ross, fresh back from Guadalcanal, would say if he could see these "pistol experts" shooting the bull in restaurants instead of shooting the enemy on battle fields. PISTOL.

DISGUSTED WITH TIRE PAYMENT.

Chicago, March 5.—I, too, being "under orders," turned in two tires which were still good for from 8,000 to 10,000 miles. They were as good as any I had left, and must have been as good or better than those of Axel Franzon, who writes today that he received $14.70 in defense stamps for five. This, he says, represented a value "a little below retail trade."

Well, if his slipping "confidence in our government" had to be restored by gobs of war stamps, imagine the state of my none too robust confidence when I received only two 10 cent defense stamps for my tires—just enough to reimburse me for the expense of four telephone calls I had to make before I could get my tires picked up.

Under the fiction of a "sale"—and war necessity—we were induced to waive our constitutional right of having a voice in determining the value of these tires. If confidence in our government is to be preserved—while constitutional guaranties stand adjourned—the substituted processes for determining the rights of citizens should approach the same degree of fairness as guaranteed by the Constitution itself.

There is something wrong with a system which results in such "fair treatment" for one citizen as to inspire him to request a great newspaper to publicize his "feelings" of appreciation, while another citizen is handed such a devastating hunk of injustice as to goad him into making the same request of publicizing his feelings of disappointment, revulsion, and disgust. R. H. MOLITOR.

MINE PAY DEMANDS.

Tulsa, Okla., March 6.—Under the leadership of John L. Lewis, 90,000 anthracite coal miners are demanding a raise in their wages of $2 per day.

This would amount to $56,160,000 per year. This money would pay for more than 112 master bombers to be used on Berlin, Rome, and Tokio. REMBERT GILMAN SMITH.

TURNABOUT.

Chicago, March 8.—Now the city man who never saw a cow must go to work on the farm at $50 a month to replace the farmer's son who is working in the city for $50 a week. Only a college professor can think that up. SHERF.

DIVORCE CASE.

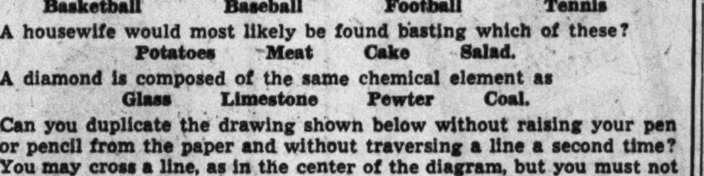
Chicago, March 9 [Legal Friend of the People].—A divorce case was in court once, almost a year ago, but nothing was settled or agreed upon and since then neither party has pressed further action. 1. Will the court dismiss the case, or [2] must some agreement finally be reached? 3. How long is a case allowed to remain open on the court calendar? C. L.

1. The court will ultimately place the case upon a "no progress calendar" and it will be dismissed on call of that calendar. 2. Not necessary. 3. There is no definite period. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Test Your Horse Sense By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 30.

1. The railroad which runs its trains on the left side of the roadbed is the C. & E. I. Wabash North Western Pennsylvania.
2. Which of the following pairs of countries are called the Low Countries of Europe? Belgium and Holland Norway and Sweden France and Spain Hungary and Austria.
3. Which of the following sports does not attempt to break a tie score? Basketball Baseball Football Tennis
4. A housewife would most likely be found basting which of these? Potatoes Meat Cake Salad.
5. A diamond is composed of the same chemical element as Glass Limestone Pewter Coal.
6. Can you produce the drawing shown below without raising your pen or pencil from the paper and without traversing a line a second time? You may cross a line, as in the center of the diagram, but you must not retrace a line. You deserve five points if you can solve this.



Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

1 VOTE MARGIN KEEPS AIRPORT PROJECT ALIVE

2d Ballot Approves Kane Referendum.

L. C. Kline, 85 years old, supervisor of Maple Park township, Kane county, described as one of the "most air-minded men" in these parts, yesterday kept alive a two million dollar airport project that was first rejected Feb. 22 by Aurora voters as a purely city enterprise.

Kline, member of the board 50 years and chairman of its special airport committee, was one of two country town supervisors who made it possible to obtain a one-vote margin assuring another election on the proposition—this time, a county-wide referendum.

The referendum was approved, 19 to 18, after the measure was defeated in a morning session at Geneva, 19 to 17.

Pass Judgment on April 6.

The entire county, including Aurora township and Aurora city voters, will pass judgment on issuing county bonds for the airport on April 6.

The referendum will decide whether the county is to issue $180,000 worth of bonds for buying 800 acres for the airport site. Aurora, rallying behind the opposition of its mayor, Andrew J. Carter, a retired railroader who still believes in the future of rail transportation as more up and coming than freight trains in the trackless skies, had dumped the proposal by a vote of 4,773 to 3,958.

Aurora township supervisors yesterday heartily indorsed the proposal as a county-wide project and won a victory instead of losing a tough fight. After the resolution was voted down in the morning they persuaded Supervisor A. H. Wittry of Kaneville township, to change his vote, thus finding ground for reconsideration. Dr. F. M. Marstiller of Geneva township, absent during the morning, turned up in time to break a tie vote.

Fight Measure Bitterly.

The Elgin city and other country town members fought the measure bitterly, the city men because they believe that Aurora eventually would get the airport without paying for it, the farm section members because it would be a waste of farm land.

The proposed airport and its improvements would become the property of Kane county, which would lease it to the war department for the duration of the war, and thereafter assume full control of the field for commercial purposes.

As planned by the civil aeronautics administration, the port would be a super air field, with runways of 7,300 feet, compared with the mile long strips on the Chicago airport.

OPA AID DENIES REPORTS OF BAN ON CLUB LUNCHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The office of price administration today denied reports that any ban has been placed in connection with food rationing on civic club luncheon meetings, club suppers, and similar gatherings.

Paul M. O'Leary, rationing administrator, said hotels and restaurants, as previously announced, have had their food allotments reduced by rationing, but that no restriction has been placed on how the food is used.

From a practical standpoint, most luncheon meetings mean little net difference in terms of total food consumption anyway, he added.

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

D. E. O. writes: "I read your description on Sunday of the kind of men the navy wants for construction officers and, altho I've had years of experience in that work, I know that I couldn't qualify as an officer, but doesn't the navy have to have workers and tradesmen to carry on this construction work? Can they use a good carpenter?"

ANSWER. The navy Sea Bees [construction battalion] says they need scads of carpenters. They tell us they also can use all of the riggers, steel workers, construction equipment operators and mechanics, electrical linemen, cooks and bakers, pile drivers, powder man, sheet metal workers, etc., they can get. In fact there is hardly a skill or a trade that can't find a billet in the Sea Bees. If you know that you are apt to be called or if you want to volunteer thru your draft board, you should see a good physician first and be sure you can pass the navy physical. When you arrive at the induction center request assignment to the navy and you will find yourself in the Sea Bees doing the kind of work you like to do and among men who talk the same language as you do.

T. E. M. writes: "On Feb. 27 the war department announced that no more applications would be accepted for the volunteer officer program. However, I have heard there is a program of new schools for older volunteer candidates for the adjutant general's department. Do you know anything about it?"

ANSWER: All we know is that army regulations [625-5] state: "The following schools are authorized for the adjutant general: administrative, classification, postal and machine record. A candidate must have attained his 18th birthday and must not have passed his 46th birthday on the date of completion of the course for which selected." The regulation states further: "Any registrant who is classified 3-A, not deferred for reasons other than dependency, . . . who is 18 but not ever 38, may volunteer." The local service command headquarters has no information on these schools, so you will have to write the adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C.

G. W. G. asks: "What are the requirements for entrance into the ferry command? Are enlistments open?"

ANSWER: There are two ways to qualify: by graduation after July 1, 1942, from a pilot training course at an A. A. F. central instructors' school, and also by civilian experience of 300 hours or more in the air, of which 200 hours or more were flown solo and of which 100 hours or more were in aircraft of 200 or more horse power. At least 50 hours of the 200 horse power time must have been solo time and 50 hours or more of the 300 hours must have been completed within 12 months preceding the period of flight test. There is no channel open at present for entrance but we understand the army is working out a plan to be announced "in the near future." Inquiries might be directed to commanding general, army air forces command, Washington, D. C.

BOARD ANALYZES MILK THAT MADE 28 PUPILS SICK

Samples from bottles of chocolate milk that caused the illness Tuesday of 28 pupils of Thorp elementary school, 6024 Warwick avenue, are being examined in the board of education laboratories, F. O. Washam, director of lunch rooms, said yesterday. Washam said the children sickened within a half hour after drinking the milk and were sent home, but there were no serious effects and they returned to class yesterday. The children had purchased the milk from a local dairyman in the school yard, which is the custom of all of the 225 public schools lacking lunch rooms, Washam said. He added that other customers who purchased milk from the same carrier Tuesday were not affected.

WAR DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY
WASHINGTON, D. C.

February 13, 1943

To the Men and Women
of Gilbert and Barker Manufacturing Company
West Springfield, Massachusetts

I am pleased to inform you that you have won for the second time the Army-Navy Production Award for meritorious services on the production front.

You have continued to maintain the high standard that you set for yourselves and which won you distinction more than six months ago. You may well be proud of your achievement.

The White Star, which the renewal adds to your Army-Navy Production Award flag, is the symbol of appreciation from our Armed Forces for your continued and determined effort and patriotism.

Sincerely yours,

Robert P. Patterson
Under Secretary of War

We're proud of the star on Our Flag!

Six months ago, the Army-Navy "E" first floated over the Gilbarco factory. Today that pennant bears a star—symbol of the increased effort and greater achievements the award inspired.

To the men and women of Gilbert & Barker this new honor constitutes a new challenge—a spur to even closer concentration on the great task still before us. It is our pledge that the production records which placed it there shall be topped again and again in the busy months to come.

SYNOPSIS: Mary Jo Laurence has been happy with her husband, Tony, during their 15 years of marriage, in spite of Tony's deformed foot and his many failures in his work as a builder. A false boom brought them to Key West two years ago and caused them to buy a tract of land they have been unable to sell. At last they have a prospective client, Col. Bassett, a retired army officer, who wants to buy the land and have Tony build a house on it. To help close the deal, Mary Jo has invited Bassett and his wife to dinner. The morning before the Bassetts are to come to dinner, Mary Jo hears a shot and, looking out her window, she sees a man lying back of Cinqua's tavern and another man crouching in the bushes nearby. Later when she goes shopping, Sibyl Cartwright, an old actress, comes out of the tavern and informs Mary Jo that Ed Tutwiller, brother of Pop Tutwiller, fisherman and friend of the Laurences, has just shot and killed himself back of Cinqua's. It seems Ed committed suicide because some married woman got him into money trouble. Mary Jo decides not to mention the man she saw crouching in the bushes as she might have to testify, and any bad publicity might hurt Tony in his work. At Chan's, her Chinese grocer, she sees a luscious, worthless looking woman selling stolen milk bottles to buy gin. En route home she picks up a letter from her 18 year old brother, Pete, saying that he is coming to Key West to hunt a job. But Mary Jo's dinner is such a success that everything seems bright again. Col. Bassett promises to give Tony a check the next day to close the deal. But shortly after the Bassetts depart, Col. Bassett returns and says he has been called back into service and has to call the deal off. Mary Jo wonders if Tony can work with Don Waterman, a successful but none too scrupulous rival, who is trying to get land to build cheap houses. Tony agrees to try to talk to Waterman that very night, altho it means he must make a round of the bars to find him.

INSTALMENT X.

DRUNKEN VISITORS.

Mary Jo turned the radio off and went to the old-fashioned organ, sliding her lean figure along the bench. The pedals under her large, well shaped feet resisted pressure at first. The damp did that. But presently the air began to billow thru in great gasps. Mary Jo pulled out the vox humana stop and began to play with absolute sureness and a fine sense of harmony.

The faint sadness and foreboding in her sought expression in "Abide with Me," and she tried to lose herself in making up new variations for it.

But tonight, somehow, the hymns and the organ playing brought less comfort than usual, and presently she sat with idle hands on the keyboard, thinking.

Even if Tony were to succeed in interesting Waterman it would be weeks before there could be any practical return from that set-up. Meanwhile, how were they going to eat? There wasn't a job to be had on the island that a woman could do. If there were one, it would look mighty tempting, in spite of the hurt to Tony's pride.

That blamed foot of Tony's made it so awfully necessary for him to be the boss. That time when they'd been so broke out in Santa Fe and she'd wanted to get a job as waitress at the railroad eating house Tony had reacted in a way which made her hesitate to try again.

That was one of the things against her working. Another was the way Tony had been brought up. His folks had been New Englanders, his father had been a teacher, the principal of a big high school, and he had given Tony more education than Tony could handle. It had been a classical education and taught Tony to speak well and know some mighty interesting facts about history and literature and all like that, but it had also given him ideas about his wife. That she wasn't supposed to work was one of them. Well, that was all very fine, but she wanted to work and she would if only she could find work which Tony would not object to.

Wandering out into the kitchen she looked for something to do, but the place was already immaculate. There was a scent of fresh pineapples pervading it and taking off the cover of the basket in which she had left them, to see if they were getting overripe, she remembered the colonel's compliment about the pie she had baked. If she made pies for sale she might put her husband out of business, he had said. It had been a joke, of course.

Still it was just possible that the colonel had pointed the way to an idea, at that! Good sweets of the wholesome old-fashioned kind were hard to get in Key West, where the bread and pastries were either Cuban or of the cheapest commercial sort. Perhaps she might bake a few fresh pineapple pies with her own original recipe and see if people liked them. She fingered the pineapples lovingly. They were beauties. Pop had brought them to her as a present several days ago.

"My old man's got a field of 'em up to Homestead," he had told her. "Crop's so plentiful this year it don't pay him to git 'em picked. You kin have as many as you want."

She hadn't thought greatly about the offer at the time—after all, a person could only eat so many pineapples. But now it had significance. She ought to be able to make some kind of arrangement with Pop and his father which would take care of the fruit. But where could she sell her pies if she made them? Not among her friends, because most of them did their own baking.

It ought to be thru some place which could help her with the other materials she needed. Chan? Would Chan listen to a proposition? The grocery sold pies—very bad ones. Perhaps a few of hers on the counter there would be welcome—especially if she offered a part of the proceeds to his China relief fund. China pies! She could cut a Chinese face in the crust for steam vents and braid the edges like a queue!

"I'm getting silly!" she told herself. But the little thrill of excitement which had started up in her at the idea kept growing. She got paper and pencil and began figuring out costs and possible profits. So much for pans. So much for groceries—her measurements must be exact. The pies ought to be small and sell for a dime.

When she had finished her calculations she suddenly realized that it was well after midnight. Tony had been gone for hours. She hid her notes against his return, for she did not want to discuss her idea with him until something seemed likely to come of it. But another half hour went by and still he did not come home. Over at Cinqua's the juke box was unusually loud tonight, with the wind from over that way. Mary Jo began wondering where Tony was, seeing him seated beside the stuffy dance floor at the Cabana, with its exotic Mexican decorations, or at Sloppy Joe's long bar, or maybe standing somewhere in the tinsel of the Cave inn. Most likely he'd gone to all of them before finding Waterman. But he must have found him and they must be talking or Tony would have come back before this. Well, so long as she'd chased him uptown she wasn't going to turn around now and spoil his night out by sitting up for him.

She had been asleep for about an hour when she was awakened by the sound of Tony's return. Sitting up in the warm darkness, she could hear him calling from below. There were people with him, and to her sleep-numbed senses it seemed as if the house must be full of guests. He was at the foot of the stairs now, cheerfully and a little drunkenly demanding her presence.

"Hi, Mary Jo! Come on down. We've got company! You haven't gone to bed yet, have you?" She pulled herself together with an effort.

"Okay, Reckless!" she called. "I'll be with you in the shake of a kangaroo rat's tail!"

She dressed as quickly as she could, running a comb thru her hair, daubing powder on her nose. It didn't matter how she looked at this time of night. If people came barging in after a few drinks they'd have to take her as she was. She could hear Tony's voice in the kitchen now, laughing at something and the crash of ice as he emptied a tray of it into the sink; then the rattle of glasses. She put the bedroom light out and ran downstairs. There were two people with Tony in the living room: Don Waterman and the ripe young woman who had made the scene at Chan's.

Tony was flushed with excitement and liquor, but he was radiant. Something had happened to him, something more important than just a business matter. He looked almost boyish and he was laughing easily. But the gay talk stopped abruptly as Mary Jo came in. She got the feeling that these strangers, even that Tony, were afraid she would bring a sober, sour note with her. Trying to dispel this with a cheerful "Hello, folks! Glad to see you!" she held out her hand and Waterman, a big, rather likable man in his early forties, took it enthusiastically, but with respect.

"This is all my fault, Mrs. Laurence!" he apologized. "But Tony here got me so wrought up about the building business that I invited myself over to have a look at his plans."

"That's swell, and I mean it!" said Mary Jo. Then she turned to the girl.

"This is Mrs. Bergen." Tony said. "Maisie, this is Mary Jo, my wife."

The girl regarded Mary Jo with the sly, mistrustful eyes which dominated her handsome, heavily made-up face.

"Hello there!" she said with a touch of defiance. "So it's you! It would be!"

"Well, well," said Waterman in surprise. "You two know each other, eh?"

"At first glance!" said Mary Jo. "We met in the grocery."

"Women don't need bars to meet in," said Waterman. "They don't have to have a bottle for an introduction."

"Oh, milk bottles do well enough!" Mary Jo's eyes were on the girl as she said it. Maisie Bergen choked into her empty glass and held it out to Tony.

"Here, sugar! Do something about this, will you?" she asked. Then as Tony went to replenish the drink, Maisie apparently decided to brazen things out.

"I had an awful hangover that morning," she explained to Mary Jo, "and I was fresh out of cash for a pick-me-up. My kid stole those empty milk bottles. He does it all the time for movie money. Honestly, I don't know how to cure him of it. He's 6 years old and ought to know better!"

She said this last with an air of martyred motherhood which was rather comical. Waterman winked at Mary Jo over Maisie's unconscious head.

"Why don't you have Bergen wallop him?" he suggested. Maisie made an expressive gesture of disgust.

"Culver is afraid of Button!" she said. "His own child is on to him and he knows it." She turned to Mary Jo again. "My husband isn't so much," she explained. Waterman frowned.

"Cut that talk, Maisie," he said gruffly. Mrs. Laurence here isn't interested in your private affairs."

"Well it was you asked the question!" Mrs. Bergen pouted, "and you're interested—I should hope!"

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BOND CAMPAIGN TO GET CRUISER HITS 25 MILLION

2,000 Attend a Rally of Women in Loop.

War bond sales yesterday swelled to well above 25 million dollars the amount collected so far in the city's 40 day drive to raise 40 million dollars to replace Chicago's sunken cruiser namesake.

Official sales, announced by Oscar G. Mayer, executive chairman of the cruiser committee, only after reports reach the treasury center, usually thru the banks, totaled $1,073,146.50 yesterday to bring the official total for the 22d day of the campaign to $22,000,071.50.

But additional sales of well over 3 million dollars, unofficial until reports are turned in to the treasury center, were being tabulated by auditors at Marshall Field & Co., where the American Women's Voluntary Services held a war bond rally.

2,000 Attend in Storm.

More than 2,000 persons braved the March snowstorm to attend the rally, at which Hildegarde, the singer; Lew Diamond's orchestra, and three war heroes—a sailor, a marine, and a coast guardsman—were special attractions.

The largest subscription was from the William Wrigley Jr. company, which purchased $1,000,000 in bonds. The lowest denomination bond—$25—was bought by Mrs. Kenneth Lundberg of 7617 South Michigan avenue, for her 2½ year old daughter, Joyce.

In a telegram from Springfield, Gov. Dwight H. Green announced the state treasury would sign up for $150,000 worth. Other subscribers in the upper brackets included the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, $250,000; the Commonwealth Edison company, $200,000, and the Chicago park district, $100,000.

Bond Matinée Sold Out.

A special matinée of the production "Ice-Capades" in the Chicago Arena Saturday, March 20, admission to which is by free tickets given to war bond purchasers, has been sold out in the first nine days of a projected three weeks campaign thru the efforts of W-G-N in coöperation with the women's division of the Chicago and Cook county war savings staff.

Exactly $654,480 worth of bonds in denominations varying from $25 to $5,000 have been sold for the show thru W-G-N promotion, Mr. Mayer said yesterday. About 4,500 bond purchasers will see the matinée March 20.

GYPSIES PICK MAN'S POCKET.

Napoleon Surperhant, retired railroad conductor, told police yesterday that a couple dressed in gypsy clothing, who summoned him to their automobile from his home at 516 West 66th street, picked his pocket and drove off with his wallet containing $275. They had asked for directions, he said.

ILLINOIS MUST HELP GIVE ARMY 6,900 DOCTORS

Illinois is one of 20 states from which the army plans to obtain 6,900 physicians in 1943, the journal of the American Medical association announced yesterday.

Under new procedure medical recruiting boards have been discontinued and no doctor will be commissioned until declared "available" by the assignment service of the war man power commission which has set up medical, dental and veterinary chairmen to prepare monthly quota lists.

Some states have contributed more physicians to the army than their 1942 and 1943 quotas and will not be called upon for more than this year. Army medical needs for 1943 also include 3,000 interns and resident doctors from hospitals, 4,800 dentists and 900 veterinarians.

20,001 BUSINESSES

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY is a big business. But it began in a one-room farm blacksmith shop, 112 years ago. Thousands of other American enterprises, from equally humble beginnings, have grown to national scope. That kind of growth has been typically American. We hope it will always be so.

Our company did not become a big business without receiving help from others and giving help to others. No American business does. For our American business system is like a town. A householder who earns his living by selling clothing will buy his groceries from one neighbor, his shoes from another, his coal from still another, his insurance and his newspapers from others. So any business depends upon many other businesses for things which it needs, but cannot or does not make itself.

Every business, like every householder, operates both as a buyer and as a seller.

None Can Stand Alone

There is no business so big that it can operate without the help of other businesses. Indeed, the larger the business the more help it requires from others and the more help others receive from it.

International Harvester buys an almost infinite number of things from thousands of other companies, the vast majority of which are small businesses. We buy raw materials, supplies, finished and semi-finished parts and sub-assemblies, as well as services of all kinds. These companies which sell to us, in order to fill our orders, buy in turn from many others.

Checking up, we have found that in the year before our country entered the war, we bought from more than 10,000 different businesses, most of them small. Our purchases during that year of 1941 amounted to just under $200,000,000.

During 1942, after we had entered on war production, we added almost 1,000 new companies to the list of those from whom we buy. During 1943 we will add more.

Teamwork of Infinite Variety

These businesses from which we buy are in every state of the Union. Some have been operating for a long time, others came into being to produce special products needed for the war. To help them help us get out more war production and get it out faster, we have given many of them engineering and manufacturing assistance, have helped some to enlarge their facilities.

Our war orders, in other words, have not excluded little business from war work, but have very definitely brought more little businesses into war work.

Nor do our relationships with small businesses end with those who sell us things for our production. The civilian products we manufacture are sold by our dealers in the United States, to farmers, motor truck operators, construction companies and other users. There are 10,000 independent merchants who comprise this group handling our products.

Just as we have tried to assist, where necessary, the smaller manufacturers who are associated with us in production, so, too, we have tried to help our dealers maintain their position during the war, despite shortages of new machines to sell. We have helped them arrange their activities so that they may be able to operate successfully on the basis of selling service and service parts. We have procured and trained service mechanics for dealers, to replace those who have entered the armed services. We have halted the sale of new farm machines through our company's relatively few retail outlets and distributed that business among adjacent dealers so that they might have the maximum possible volume of sales.

To sum up, we are a customer of more than 10,000 different businesses, and we market our products through more than 10,000 other businesses.

Thus, in our operation on a national scale, 20,000 businesses look to us either as customers or as suppliers of merchandise.

We mention these facts about the relationship between our company and 20,000 smaller businesses because it has been said by some that big business has tried to take advantage of the war to drive little businesses out of existence. We believe the facts prove that the contrary is true.

A CENTER for Responsibility

Our company has been assigned the responsibility for handling many large war orders of a type which must be handled by a large company in order to obtain the speedy production essential to the war program. Only a large company can handle orders of this kind and size—only a company with a large organization, experienced, versatile, accustomed to coordinating the facilities and abilities of many companies and able to direct this united effort for the production of new war products as rapidly as possible.

We have done our utmost to bring the maximum number of smaller companies into the filling of those orders. We need their help, they need ours. Through cooperation between us, war production is speeded up.

Having long adhered to a policy in support of small business, Harvester restates that policy in the light of present conditions:

We want little business to survive the war. We recognize an obligation to do our share to see that it does. We know full well that big business can't survive without little business. The same economic forces that would strangle the one, would, in time, kill the other.

We know that America's economy cannot be healthy, cannot provide employment for workers or good products at low prices for customers, unless small business, medium-sized business and big business are all functioning, each at the job it can do best.

America, after the war, will need them all.

Mary Meade Urges Wider Use of Fresh Fruits for War Time Desserts

Home Canning Supplies to Be in Big Demand

BY BEN MARKLAND.

How much of the produce from America's millions of war gardens will be saved for winter consumption?

That is the question being asked now by housewives, gardeners, and home economists. Gardening is a healthful and intriguing summer activity, but unless a portion of the home produced crops of fruits and vegetables is preserved for winter use the garden boom will not fulfill the important function of saving commercially canned foods for our army, navy, and allies.

The canning season is several months away, but already the American housewife is getting ready to fill her basement shelves with canned goods to offset the rationing program. All available steam pressure cookers have been snatched from the shelves of hardware and department stores, and the demand for canning jars and caps is so heavy that one hardware jobber recently sold four carloads of these items to retailers in one day.

The three essential classes of equipment for home canners are glass jars and caps, pressure cookers, and cold pack canners [called "hot water baths" by many housewives].

Manufacturers and retail stores gave the following outlook on the availability of this equipment:

There should be no shortage of jars or caps. The old style zinc caps which were used in conjunction with rubber sealing rings no longer are being manufactured. More efficient two piece caps [glass or metal sealing discs with separate screw caps] are available. Manufacture of these products has not been seriously limited by the war production board, hence the makers will produce enough to fill the demands. Glass is not a critical material, and manufacturers probably will produce more glass jars than last year, barring unforseen labor difficulties. The new type caps also will fit the glass jars in which coffee, salad dressings, fruits, and some vegetables are being packed for grocery sales.

Many housewives use cold pack canners in preserving fruits and acid vegetables such as tomatoes. In this process the food is placed in jars "cold"—that is raw or slightly cooked, then sealed. The sealed jars then are placed in a metal rack which fits into the porcelain pot. Boiling water inside the pot cooks the food.

The cold pack canners are not being manufactured because scientists of the United States department of agriculture found that housewives were using them for nonacid vegetables such as beets, beans, and peas. This equipment does not properly sterilize nonacid foods, and the result was many cases of botulism, a toxic poisoning. The department of agriculture has not authorized the release of steel for making this type of canning equipment because of the findings on botulism.

Mary Meade, Tribune cooking editor, recommended that housewives who prefer this method of canning fruits and acid foods, and who have used it successfully, still can "cold pack" by using large fowl roasters as substitutes for the regular equipment.

When the food rationing announcements were made, thousands of housewives immediately rushed to their hardware dealer or department store to buy steam pressure cookers in anticipation of increased home canning activity this summer and fall. As a result none of these cookers is available now.

On March 3 the war production board released enough steel to manufacture 150,000 pressure canners which can be used for canning, but not for regular cooking. Three Illinois and Wisconsin manufacturers will make these cookers, but the steel has not yet been allocated to them. It will take at least 60 days for the making and distribution of these canners, so if the steel were immediately allocated they would not be ready for retail sale until mid-May. One manufacturer estimated that 150,000 cookers will not fill one-fourth of the national demand.

When these 150,000 pressure canners are ready for distribution they will be allocated to individuals thru the extension service of the United States department of agriculture in conjunction with state universities. City residents may not fare well in this allocation, inasmuch as the extension services traditionally work with farmers.

From New York yesterday came word that the need for more pressure cookers will be presented to WPB officials in Washington by the end of this week by Lester J. Norris of St. Charles, Ill. Norris, state chairman of the Illinois victory garden committee, disclosed plans for the Washington appeal after an executive meeting in New York of the National Victory Garden institute, of which he is vice president.

"We have absolutely no fresh fruits to make our meals interesting," writes a Tribune reader in London. How fortunate we American women are, to be able to buy so many fresh fruits for dessert!

There isn't the variety we once had, of course. Some of the fruits we do have are expensive. But we have them. South American grapes are disappearing from the market and we probably won't have more until domestic supplies start coming in, several months from now. But there are more bananas now than there have been for months, and I've seen fresh pineapples in many a grocer's window. Supplies of fresh apples and citrus fruit are good. There are pears and avocados to be had, and strawberries, too. Rhubarb is reasonably priced, as are several varieties of apples and some of the citrus fruits.

Fresh raw fruit or a combination of several kinds of fresh fruit in "fruit cup" is probably the finest dessert of all, from the nutritional standpoint. In addition, there are many simple puddings and cooked fruit desserts which aren't hard to prepare.

Poached Apples or Pears.

Make a sirup of 1 cup water and 1 cup sugar and boil together for 5 minutes. Add four pared, halved pears or quartered apples and simmer until tender. Remove fruit from sirup to dessert dishes. Cook sirup down, if necessary, until it is quite thick. Flavor with a little vanilla, pour over the fruit and chill. Cinnamon, nutmeg, or mace may be used to flavor the sirup.

Baked Fruit.

Apples, pears, or peaches may be prepared in this way: Grease a casserole and slice pared fruit into it. Sprinkle with the juice of half a small lemon, then with brown sugar. Dot with butter or margarine and bake until tender at 350 degrees.

Apple Graham Cracker Pudding.

[Serves eight.]
¼ cup margarine
4 cups diced tart apples
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup broken nutmeats
2½ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup top milk or evaporated milk

Melt margarine in 8 inch square pan and spread apples evenly over the bottom. Sprinkle sugar, salt, cinnamon and nuts over the apples. Crush the crackers coarsely and mix the 2½ cups crumbs with brown sugar and cream. Spread over the mixture in the pan. Bake at 375 degrees until apples are tender. Serve warm or cold with cream.

Household Forum

[Have you some household help that lessens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some special convenience you would like? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers.]

Mrs. Thomas G., Chicago—I have a quick and easy method of taking down and putting up my clothesline. My husband tied screen door hooks to the ends of my indoor clothesline and drove eye screws into the opposite walls. It is only the work of a minute to slip hook with attached clothesline into eye screw.

Edith G., Milwaukee, Wis.—I never broil a steak after removing from refrigerator until it has reached room temperature. I save a little on heat this way and on juices, too, since high heat on chilled meat causes a steam in which juices are lost.

Mrs. T. H., Aurora—I haven't been living in a country house very long and find that I don't relish the business of mouse trapping. Why not a mouse trap of very heavy cardboard so when the mouse is caught you can burn it along with its very unpleasant catch?

Mrs. Harold G., Chicago—My husband and boys do a lot of handy work around the house. To remove grease from their hands easily they work up a good lather with soap and then add some cornmeal to it. It's a help.

Now your idea—please!

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Delicious Hot Cereal.
[Rich in vitamin B group.]
[Serves four.]
½ cup rolled oats
2 level tablespoons farina
4 tablespoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water

Combine three cereals and salt and stir slowly into the boiling water. Cook directly over the fire for 10 minutes, then set over boiling water and cook 10 minutes longer. The porridge may be thinned by adding water by the tablespoon if desired. It may also be made with milk, in which case the cereal should be added to the hot milk [about 1½ cups] and placed over hot water at once. This will require about 30 to 40 minutes' cooking.

Conferees Are Told Lack of Facilities to Train Negro Nurses

Municipal institutions should open their doors to Negro nursing students, Mrs. Mabel K. Staupers, executive secretary of the National Negro Graduate Nurses' association, told a meeting of the National Nursing Council for War Service in Provident hospital yesterday. The talk was one in a two day institute on "The Negro Nurse and the War."

Mrs. Staupers said that federal aid is extended only to nursing schools connected with hospitals of 100 beds or more and that the majority of Negro hospitals are small.

Arizona Sends News of Gala Fashion Show

BY JUDITH CASS.

LOCAL victims of a never ending winter will want to gnash their teeth with envy when they read the following account of the annual fashion show put on every winter at the Arizona Biltmore in Phoenix for the benefit of the American Red Cross. No more stunning setting for such an event could be found anywhere than the wide esplanade around the swimming pool in front of the gay cabanas, writes our correspondent from that sunny city.

As if hearing about a warm, sunshiny day, beautiful clothes, attractive models, a gay congregation of guests, and tempting refreshments were not enough to make stay-at-homes [or stuck-at-homes] sigh wistfully, we learn also that Bing Crosby was there to sing a special request song for every one who bought a war bond. Desert fashions was the motif of the show or, "El Desfile des las Modas del Desierto," according to the programs. The setting for the show provided the only mishap of the afternoon, and it was not too serious. It happened when Harry Leighton got up to offer his seat to one of the ladies and accidentally stepped back into the pool.

Our correspondent was so busy admiring the costumes of the women in the audience that she overlooked any description of the mannequins. Mrs. Hugo Dalmar, who has returned to the Biltmore for the spring months, looked particularly stunning in a white linen dress with a border of strawberries and strawberry buttons, and a large white straw hat, the correspondent wrote. Over Mrs. Dalmar's arm was a white coat with a white fox collar.

Mrs. Frederick Woodruff and Her Daughter There.

Mrs. Frederick Woodruff and her daughter, Miss Kay Woodruff, came to the show in white sport dresses. Mrs. Arthur Bamford, Mrs. LeRoy Wheeler, Mrs. George Carey, and Mrs. Edward Kellogg, in a gay flowered dress and a black lace hat, were other members of the audience. Watching the fashion parade from their cabana were the Aubrey H. Mellingers of Evanston. A group of spectators from Barrington included Orville Caesar and his daughters, Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh Jr. and Mrs. Lyman Smith, and Dr. Smith; Mrs. Kenneth K. Knickerbocker, and James Cardwell.

The Neil Hurleys were with Atty. Gen. and Mrs. George Barrett, and the Frank Paynes and their daughter and son, Miss Priscilla Payne and William, made up a family party. Recent arrivals at the Biltmore from Chicago include Fritz Ernst, George Henneberry, Lt. Col. Leslie S. Gordon of the army air forces, Dr. and Mrs. Franz Alexander, the Nathaniel Howards, Maj. and Mrs. Ednyfed Williams, and Lt. and Mrs. John T. Llewellyn II., who have joined Mr. Llewellyn Sr.

Mrs. Howard Fenton missed the fashion show, for she is not arriving in Arizona until this week. She will visit her brother, Frank Octigan, and his family at Jokake.

Bundles for America Has Its Fashion Show Today.

Such a glamorous outdoor setting could not be reproduced for a fashion show Bundles for America is presenting this afternoon in the 28 shop at Marshall Field's, but that will not prevent the event from being a gala occasion. Bundles for America's trim new uniforms of dark blue gabardine and gleaming brass buttons will make their first official appearance today at the Lenefit, which will start at 5:30 o'clock. More than 450 guests are expected for cocktails and to watch the fashion parade. The special guest for the occasion will be Hildegarde, the chanteuse, whom many of the guests will be going on to hear later in dinner parties at the Palmer House.

Among those with reservations for the benefit are Mrs. Frank Loesch, Mrs. Matthew P. McCullough, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Freeman Hinkley, Mrs. Trevor Stamp, Mrs. James Simpson, and Mrs. James G. Kemper. Proceeds will go toward purchasing wool for the sweaters, gloves, scarves, and watch caps which the group's volunteers knit for men in the navy.

Two New Yorkers, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, who was chairman of the women's division of the first U. S. O. drive in Chicago two years ago, and Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, chairman of the women's division of the U. S. O., will be welcomed at a reception and tea from 4 to 5:30 o'clock today at the U. S. O. club, 131 South Wabash avenue. During her stay here Mrs. Pirie,

Front VIEWS and PROFILES By MARCIA WINN

Skate, Please.

Phil Taylor, who comes to the Chicago Arena Sunday in "Icecapades," believes he is one of the few men alive today who has touched Hirohito, the untouchable emperor of Japan. Several years ago Taylor taught the emperor to skate, and says that when he asked Mr. H. why he was learning, the answer was: "If Americans can skate, well, I want skate, also."

Are You Hungry?

In case you don't know, at least one canned delectable, which is neither frozen nor rationed, is still on the shelves of a few Chicago stores. It is rattlesnake meat.

The Army and the Arts.

A year ago Sidney Loeb, a Chicago sculptor, started a figure of Lincoln. At first, he said, it was a refuge, then a statement, then a credo: "This is what the war is about." From that it seemed a logical step to enlist, and he did, being sent to a Florida bombing range. Early in January he received a letter from the Art institute asking if he wanted to enter his Lincoln in the artists of Chicago and vicinity show [which opens today]. The mere thought of it made him so morose that he glumly confided to his sergeant how he wished he could get home to finish the figure. The sergeant went to the C. O., and the next day Pvt. [now Sergt.] Loeb was on his way. The C. O., it turned out, was from Gettysburg; his name was Robert Lincoln Scott and his grandfather had been Abraham Lincoln Scott.

Loeb finished the sculpture, submitted it, and a few weeks later received a wire that he had won the Logan $500 prize. "Right after I read the wire," he wrote a friend here, "the signal for gas drill sounded, and for two hours I went around making noises like a hound dog with his muzzle in the mud as I whooped with joy inside my gas mask."

Loeb's company contains a young private from Minnesota who recently wrote two poems on the bombing range. Neither probably ever will be included in any anthology of this war's poetry, but for what they are, which is tender and moving, here they are:

I am in a bed of vilolet
With a sad and akeing hart.
and each day the same,
and if you ony know dear how lonly it is for me. and as I look at each Vilolet. they seam to say to me. you are not the only one that is lonly too. in this world today. and as the sun was setting, they gently sut
thear eyes.

I climb the highest tree, to see
How high up I could go,
I'm up so high writing to you but it might sound silly to you
The limb is mighty small and yet so mighty strong it is so mighty hard a setting here and a writing.
and the wind is a blowing, a singing, and a swaying and at times the birds are singing and chatting all about me.
It is music in my ears, and there I was with a pocket full of cigarettes and no matches.

Roden to Mark 25th Year as City Librarian

The shy, kindly giant of a man who knows every milestone in the Chicago Public library's 45 miles of books will be the center of celebrations today. He is Carl Bismarck Roden, who was appointed librarian 25 years ago today.

"The anniversary will be just another day," Roden said yesterday. "There will be no speeches or parties or presentations."

But the members of the library family, who know that he doesn't like to be "fussed over," will place a bouquet of 25 red roses on Roden's desk this morning. At 11 o'clock they will gather quietly in his office for felicitations.

Since Carl Roden first walked the lengths of the library's cases and files as a page boy in 1886, there have been many changes in its shelves and services. Since he became librarian, it has grown into one of the largest libraries in the world.

In 1920, for example, there were 1,075,000 books as compared to the 2 million on the shelves today. The circulation has increased from 7,600,000 to 12 million.

Under Roden's direction the 42 branch libraries have increased to 47, with 13 sub-branches; six high school libraries to a total of 55. A bookmobile now visits factories and out of the way places so that the folks there may read, too.

Roden refuses to discuss reading trends.

"Any 'trends' are artificially produced and so cannot be recognized," he said.

But he is proud that more and more people use the library every day, that the dark depression days when there was no money to buy new books or magazines were mastered, and that Chicago now leads in collection of volumes for men of the army and navy.

Roden is known to many who visit the library. He attends all Saturday afternoon concerts there. In spare moments he may be found leafing lovingly thru the library's collection of reproductions of etchings. And he is seldom too busy to talk for a few minutes with a fellow book lover.

Carl Roden worked hard for his law degree at the Chicago College of Law, Lake Forest University, but he chose to make the library his career instead.

Letters from Consulate Tell Postponement of Fete for Mme. Chiang

Guests from out of town who had been invited to the reception the Chinese consulate planned for Mme. Chiang Kai-shek tomorrow afternoon at the Palmer House will receive the following letter from the Chinese consul general: "I regret to announce that due to doctor's orders Mme. Chiang's visit to Chicago has been postponed. The time and place of the consulate's reception will be announced later, for which time our invitation will apply. Please retain your cards of admittance. Yours Sincerely, Chang-Lok Chen."

Residents of Chicago who received coveted invitations to the tea will not hear from the consul, as the consulate's correspondence is too heavy to permit a further exchange of letters. When the reception is held it will be informal, the consulate has announced in reply to many questions about proper garb in which to meet China's first lady. In other words, cutaways for men and floor length gowns for the ladies will not be worn.

This little girl's spring and summer straw hat has a flattering upturned brim. Red felt poppies over each ear provide unusual contrast. Around the crown is a band of green felt leaves, and under the chin are streamers. The hat is available in a Chicago store.

Thru the Looking Glass

In a cold winter further complicated by a fuel shortage, it seems to us more women will ask of their cleansing creams that they help out on the skin softening job, too. The cream that soothes a thin, sensitive skin as it cleanses it has obvious advantages.

Such a cream is bound to be a little heavier than the cream that merely removes the day's accumulation of grime and makeup, but we don't see why women should mind that. In summer, it's true, heavy creams may be rather trying for some women, but for those of us with skin that pulls and crinkles they're a perfect choice in cold weather.

One such cream that we like immensely is made with milk. It cleanses thoroly, and in addition is one of the most satisfying massage creams for winter use. It's almost pure white and it's rather a thick cream but not a stiff one. It works in a little slowly, but it does its work well. If you use one coat for cleansing and a second for nightly massage you can keep dryness well under control.

We have a theory that a great many women use their creams too quickly. They whisk them on and whisk them off. A few extra minutes of gentle massage will usually double the efficiency of any cream not only in cleansing but in softening. This cream that must be used rather slowly is a good one for you if you have the bad habit of haste. Massage it in well, leave it on for a few minutes and remove with tissues. Your skin will have the clarity and softness of creamy satin.

Following a buffet dinner at 6 o'clock tonight at the South Shore Country club, Donald McGibeny will speak on "What Is News from North Africa." Arthur H. Wells, president of the club, just has presented the club with a new shadow box diorama designed by the noted sculptor, Alfonso Ianelli. The work, showing three figures in battle action, is intended as a tribute to relatives in service of South Shore Country club members.

Tricky Bonnets Make Tomboys Feel Grown Up

BY REA SEEGER.

One sure way to induce little sister to get along without the unsightly head scarves is to provide a real hat, a hat that is as individually designed for freckles, pigtails, toothless grins, straight hair, or curly locks as the creations designed for the grownups. This has been accomplished, and by one of America's topflight hatmakers. It takes understanding and a kindred spirit to make hats for these youngsters, and the results are downright magic.

See these hats, complete with a famous label all their own and a specially designed hat box, a tiny model with bright printed top label and carrying strings. The creations to fit inside are the last word in millinery glamor for sizes 7 to 14. Both straw and felt are used for the hats presented this spring. The felts are gay and ideal for the all year round selection; the straws, bewitching scoop bonnets, brimmed affairs, and the very young versions of the up rolled bretons beloved of the older sisters.

Bows of ribbon, cunningly fashioned flowers of felt and ribbon, plaid taffeta ribbon ruchings in bright spring colors, effective fagoting with contrasting colored yarn, some two-inch wide grosgrain ribbon streamers to tie under a small chin, are some of the details. Whether your small daughter is the candy and spice little beauty, a tomboy or a quiet introvert, there's a hat in this superb collection that solves all the problems. All these charmers are now on display in Chicago, exclusively in one store.

Churches Thronged for Observance of Lenten Season Start

Throngs of Ash Wednesday worshipers assembled at churches yesterday for the beginning of the second Lent of the war. In all Catholic churches and in many Episcopal churches, ashes were placed on the foreheads of the devout. At the noonday services at loop points halls were thronged.

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling spoke before an overflow congregation at Kimball hall at the opening of the 48th season of loop Lenten services. He stressed the cross before Christ in his address.

At Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street, the Rev. Paul L. Kluender of Melrose Park, the Lutheran noonday preacher, spoke of Christ's victory on the cross.

Men in Service Seek Pingpong and Pool Table

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

From a service man stationed in the city:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am wondering if it is possible for you to help us obtain a pingpong table. It would be greatly appreciated by my group. Any other entertainment devices that may be offered to you also would be welcome. We would supply our own pickup and labor detail. This request is being made by me as an individual and not as a member of the service, altho I obtained the consent of my superior officer to make this request."

If any reader has table tennis equipment to dispose of—these men can make good use of it. They also would like to have a small victrola, records, and games.

Another group of service men stationed in the south have asked if "some good Samaritan around Chicago has a pool table to donate." If so, the men would be more than glad to pay the freight charges on it.

Further information concerning either of these requests may be had by writing or telephoning this department.

Talk on Flags Scheduled for New England Women

Mrs. Alonzo Newton Benn, national chairman of the Daughters of the American Revolution's committee on the correct use of the flag, will present a program on "America, Its History in Flags," at a luncheon meeting of Chicago colony of the National Society of New England Women at 12:30 o'clock today in the English room at Marshall Field's.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

Most players feel that they "know all about" hold-up plays, which they consider one of the elementary maneuvers. How wrong they are! For example:

North, dealer.
Match-point scoring.
East-West vulnerable.

♥ A 10 5
♦ K Q 10 5
♣ J 6 4 3

WEST
♠ J 10 8 7 4
♥ 8 6 4 3

EAST
♠ K 6 2
♥ K 7 2
♦ A 6 3
♣ K 10 9 7

SOUTH
♠ Q 9 3
♥ Q J 9
♦ J 9 8 2
♣ A Q 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade jack. Dummy ducked—and East made a play that was to have a sensational result: he also ducked! Declarer won with the queen and knocked out the diamond ace. East then cheerfully sacrificed his spade king to dummy's ace, altho of course he could have returned a low spade and established the king for a trick. Declarer now could run only three diamond tricks, two clubs, and one heart, without surrendering the lead to East who, of course, had retained his third spade and now used it to put West on lead. Thus, the contract was defeated.

It should be observed that if East had played the spade king—the "orthodox" play—at the first trick, no subsequent defense could have broken the contract. After winning with the king, East would have no better return than a spade. Dummy would win and the diamond ace would be knocked out. Now a third spade would be taken by South with the queen and the communication between East and West hands would be completely disrupted. Declarer, at his leisure, could take the heart finesse into East and even tho this lost, the subsequent club finesse would deliver nine tricks to the offense.

To return to the brilliant defensive play actually used, I wish to point out that there was nothing "double-dummyish" or psychic about it. It was based on the soundest sort of logic. On West's opening lead of the spade jack, the spade queen was definitely located in the South hand. Moreover, East could tell from studying his own hand and the dummy that declarer must hold every missing honor to justify his two no trump response. [As it was, South's holding was skimpy.] Hence, East could be certain that his own partner had no possible entry for his spade suit. That being so, only thru the sacrifice of his king could East force declarer to take the first two spade tricks and thereby leave him [East] with a spade communication card.

Of course, declarer could have countered East's plan by playing the spade ace on the first trick, or by ducking in both hands, but these would have been double-dummy plays.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., March 10.—Carole Landis doesn't want to wait until a story's written for her. She wants to work at once, so she'll costar with Sonja Henie in "Winter Time," which begins Monday. Sonja arrived today, and is she proud of her Capt. Dan Topping of the marine corps! . . . That sly minx, Paulette Goddard, has done it again, and has our girls screaming. She and Charles Boyer begin a tour in New York, Detroit, and Chicago for the Red Cross in April. Paulette will take along her "U. S. O." backless evening gown. . . . Well, well! As of today, the Constance Moore-Johnny Maschio separation and divorce was off. A beeeeg reconciliation took place. Wonder how long that will last. . . . Wendy Barrie denies she'll marry Benny Siegel. Benny has a wife and two children to whom he's devoted.

Constance Moore.

Deserves a Hand.

With "The Human Comedy" a hit and every one singing the praises of Saroyan, why can't we give Howard Estabrook some praise? He, singlehanded, did the screen play. And you remember it took four writers for "Miniver." . . . Bob Benchley has set aside his satire for the nonce. He's writing a serious biography of Queen Anne. Now you tell one! . . . Mrs. Y. Frank Freeman was a schoolmate of Madame Chiang Kai-shek when Madame was a miss of 14. . . . As Ann Sothern signed up Bill Morrow, one of Jack Benny's writers, for the blood bank, she said, "Gosh, wouldn't it be funny if the boy who gets this develops your sense of humor and does you out of a job when war's ended?"

Still a Leader.

Since the Academy award dinner, which did everything but distinguish itself, Mary Pickford, one of its founders, resigned. Says next year she'll give her own award dinner at Pickfair to those who developed this dinner—for courage, inspiration, and imagination. And a booby prize for the biggest boner of the year. Well, if she were handing out an award for courage today it should go to Col. Darryl Zanuck. . . . Hedy Lamarr, while waiting for the court to decide her case, is writing a short story—her own life, maybe. . . . Jack Doug-las thought his domestic trouble ended when he found a Chinese cook in Arizona, signed him to a two years' contract. But the minute he got here he was offered a part in a picture if he'd play a Jap.

Penny Foolish.

When and if Red Skelton goes east to take scenes of the Dodgers as they go into their spring training as part of "Whistling in Brooklyn," Red doesn't know whether he'll have to pay the freight on his radio performers or if Metro-Goldwyn will foot the bill. Such goings-on about it! But it's Ozzie Nelson who's on the spot. Nelson had to give the Biltmore, where he's been playing, a month's notice. He's given it. So if they don't go east, Nelson is out of a job. . . . The widow of Capt. Colin Kelly and his son arrived in town yesterday for a long visit with her brother, Radio Producer Ted Wick.

Hope It Works.

Our government is about to embark on a recruiting campaign to get people to move from civilian to war plant jobs. It will be ballyhooed in much the same way that bond drives are, with movie, radio stars, and what have you. The plan is to get citizens of the towns where the plants are located to take jobs. Drive will start in Baltimore middle of March. . . . In "Russia" Greg Ratoff will show a large kettle of soup being ladled out to soldiers. When asked what kind he wanted he roared, "Borscht, of course! My Russians wouldn't eat anything else." Yet it's our Yankee extras who'll eat it.

WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

By George Rector
Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

Rationing of food in this land of plenty is a new experience for all of us. It means that you will have to plan your meals more carefully if you want to keep on serving well-balanced nutritional meals. To help you, I am reproducing in this column a Guide to Good Nutrition. It shows the basic foods necessary for a correct, energy-building diet. To make your shopping and meal planning easier I suggest you clip this simple guide and use it to plan your meals several days ahead.

Pork Sausages in Blankets

Menu
Wilson's Certified Sausage Links (in blankets)
Broiled Orange Slices
Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Green Peas
Lettuce Salad
Wilson's Mayonnaise
Rhubarb Sauce
Beverage

A GUIDE TO GOOD NUTRITION

MEAT, POULTRY OR FISH—one or more servings daily.
EGGS—at least 3 or 4 a week, cooked any way you choose.
VEGETABLES—Green, Leafy and Yellow—one big helping or more a day—raw, cooked or canned.
MILK—at least a pint a day (more for children)—or cheese or evaporated or dried milk.
ORANGES, TOMATOES, GRAPEFRUIT—one of these at least once a day.
POTATOES, APPLES, BANANAS—other vegetables and fruits every day.
BREAD OR CEREAL—two or more servings daily.
BUTTER, FATS, SWEETS and seasonings as you like them.

MENU IN THE MAKING

Make a biscuit dough by sifting together 2 cups enriched flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Put in mixing bowl with 4 tablespoons Wilson's Bake-Rite Shortening. Mix to a fine crumb. Add ¾ cup cold milk and mix with a fork until the ingredients hold together. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead a few times.

Roll out to about ¼-inch thickness, and cut into 1-inch wide strips. Roll a strip around each link of Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage, which has been spread with mustard. Moisten ends and pinch dough together. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) about 20 minutes.

SHOPPING NOTE

Like many good Americans, some Wilson's Certified Products, too, have gone to war. If you cannot always find the Wilson product of your choice, won't you look for another before accepting a substitute? Remember, in wartime as in peace, "The Wilson Label Protects Your Table."

Burton Holmes Shows Exciting Films of Soviet

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Because for half a century Burton Holmes has had an insatiable curiosity about places and people, his 50th anniversary season of travel lectures has flashed many rare and even unique films on the screen at Orchestra hall. Last night, for instance, when he gave the first of three illustrated talks on "Our Russian Allies," his motion pictures ranged from his first visit in the imperial days of 1901 thru his soviet Intourist trip in 1934.

A few contemporary pictures of war havoc have been added, but it is not and never has been Mr. Holmes' hope to rival the newsreels. Why should he try, when they do their job so superbly, and he has his own unrivaled treasure house of old and new pictures, which includes a tattered and priceless glimpse of Tolstoi in what is believed to be the only motion picture ever made of that great Russian. Tolstoi, dressed like a peasant, posed for Mr. Holmes in the intimacy of his family back in 1901. For all its age, that picture makes him more alive today than volumes of biography.

With the magic of his curious camera, Mr. Holmes shows you the last czar and czarina on dress parade, and he shows you Joseph Stalin with Molotov and Kalinin on the reviewing stand of a Moscow May day. He shows you the great cities of the north, the lush loveliness of the Russian Riviera, and he crosses endless Siberian miles to glimpse Vladivostok. He has time for a Russian collective farm and for the incredible palace of Catherine the Great, with its carved jewel box of a salon made from amber presented to her by an equally picturesque sovereign, the mighty Frederick.

Mr. Holmes is no man to point morals in a lecture, but there is an unmistakable undercurrent of tragic irony running thru this story of a land of revolution and ravage. He shows you in the citadel of the Kremlin the wonderful church built to celebrate the defeat of Napoleon, and pulled down by Joseph Stalin in order to erect a soviet monument that never quite got built. He shows you churches turned into a mockery of the church.

All this rolls by in a panorama that fuses history in the brightest colors of drama. Perhaps you have seen the films before. I believe I have seen most of them at least three times, and I would go again. Partly for such exquisite glimpses as that lovely church silhouetted on a curving mountain top against the sea—a church turned into a road house, but at least unforgetable in outline. Partly for so rich and intimate a glimpse of a brave people whose fight for freedom has become so impregnable a part of our own.

Mr. Holmes will repeat the lecture tomorrow evening and Saturday afternoon.

Women in War Work . . . . . By Kate Massee

The regional representatives and vice chairmen of the women's division of the Illinois state council of defense will gather today for an all day meeting at the Palmer House. The program will start at 10 o'clock with a welcome by Murray M. Baker, vice chairman of the Illinois state council of defense. He will be followed by Richard W. Jones, director of civilian defense in Will county, who will discuss the organization of women's activities in local councils of defense.

The rôle of youth in war will be told by Miss Mary Ashby Cheek, president of Rockford college. Following lunch, the rationing program will be discussed by Carter Jenkins of the OPA. Gardening and gardeners will be the subject of a talk by Lester J. Norris, chairman of the council's war garden committee.

The proposed program for the care of children of mothers working in war industry will be discussed by Miss Edna Zimmerman, superintendent, and Miss Janet Pleak, field representative of the child welfare division of the state department of public welfare. Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vries and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, co-chairmen of the women's division, will speak briefly. Announcements of war activities will be made by representatives of various women's organizations.

Many of the older women who write to this department saying they are unable to obtain jobs because they're too old should be encouraged by the news that they can find plenty of pleasant work in restaurants. This fact was brought out yesterday by Miss Minnie Albert, Chicago restaurateur, at a meeting of the foods and merchandise committee of the Woman's City club, of which Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley is chairman.

Miss Albert said that where three months formerly was considered a term of long service for an employé, under war time conditions if an employé has remained for five or six weeks he or she is regarded as a veteran. She added that she considered a group of women ranging from 60 to 65 years of age as the mainstay of her own business. She said the turnover among more mature and experienced women was much less than among younger groups.

A group of members of the Navy Mothers' club who have birthdays in March will celebrate with a party this evening at 8 o'clock at headquarters, 335 North Michigan avenue. Tickets are 50 cents and will entitle the holders to prizes and refreshments. Proceeds will be used for the maintenance of the club's canteen, hospital, and welfare work.

Plans were outlined at a recent meeting of the organization for obtaining funds to help purchase a new cruiser Chicago. Mrs. George E. Stratton is chairman of the campaign, which will enlist the aid of more than 500 mothers and fathers of navy men to collect $500,000, which will be used to provide the proposed new ship's galleys.

A dance and party in Latin American tempo will be sponsored by the Rickenbacker chapter of the Women's Defense Corps of America at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street. Seven hundred service men are expected to attend.

Three WAAC officers will tell the story of the women's army auxiliary corps at the Shell School of Social Studies at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. Third Officers Elizabeth Sanphy, Cornelia Groenveld, and Nell Breeden, assigned to this district, will speak. The discussion is being conducted as part of the Shell school program of discussion of the issues facing American people in war time.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

THE STAGE . . . . By Cecil Smith

All the drama critics in Chicago ought to resign in a body, like the British cabinet, or at the very least ask for a vote of confidence from the readers. Not since the days of "Abie's Irish Rose" has a group of newspaper scriveners guessed the public reaction so badly as in the case of that incredible exhibit, "Maid in the Ozarks," which has now rounded out a full half year at the Great Northern theater.

It is now rumored that the management is preparing a second company of "Maid in the Ozarks" for the delectation of Detroit. If the hillbilly piece repeats its Chicago history in the motor city it is hard to imagine what could stop the management from bringing together two or three more companies.

At the Great Northern business continues not only unabated but on a constant crescendo. Out in Los Angeles "The Drunkard" has been running for something like 10 years. Perhaps "Maid in the Ozarks" will still be here in 1953.

I had thought, with a strange feeling in the pit of my stomach, of returning to the Great Northern some day to see whether I could discover what I had overlooked last September, when I had been full of self-congratulation because I had fulfilled my obvious duty, despite crushing boredom, by staying thru until the end. But Robert Pollak tells me that he has heard from the management in unambiguous terms. It wants no further comment from us drama reviewers, who never seem to be able to escape a certain tinge of acidity whenever the name of the play comes up.

Unlike Mr. Pollak, I have not yet been flattered by a promise of reprisals—in the form of a large paid advertisment in Variety, the theatrical trade sheet—if I do not lay off. But come to think of it, there is no denying my feeling of relief at the discovery that none of us is wanted at "Maid in the Ozarks."

Certainly the theater has its unexplained mysteries. As far as I know, nobody has ever been able to find out yet why "Abie's Irish Rose" satisfied such a huge public or, for that matter, why "Tobacco Road" had a run so out of proportion to its apparent deserts. It is easy to understand a "Hellzapoppin," which is raucous slapstick, or a "Life with Father," which is full of universal truth and humor. The weird phenomena of the theater are these meretricious little numbers which attract thousands.

Mrs. Edward J. Lewis, Social Service Veteran, to Be Honored at Tea

A tea in compliment to Mrs. Edward J. Lewis will be given today in the Cordon club in the Fine Arts building. Mrs. Lewis is retiring, after 14 years of service, as executive secretary of the division on family and child welfare in the Council of Social Agencies. Her work in social service in Chicago began in July, 1915, when she became a case worker on the staff of the United Charities.

Arrangements for the tea are being made by Mrs. Otto G. Schmidt, who has sent invitations to 400 board members of the council and social workers who have been associated with Mrs. Lewis. Among those in the receiving line will be Herman Dunlap Smith, president of the council; Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the division on family and child welfare; Lester Selig, Wilfred S. Reynolds, and Miss Elizabeth Webster.

Expert Praises the Patience of Child's Parents

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The other day I came across this poem I had been saving. It is called "Patience" and is by Virginia Brasier.

Often I watched my mother's mother sew;
Patching and darning endless piles of socks,
Letting down hems, that grow as children grow,
On handmade petticoats and gingham frocks;
Or hear my mother's voice stay soft and light—
Dealing with anger, fretfulness, or bruise;
As kind and quick to minister at night,
When surely sleep was very dear to lose.
Rich with the regal carelessness of youth,
I took their tireless service gracelessly;
Not much amazed at the unhappy truth
That no such sweet endurance dwelt in me.
Now, by the cradled child I bend above,
I know that patience is the gift of love.

"Rich with the regal carelessness of youth I took their tireless service gracelessly" expresses what youth does do, in a sense. It isn't that our children don't love us and that they don't show us consideration. They do both. In a high moment, they sometimes experience a flash of understanding of what we do in our love for them.

But being children, they can't also be parents! They can't know what depths of patience we call on to keep our voices "soft and light." Some day, however, they may. Some day, when they have grown to manhood and womanhood, they can look back and feel as the writer of this poem felt. Then they can repay this debt of love by exercising the same "sweet endurance" toward their children which dwelt in their own mother. I envy those young people whose fathers and mothers have lived long enough for them to know them and appreciate them as people.

Interesting news to the many friends of Lt. and Mrs. Frank E. Pierce Jr. [Mary Jean Curtis] is that Mrs. Pierce dropped her suit for divorce in Reno last Saturday just before it was due in court and flew to New York to join Lt. Pierce for a few days before he sailed on active duty with the navy. Also in New York for the family reunion were Lt. Pierce's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Pierce, who returned to Chicago yesterday. Young Mrs. Pierce will return to Grand Rapids, Mich., after her husband sails to be with their sons at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Heber Curtis, for the present.

Lt. and Mrs. Winston Elting [Marjorie Horton] are being congratulated on the birth of a son on Tuesday at the Passavant hospital. The baby, who will be named John, after Lt. Elting's brother, the late John Elting, and Winston, for his father, has two little sisters, Lysbe and Audrey. They are grandchildren of Victor Elting, now of New York, and of Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker.

Capt. and Mrs. Arthur A. Frank Jr. [Betty Crilly] became the parents of a daughter, Linda Elizabeth, on March 3 at the Evanston hospital. Capt. Frank, who is stationed at Camp Van Dorn, came home on leave to see his first child. Linda is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Crilly of Winnetka and of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Frank of Evanston.

The Alliance Française will meet at 3 o'clock today to hear a talk by Marius Jean on French paintings, entitled "Petits Portraits."

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Office Gremlins.

"Our office ffinella belongs to the communications sabotage branch of the gremlins. She crawls into the dictaphone and works with a pin on the cylinders. Then, when you listen carefully and transcribe, the words that come out are never the words that went in and no one will claim the finished letters.

"When the big shot is in a hurry, ffinella sits on the buzzer and you don't hear a sound. Then, when he emerges from his office with fire in his eyes and you try to prove the buzzer is out of order, she hops off and the result is a sound like a swarm of angry bees.

"We've tried leaving her candy and gum. It always disappears, yet she doesn't lose her appetite for the glue on special delivery stamps so the letters come back [next day] marked 'Returned for postage.'

"And the worst part is . . . nobody but me believes in her!"

—Margaret Bradford.

Peek-a-Boo.

From Ad-Lib: "Move over and make room for the flirtatious secretary who wrote: 'Office hours have been arranged to relieve congestion on public conveyances and to assist in spreading the peek load.'"

Finding Material in the Files.

Files are like families—taken for granted a good portion of the time but supremely important in an emergency. Irene McFarland, vice president of the New York Filing association, makes these suggestions:

1. Be sure you know what you are looking for. A name, a date, or a subject is necessary to identify material and you should not hesitate to ask for information if it is not given you.

2. If you have an index, use it. Do not waste time trying to remember file numbers, cross-references, or subject headings. Above all, do not interrupt a co-worker to ask whether she remembers.

3. When you go to the file have a clear idea of your locating process. Will you look for a letter of a certain date; will you find a particular name folder; what subject heading applies? To have a clear idea you must know how your files are constructed so there will be no fumbling.

4. Pay attention so you will not overlook the papers you seek. See what you look at.

5. Cultivate your imagination and your resourcefulness. Many requests for filed material cannot be taken literally. They have to be translated by the file clerk into what the boss really means.

6. Be alert to every bit of information that comes your way and then use it. Knowledge of the company's business can be acquired thru filing, and this knowledge will be helpful in giving service.

Heartsease.

"In wartime it is imperative we hang onto a sense of humor," says Helen Wolf, a supervisor of women in aircraft. "It eases the strain and helps clear thinking. If you have troubles keep them to yourself. The other person doesn't want to listen—she would rather tell her own."

HAWKS PIN CUP HOPES ON FINAL HOME GAME

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Cubs are possessed of four ground length robes, wired for warmth, designed for bullpen pitchers early and late in the National league season. . . . Expecting that the electric ulsters will be in great demand at the French Lick training camp, Trainer Andy Lotshaw plans to raffle off rights to the limited number of garments each day, profits to go to bond purchases, of course. . . . Wilbur Schumacher, star forward on the Great Lakes basketball team, lost part of his left index finger in a wood chopping accident when he was 10 years old. . . . His sister swung the ax. . . . Next year will mark the 75th birthday of professional baseball in Chicago, seven years before the National league was organized. . . . Louisiana State will use the T formation next fall, if Coach Bernie Moore has any one to make a formation with. . . . Since the Texas league has disbanded, the Southern association is trying to arrange a post-season series with the Pacific Coast league champions to replace the Dixie series. . . . One of baseball's earliest slang expressions was "Chicagoed". . . . It meant a shutout and was coined after the Chicago team had been thumped, 9 to 0, by the New York Mutuals on July 23, 1870. . . . The betting at the Fair Grounds track the day of the New Orleans handicap totaled $360,000, the heaviest mutuel play since the golden era of E. R. Bradley's time. . . . It will cost Brooklyn passholders 50 cents to be admitted to Dodger games this season, but half that sum will be returned to them in the form of a 25 cent war stamp. . . .

When Bob Evans, basketball coach, leaves Alabama Polytechnic in a few weeks to accept a navy commission Track Coach Wilbur Hutsell will be the only remaining member of a nine man coaching staff. . . . Jack Meagher, Boots Chambless, Buddy McCollum, Ralph Jordan, Porter Grant, Elmer Salter and Jimmy Hitchcock are in the service. . . . Jack Griffith, son of Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, who is assistant to Lt. Comm. J. Russell Cook at Great Lakes, recently was promoted from the rank of ensign to lieutenant [junior grade]. . . . Dixie Walker of the Dodgers received his 1943 contract the day he became the father of a baby daughter. . . . He said he would keep the baby, but he wasn't sure about the contract. . . . Maj. Edward Scott, who led a Flying Fortress attack at Rabaul, played half back at Mississippi State in the late '30s. . . . Dutch McCall, young left hander from Nashville for whom the Cubs paid $12,500, has left the hospital following a hernia operation and says he will be in shape to report at French Lick for opening practice. . . . One Cub prospect Trainer Andy Lotshaw was glad to see go into the army is Frank M. Kriszcziokatis. . . . However, Andy again will have Eddie Hanyzewski, his protege, whose name he hasn't learned to spell in four years he has known him.

My Hero.

He sleeps tonight beneath an alien sky
Where only the soft lapping of the wave
And the sad call of curlews soaring by Disturb the hush of silence at his grave;
And yet he loved light laughter
And sweet song
And welcomed the warm handclasp of a friend,
And gloried in the gladness of the throng
Tho he was far from loved ones at the end.

May the white stars watch over him tonight,
And spring's young blossoms spill their perfume there,
And may the moon spread tapestries of light
Above the shadows of his sepulcher;
And may each murmur of the sounding sea
Whisper my love for all eternity.

SERVICE BOXERS SEEK CHANCE TO WHIP NEW YORK

Nine Among 32 on Intercity Squad.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Army camps and naval training stations have played so active a part in the current Golden Gloves campaign that seven soldiers and two sailors have earned places on the Intercity squad of 32. Their pals back in camp will give them an enthusiastic sendoff when they return to Chicago to meet New York's representatives in the Intercity matches in the Stadium March 31.

Fort Sill, Oklahoma, turned on surprising power in the recently concluded tournament, two boys from this post taking Golden Gloves championships. Barry Darby captured the flyweight title and Earl O'Neal took top honors among the bantams. Both are privates in the 18th field artillery.

Two Fighters from Camp Grant.

Camp Grant has two representatives on the squad, tho neither was able to win a championship. These are Gene Roberts in the bantamweight class and William Zielke in the 175 pound.

The Navy air technical training center at Memphis has taken two places on the squad. Harry Joyce caught the coaches' attention by his brilliant work in the middleweight division and Joe Luciana distinguished himself among the featherweights. Both are seamen second class.

Tom Attra, former 175 pound champion who lost to Reedy Evans in the quarter-finals this season, will be back to train for the Intercity bouts. He is a private first class at the 53d air base squadron, Brooks field, Texas.

Schafts, Anderson Complete Roster.

Leo Schafts, a light heavyweight who is a private in the 346th air base squadron at Berry field, Nashville, and Bill Anderson, a private in the eighth armored division at Camp Campbell, Kentucky, complete the roster of military members of the Intercity squad.

The soldiers and sailors are keeping up their conditioning at their various camps and will return to Chicago in time to go into team training at the Illinois Athletic club under Coaches Fred Caserio and Issy Klein and their staff of assistants.

The battle for the alternate fighting assignment in the 175 pound class will be an all-army affair with Attra, Zielke and Schafts striving to get the call. Evans, the champion in this class, automatically draws the job of fighting New York's champion.

Cheered for Fighting Spirit.

Thruout the recent Golden Gloves tournament, the soldiers and sailors displayed a fighting spirit that drew heavy cheers from the crowds. Even those who didn't win championships showed themselves to be game and rugged punchers. They seem assured of quite a few places among the 16 on the team which eventually will be named to face New York. The rivalry during the training period is kept up right to the last day because the coaches refrain from making their choices until every boy on the squad has had a full chance to show whether he has a right to a fighting assignment.

The New York champions will be crowned at the conclusion of their tournament Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week in Madison Square Garden.

Meanwhile Chicago boxing fans have made an early rush for the ticket counters, and sales are reported considerably heavier than in previous recent seasons. Tickets are on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower lobby. Prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 cents.

WINTER—BUT SOX LEAVE IN A WEEK

And It's a Bit Nippy Down at French Lick.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Now that you have enjoyed this last dose of beautiful snow, pause to consider that one week from 9:15 o'clock tonight the White Sox will leave the Dearborn street station for their training camp in the deep south. Early the next morning, eight days from right now, they will be at French Lick, deep in southern Indiana, ready to launch their spring conditioning program.

French Lick, you know, is 279 miles from Chicago. West Baden, where the Sox actually will do their outdoor work, is one mile north of French Lick, but this is not expected to make much difference in the temperature between the spot where Sox will bathe and where they will cavort.

Bite in the Air Down There.

Bobby Dorr, superintendent of grounds at Wrigley field, who has been in French Lick and West Baden supervising the construction of the two playing fields, is back in Chicago. His response to inquiries about the two fields seemed more like a gargle than a gurgle of enthusiasm.

"Pretty breezy down there," added the landscaper after making the funny gutteral noise. "They haven't so much snow but plenty of nippy air."

Bob said there was one day while he was there that the mercury mounted to 76 degrees outdoors, but he wasn't fast enough to get a candid picture of the thermometer to bring back home.

High Water, Too?

Dorr says that the two fields will be "as good as could be expected." That cautious limit is as far as he will go. It was he who advised the Sox only last week to move from a horse track in French Lick to a semipro park in West Baden.

A stream called Lost Creek winds thru the French Lick area in which the Cubs' practice field is being built. It is said that one and all are hoping Lost Creek stays lost thru the spring thaws and freshets.

Ross Returns Home Tonight for Brief Visit

Corp. Barney Ross of the United States marines will be given a hero's welcome when he returns to Chicago early tonight after service on Guadalcanal. The former Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight champion, who went on to capture three world boxing titles, will be met at the Chicago airport by a group of friends, headed by Mayor Kelly.

En route to the field the mayor's limousine will pick up Barney's mother, Mrs. Sarah Rasofsky, at her home, 3050 Roosevelt road. From the airport Barney will be escorted to the Morrison hotel, where Leonard Hicks, the managing director, has reserved the bungalow there for the west side hero's convenience during his brief stay.

Barney originally was to arrive before noon today, but was delayed because of his appearance last night on a radio program originated in Hollywood, Cal. The revised schedule forced cancellation of his presence this afternoon at Treasury center to help the bond selling campaign for the U. S. S. Cruiser Chicago.

Ross will leave at midnight for New York to participate in a Red Cross benefit rally in Madison Square Garden on Monday.

Ross will receive the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque in the Garden tomorrow. Former Mayor James J. Walker will make the presentation.

WARD TO ADVISE ON RECREATION FOR SERVICE MEN

Washington, D. C., March 10 [Special].—Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, today accepted an invitation from Arthur W. Page, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, to serve as adviser on athletics to the Joint Army and Navy Committee on Welfare and Recreation. The committee, of which Mr. Page is chairman, has been formed to advise the secretaries of war and navy and the civilian agencies coöperating with them on matters affecting the welfare, education, and recreation of service men. Mr. Ward has agreed to work with the committee for the rest of 1943.

PLAY TONIGHT IN 13 STATE MEETS

Field for Finals Will Be Decided by Saturday.

Sectional tournament play, last stop before determining the 16 teams to compete in the state finals next week-end, will open tonight in 13 centers thruout Illinois for the remnants of the 878 prep quintets which began the month long tourney activity two weeks ago.

Elgin, one of the other two sites for the four team sectional meets, will open its schedule tomorrow night with the final booked the following evening while the Robinson meet will be packed into Saturday afternoon and evening.

Centralia Will Be Missing.

When these 15 downstate representatives finally are determined by Saturday night they then will join with Chicago's city champion to march on George Huff gymnasium of the University of Illinois in Champaign next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in quest of the state high school championship.

Altho nine of last year's 16 finalists still are in the running for a return ride to Champaign, Centralia, the defending champion, is missing for the first time since 1928. In its place as No. 1 team in the state's aristocracy of interscholastic basketball will be Paris, a fitting successor in view of its runner-up spot to the Orphans a year back. The popular choice from Edgar county's broomcorn center will be making its sixth bid for final competition in eight years in the Casey sectional.

Seven Expected to Come Thru.

The other eight members bidding for another chance in the finals are Moline, West Frankfort, Wood River, Dixon, Decatur, Quincy, Normal, and Freeport. At least seven of these are believed able to turn the trick, for the only instance where two of these are paired in the same field is at Moline where the host and Dixon will have to work out their own problems. First round pairings:

TONIGHT.

AT CASEY—Windsor vs. Vandalia; Paris vs. Mattoon.
AT DANVILLE—Danville vs. Paxton; Cissna Park vs. Champaign.
AT DECATUR—Springfield vs. Taylorville; Lincoln vs. Decatur.
AT GALESBURG—Galesburg vs. Monmouth; Dallas City vs. Canton.
AT HIGHLAND—Roodhouse vs. Wood River; Hillsboro vs. Greenville.
AT JOLIET—Joliet vs. Somonauk; Gardner vs. Bradley.
AT LA SALLE—Mendota vs. Normal; Kewanee vs. Granville.
AT MOLINE—Moline vs. Savanna; Dixon vs. Aledo.
AT MOUNT VERNON—Mount Vernon vs. West Frankfort; Du Quoin vs. Belleville.
AT MURPHYSBORO — Murphysboro vs. Vienna; Marion vs. Anna Jonesboro.
AT PEKIN—Peoria Manual vs. Springfield Lanphier; Pekin vs. Bloomington.
AT QUINCY—Quincy vs. Rushville; Perry vs. Bluffs.
AT ROCKFORD—Rockford West vs. Sycamore; Rochelle vs. Freeport.

TOMORROW NIGHT.

AT ELGIN—Oak Park vs. Winnetka New Trier; Elgin vs. West Aurora.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

AT ROBINSON—Mount Carmel vs. Salem; Lawrenceville vs. Flora.

Harrison and Lindblom Win Way to Finals

Prep Basketball

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
City League Semi-Finals.
Seniors.
Lindblom [central], 40; Amundsen [north], 26.
Juniors.
Harrison [central], 32; South Shore [south], 25.

Lindblom High school, defending City league senior basketball champion, defeated Amundsen, north section champion, 40 to 26, yesterday on the Crane Tech court and qualified as Kelvyn Park's opponent in the final of the league playoffs on Saturday. This game has been set for Lane Tech's gymnasium at 3 p. m.

In yesterday's other playoff contest, Harrison, runner-up in the central junior race, beat South Shore, second place winner in the south section, 32 to 25, at Chicago Teachers college. Harrison's victory earned it the right to oppose Marshall for the junior championship at 2 p. m. Saturday in Chicago Teachers' college gymnasium.

Lindblom Starts Slowly.

Lindblom, second in the central section during the regular season, started slowly, trailing, 4 to 3 at the end of the first quarter. Then George Scalamera and George Molnor began hitting the hoop and Lindblom pulled into a 15 to 11 advantage at the half.

With Molnor and Scalamera controling the rebounds, this margin was boosted to 30 to 17 at the end of the third period. Scalamera, with 21 points, was high individual scorer. Don Kenny of Amundsen kept his team in the game by contributing 11 points. It was Amundsen's first defeat of the season in league competition.

Two Holdover Regulars.

Scalamera, the center, and Wilbur Vander Ploeg, a forward, are the only two regulars back from Lindblom's 1942 championship team, altho all the other squad members except George Klupchak and Ray Perisin were members of the senior squad last year. These two played with the juniors last season. Perisin has missed the last three games because of illness and at present is in the Chicago Memorial hospital.

Harrison was hard pressed by South Shore thruout the junior game. Harrison led, 9 to 7, at the end of the first quarter, but South Shore rallied and tied the score at 17 to 17 at the half. Harrison then applied the pressure to score 10 points while holding South Shore to 5 in the third quarter and outscored the south siders, 5 to 3, in the final period.

West Section Teams Unbeaten.

The finals will send the central section against the west division in both classes. Both of the west section champions, the Kelvyn Park seniors and Marshall juniors, are undefeated in league play, each having won 13 straight this season. In addition, Marshall has a winning streak that extends back into 1939 and totals 79 games. Marshall has won the junior championship for three straight years, and will enter the final game a decided favorite to make it four in a row.

Kelvyn Park is rated as the first choice to annex the senior championship and win the right to represent Chicago in the state tournament beginning a week from today in Champaign. In addition, both the City league junior and senior champions will meet the Catholic league title holders in the Stadium on March 27, with the proceeds going to the Chicago service men's center.

FACE MONTREAL TONIGHT IN 4TH PLACE BATTLE

Aim to Go on Road 4 Points Ahead.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks and the Montreal Canadiens, two hockey troupes which always have been willing to play for money, marbles or chalk, tonight will forget the last two stakes and battle on the Stadium ice for keeps and the cash that goes with a place in the Stanley cup foursome. The Hawks are technically still within that quartet, but by the puny margin of a single game over the fifth place Frenchmen.

The Blackhawks' final workout yesterday was brightened considerably by the working appearance of Earl Seibert, who donned skates for the first time since he suffered recurrence of an instep injury in Toronto on Feb. 27. Manager Paul Thompson was highly cheered by the large gent's efforts, and said he will make the decision on starting him late today.

New Attendance Mark in Sight.

The hockey portion of our citizenry has become so worked up over the vital nature of the contest that the boxoffice barometer yesterday was indicating a new Thursday attendance record. Aside from the season opener against Boston, which brought out 13,036 fans, and the Thanksgiving night duel with the Rangers, which drew 11,354, the 1942-'43 season mark for a Thursday is 10,305, set on Nov. 19 against Detroit. In this, their last regular home game of the campaign, the Hawks would require 14,595 spectators to match their last season's aggregate of 323,777. While such a gathering is unlikely, the lads can still claim a remarkable count at the gate, considering this winter-ridden war year.

While the team was going thru its finishing exercises, Mr. Joe Farrell, that old delver into digits, was emerging from one of his statistical seances with several interesting items, some good, some bad. Not the cheeriest of these is the fact that Montreal holds a marked edge in the series, having won four, lost one and tied three of the eight played. Chicago, which must face the Frenchmen again in Montreal on Saturday, hasn't been able to win up there, losing three and tying one. In the Stadium, the Frenchmen yielded one contest, won one and tied two.

The league standings of the two teams to date follow:

	G.	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
CHICAGO	46	17	16	13	47
Montreal	46	18	19	9	45

Three to Play After Tonight.

Thus, after tonight's battle, the two have three games to play, including their Montreal encore of Saturday. While the Hawks are meeting the Rangers in New York Sunday, the Canadiens will be visiting Boston. Next Thursday night, Chicago plays at Detroit and Montreal entertains the Rangers. Two home games against the Hawks' finishing three on the road give the Frenchmen another psychological advantage, particularly if they whip the local boys this evening.

MANUEL ORTIZ STOPS SALICA IN ELEVENTH ROUND

Oakland, Cal., March 10 (AP).—Shifty little Manuel Ortiz of El Centro, Cal., left no doubt as to who is the world bantamweight boxing champion, scoring a technical knockout over Lou Salica of Brooklyn in the 11th round of a scheduled 15 round bout here tonight.

Ortiz won the title from Salica last August, but the New York state athletic commission refused to recognize him as the champion because that fight was over the 12 round distance. Ortiz has been recognized by the National Boxing association, however.

Ortiz dropped his rival in the 11th round for a nine count with a terrific right to the body and then won the bout when Referee Billy Burke halted the contest. Ortiz weighed 117½ and Salica 118. Gate receipts were $10,323.

THEY RING THE BELL!

Remember that day at the county fair when you won the nickel cigar? There's a bigger reward in store for you when the opening gong sounds for the 16th annual Intercity Golden Gloves bouts in Chicago Stadium the night of March 31. If you have the forethought to order tickets now you'll witness an evening of boxing you'll long recall.

Sixteen bouts are on the program matching Chicago's champions, drawn from 23 states, against New York's best, survivors of tournaments involving the entire eastern seaboard. The battles are sure to carry that extra punch, for Chicago will seek to avenge a 9 to 7 defeat absorbed last year.

Tickets are on sale in the Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower, and 1 South Dearborn street. The Tower is open until 5 p. m. and the Dearborn street office until 7 p. m. daily. The prices:

$3.30—$2.20—$1.65—$1.10—55 Cents

ENTRY IN TECH RELAYS SOARS TO RECORD 421

Big Ten Frosh Among the Stars from 36 Schools.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

An all-time record of 421 athletes are entered in the Illinois Tech relays which will be held Saturday afternoon and evening in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. These men represent 12 universities and 24 colleges.

Indiana university was the last to file an entry in the university group and will be represented by Lou Saban, Western conference shot put champion, and the mile relay team, which won the Big Ten title last Saturday night. Preliminaries in the Tech meet will be held Saturday afternoon starting at 3:30. The championships in the four field events will start at 7 o'clock that evening and the first race will be held a half hour later.

Two Programs Alike.

The program for the university and college sections is identical. Each will comprise 12 events, including the mile relay. In addition to these 24 events there will be a relay for city high schools, another for the Catholic high schools, and a special event for junior colleges.

The increase in the number of contestants is due in part to permission by the Western conference for competition by freshmen. The University of Illinois track team, which finished third in the Big Ten indoor meet last week, has entered a number of freshmen. In this group is Dwight Eddleman, who will compete in the high jump. His best mark, an outdoor jump of 6 feet 6¼ inches, is better than the winning marks in both the Western conference and Central Collegiate meets.

Milne Defends Title.

James Milne of Michigan State, defending high jump champion in the Illinois Tech games, tied for second place in the Central Collegiate meet last Saturday in East Lansing with a mark of 6 feet 2 inches. Charles Murphy of Notre Dame and Emmett Murphy of Marquette tied with Milne at this height. All three of these men will compete against Eddleman Saturday night.

Bob Hodgell of Wisconsin, Herb Matter of Illinois, and George Hoeflinger of Ohio State, tied for the Big Ten high jump championship at 6 feet 2 inches. They also are entered in the Illinois Tech high jump.

Saban's entry in the shot put—he won the Big Ten title with a toss of 48 feet 11½ inches—completes a field which includes all Western conference and Central Collegiate point winners. Jim Delaney of Notre Dame won the Central Collegiate title with a new meet record mark of 50 feet 5⅝ inches.

Three Star Shot Putters.

Elmer Aussieker of Missouri is the defending shot put champion of the Illinois Tech meet. Two weeks ago he had a mark of 50 feet 4¾ inches in the Big Six meet but finished only second in the event. Saban, Delaney, and Aussieker make up an impressive trio of weight men.

The list of champions entered Saturday includes all 11 athletes who won in the Central Collegiate games; seven Western conference champions, and four from the Big Six. Nine of the 1942 winners in the Illinois Tech meet will return to defend their titles.

CHALKY WRIGHT K. O.'S PIRRONE IN THIRD ROUND

Cleveland, O., March 10 (AP).—Chalky Wright, former featherweight champion in New York state, knocked out Joey Pirrone of Cleveland in the third round of a scheduled 10 round bout in the Arena tonight. Another knockout featured the scheduled 10 round semi-final. Curtiss Sheppard, Negro heavyweight from Pittsburgh, disposed of Joe Maxin of Cleveland in 51 seconds of the first round. Sheppard caught Maxin against the ropes and delivered three vicious overhand lefts to the head. The Cleveland boxer sank to the canvas and it was several minutes before his handlers could revive him.

Gills Retain Margin with Two Victories

The Joseph L. Gills maintained their lead of four games in the Classic Bowling league by winning two out of three from the Budweisers last night. The Thompson Restaurants vaulted into second place by sweeping their series with the Washington Shirts, rolling the top series total of the night, 3,128, in doing it. The Schlitz Beers took three from Prima Pilsner while Meister Brau and United States Beer won two from Monarch and Ambrosia respectively.

George Calder had the high individual series, 709, and Howie Busick turned in the best single game, 257. Scores:

FRANK J. BRYAN, RACING OFFICIAL, DIES AT AGE OF 79

New York, March 10. (AP).—Frank J. Bryan, 79 years old, for many years secretary and handicapper of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association, died today. For more than 50 years Bryan was associated with racing, beginning as a newspaper reporter assigned to cover races. In New Orleans he developed a racing chart which became the model for charts later adopted generally by newspapers.

His service as a track official led 35 years ago to his association with the National Steeplechase and Hunt association which holds jurisdiction over all jumping races in the country. In that capacity he became a noted handicapper. He retired in 1938.

Bryan had served as racing secretary of the Maryland Jockey club, steward at the Pimlico track, racing secretary and steward at Suffolk Downs in Boston, Mass., steward at Narragansett, R. I., steward for the Massachusetts State Racing commission, and secretary for all steeplechase racing in New York.

Tribune Again Will Sponsor Casting Meet

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Fisherman, better oil up your reel because you'll have a chance to use it and your casting rod starting April 3, when the Tribune sports department again sponsors a casting tournament in the International Sportsmen's show to be held in Chicago Stadium. There will be events for fishermen who can use their regular casting outfits and contests for members of the various casting clubs in the city.

This casting contest set new world records for the number of competitors for two consecutive years. It has been one of the most popular features on the show program, for the various competitive events give both bait rod and fly casters a chance to improve their skill and at the same time try for a handsome trophy.

Compete from Five States.

In former years contestants in the team event have come from five different states, establishing it beyond doubt as one of the leading casting events in the country.

This year's schedule again emphasizes events for novice casters and fishermen who belong to no casting club. William J. Butler, chief engineer of the Shedd aquarium, will be in charge of the tournament this year, as he has been for the last several years.

In addition to the various events in which fishermen may compete for prizes by tossing their casting plugs at the 30 inch rings in the Stadium pool, this year's program will include free advice and coaching on how to cast either a bait or fly rod. Expert casters will be at the pool every day to teach beginners how to toss a lure. The complete program of casting events for each day of the show will be announced in this department within a few days. At that time an entry blank will be printed.

New Types of Exhibits Arranged.

This year's Sportsmen's show not only is being held later than it was last season, but also will feature many new types of exhibits and entertainment for outdoor fans, Nick Kahler, general manager of the show, said yesterday. Swimming and diving exhibitions, animal acts, and trick shot golfing are three of the new entertainment features.

LEIBER FORSAKES GIANTS TO REMAIN ON CHICKEN FARM

New York, March 10 (AP).—The New York Giants lost another player today when Hank Leiber, veteran outfielder, notified Manager Mel Ott he planned to remain on his chicken ranch at Tucson, Ariz. Leiber, who is married but has no children, said he had received an agricultural deferment from his draft board.

Ott also received a call from Bill Cox, new owner of the Philadelphia Phillies, but neither would say if they talked about a trade. Before Cox's arrival, however, Ott said he was not interested now in either of the Phillies' first basemen—Babe Dahlgren or Ed Levy.

"We'll string along with Johnny Mize until Uncle Sam actually takes him, and then we'll start looking in a hurry for a first baseman," said Ott. Mize recently was reclassified 1-A.

RAMBLERS AND MIDGETS WIN IN B. B. Y. O. TOURNEY

The Boy's Brotherhood Republic Midgets and Ramblers won their games in the school division of the B'nai B'rith Youth organization basketball tournament last night in the Boy's Brotherhood gymnasium. The Midgets triumphed over the Halevy A. Z. A., 47 to 7, and the Ramblers eliminated the American Boys Commonwealth quintet, 45 to 9.

Another pair of games will be played tonight on the same court. The first game at 6:45 o'clock will send the Whiz Kids against the Rothchild A. Z. A., and the second pits the Bar Mitzvah A. Z. A. against the Ojibwa Panthers. Both games are in the school division.

CLARK REQUESTS HIS RELEASE AS COACH OF RAMS

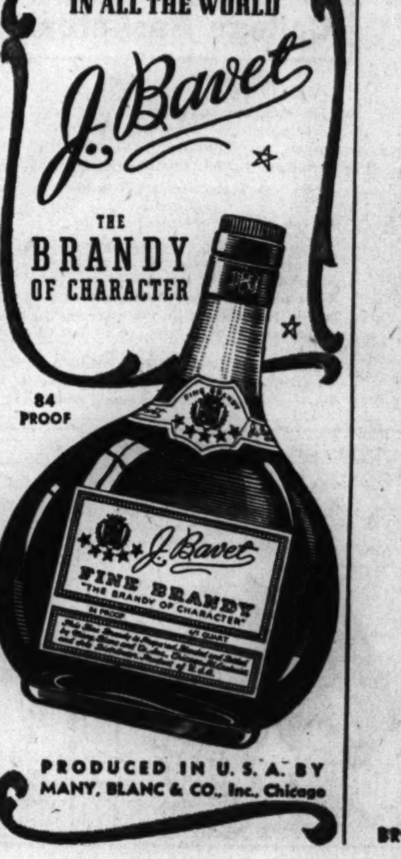
Dutch Clark, for four years coach of the Cleveland Rams, has notified Lt. Daniel F. Reeves, club president, and Maj. Fred Levy, vice president, he does not wish his contract renewed for 1943, it was announced yesterday by National Football league headquarters in Chicago. Clark reported his decision by long distance telephone from his home in Pueblo, Colo.

Chile Walsh, former Chicago Cardinals' assistant coach, and for the last two years Clark's assistant in Cleveland, was recommended by Clark for the post.

Clark said he told Cleveland officials he wished his release because of the confused football situation existing there and that he had other proposals under consideration which he wished to be free to consider. He said he did not wish to retire from football, and hinted at least one of the ventures under consideration was a football offer.

RIKARD, PIRATES' ROOKIE, WILL BE INDUCTED TODAY

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10 (AP).—Culley Rikard, recruit outfielder, notified the Pittsburgh Pirates today he would be inducted into the army at his home in Olive Branch, Miss., tomorrow. Rikard, 10th member of the club to join the service, was acquired from Memphis of the Southern association after his sensational 1941 season there.



SPRING TRAINING HEADQUARTERS OPENED BY REDS

Squad to Start Drills at Indiana Monday.

Bloomington, Ind., March 10 [Special].—The Cincinnati Reds, who come to Indiana university next Monday for spring training, today announced the player personnel expected by Manager Bill McKechnie.

The Reds' management opened headquarters in the Graham hotel, where the team will reside, and two trucks brought the club's equipment to the Indiana university fieldhouse.

Quarters Assigned.

Gabe Paul, the Reds' secretary, assigned living quarters to the following players:

Pitchers—Joe Beggs, Leonard Bobeck, Ed Heusser, Robert Malloy, Elmer Riddle, Clyde Shoun, Ray Starr, Vern Stone, Johnny Vander Meer, and Bucky Walters.

Catchers—Dick West, Ray Mueller, Al Lakemen, and Anthony De Phillips.

Infielders—Bert Haas, Frank McCormick, Linus Frey, Eddie Miller, Woody Williams, Steve Mesner, Johnny Conway, Garton Del Savio, and Damon Phillips.

Outfielders—Eric Tipton, Mike McCormick, Ed Lukon, Max Marshall, Estel Grabtree, Frank Kelleher, Henry Sauer, and Gerald Walker.

ATHLETICS ROSTER COMPLETE.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10 (AP).—The roster of the Philadelphia Athletics has been completed, President Connie Mack announced today following receipt of the signed contracts of Pitchers Lum Harris and Orrie Arntzen, the latter a recruit purchased from Williamsport of the Eastern league.

"The A's prospects for the season, however, are not too good," Mack said at a meeting of the Chester Kiwanis club.

"The catching is O. K. and so is first base," he said. "I have a young fellow named Irvin Hall who probably will play second. I'm thinking of moving Peter Suder to short if Eddie Mayo comes thru at third. And I have five young outfielders to pick from."

Declaring that signing up the team was accomplished without a salary dispute or holdout, Mack said he doesn't consider Bob Johnson, veteran outfielder, a holdout. "He's just a fellow who doesn't want to play for us," Mack said. Johnson has demanded that he be traded.

The A's will report to their Wilmington, Del., training camp March 21.

BROWNS TO LOSE McQUILLEN.

Frederick, Md., March 10 (AP).—Glenn McQuillen, 26 year old outfielder of the St. Louis Browns, will be called up for induction in either the April or May quota of his selective service board, Frederick county draft officials said today.

McQuillen, a resident of Brunswick, Md., previously had been classified 3-A. He is unmarried but supports his mother. The draft board said the ball player already had undergone his physical examination and would be included in one of the next two groups to be called up for service.

The draft board said the 3-A classification of Charlie Keller, New York Yankee outfielder, was unchanged. Keller, a resident of Frederick, is married and the father of two children.

Kansas City, Mo., March 10 [AP].—The Missouri Valley A. A. U. today called off its spring indoor track meet, scheduled for March 27 in Kansas City.

C. Y. O. Boxing Centers Thrown Open to Women

The C. Y. O. center gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, which for 12 years has been the training site of amateur boxing champions, has capitulated to the gentler sex.

Beginning next Tuesday evening the gym will be open to young women interested in taking classes in physical fitness which the Catholic Youth organization will conduct. Classes will be from 6 to 10 o'clock. Any girl or woman interested is welcome to enroll in the specially arranged program which will be put into effect immediately. The program will be under the direction of Miss Eileen Scanlon, coach of Mundelein college's swimming team.

Women in war work and downtown office workers should be particularly interested in the C. Y. O.'s physical fitness program, according to Jack Elder, athletic director of the Catholic Youth organization. Elder, who will have supervision of the program, urges interested girls to phone Wabash 1114 or write the C. Y. O., 31 East Congress street.

DROP MAN O' WAR'S BOOKINGS; FOALS WON $3,007,967

Lexington, Ky., March 10 (AP).—Owner Samuel D. Riddle today announced that all bookings for Man o' War for the 1943 season had been canceled and that it was improbable that the famous race horse and sire would be bred in the future. Big Red will observe his 26th birthday March 29. He is still in excellent health for a horse of his age.

To the first of this year, Man o' War had sired 350 foals of racing age, and these offspring had earned $3,007,967, an average earning of $8,594 a foal. Among his best get have been War Admiral, Crusader, American Flag, Mars, Edith Cavell, and Battleship.

The son of Fair Play and Mahubah, bred by August Belmont and purchased by Riddle as a yearling, was retired to stud in 1921 after racing two seasons. He won 20 of his 21 races.

ADMITS HALTING FELON'S PLEA TO SUPREME COURT

Prison Guard Bares New Suppression Case.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday took up the case of Leon Marsh, prisoner in the Joliet penitentiary who was punished for addressing an appeal for a habeas corpus writ to Justice Hugo L. Black of the United States Supreme court. Marsh's efforts in his own behalf came to the court's attention during a hearing on a plea by another convict from the state prison, John Bongiorno, that he is being subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Constitution.

The Bongiorno proceedings were halted temporarily when James R. Carpenter, captain of guards at the Joliet prison, told of sending Marsh to solitary confinement for five days for attempting to send a letter to Justice Black.

Judge Defends Prisoner.

"I think that the prisoner had an absolute right to communicate with Justice Black," said Judge Barnes, who recently compelled prison authorities to permit Bongiorno's handwritten petition to be sent to him when he learned of its existence. All prisoners who wish to do so should be allowed to send out petitions to any court, whether in legal form or not, or whether written with pen and ink, pencil, or on a typewriter, he told prison officials at the time.

"I have seen men trying to break into prison before," the judge commented when Capt. Carpenter testified he had confiscated the document addressed to Justice Black.

Letter Not on Prison Paper.

Carpenter later explained that because Marsh's letter was not written on prison paper, it was assumed that the prisoner intended to smuggle it out of the prison. In addition, the guard said, the letter was not a petition by the convict, but a plea intended to be rewritten by the prisoner's wife as her appeal to the high court. Capt. Carpenter said another violation of rules found in the letter was a criticism of a state judge.

The full letter was then read into the record. It was phrased as if written by Marsh's wife. It told of her efforts and his to get a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus. The letter said the United States District court at Chicago [of which Judge Barnes is a judge] was denying her husband justice. Specifically, the letter said Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan had refused to accept or act upon a petition sent to him.

Marsh also sent appeals to former Judge Ed Wilson and Judge James V. Bartley of the state Circuit court at Joliet, according to the letter. Judge Wilson ignored the one addressed to him and Judge Bartley returned his to Warden Joseph E. Ragen, according to the complaint to Justice Black.

Sentenced for Forgery.

Marsh was sentenced to 1 to 14 years for forgery, from Jackson county, in 1921. He was paroled in 1922, subsequently served prison sentences in three other states, and a term in the Milwaukee, Wis., house of correction, and eventually was returned to Illinois as a parole violator.

During the Bongiornio hearing in the morning Judge Barnes indicated he intended to investigate the imprisonment of so-called "banishment parole" convicts upon their return to Illinois, altho the state had waived its claims on them when they were arrested in other states. Banishment parolees, it was explained, are warned they will be put back in prison if they return to the state, but claim that imprisonment after state waiver of claim is illegal.

The Rev. Elegius Weir, chaplain of the Joliet penitentiary, testified he believed it was an injustice for Illinois to punish such men again.

Courtney Evades Question.

State's Atty. Courtney also was a witness. He said no punishment was too severe for Bongiorno, the killer of a policeman. He refused to give an opinion as to whether a sentence of 199 years is more severe than an ordinary sentence of life imprisonment, as Bongiorno contends. The difference, it was explained, is that a prisoner sentenced to life is eligible for parole after serving 20 years, while a prisoner given a definite sentence must serve one-third of it before he can get a hearing from the parole board.

When court adjourned for the day Judge Barnes again directed Warden Ragen to allow any prison inmate to send a plea to any judge. Ragen said it was never his policy to prevent prisoners from seeking writs. The Bongiorno letter had been withheld by the former warden, E. M. Stubblefield, it was explained. Stubblefield may be called as a witness later.

DEFEAT OF KELLY WILL HELP BEAT F. D. R.: LINDBLAD

Henry D. Lindblad, Republican candidate for city clerk, said last night the Chicago city election April 6 affords one way of stopping a fourth term for President Roosevelt. He spoke before the Illinois Republican Service Men's league in Hotel Sherman.

"If Mayor Kelly is elected," said Lindblad, "it will mean the Kelly-Nash machine will control the delegates to the Democratic national convention. This will mean that Kelly will have to deliver the Illinois delegation as he did last time. If Kelly is defeated by George B. McKibbin, the G. O. P. nominee, the free Democrats of Chicago will have a chance to select regular Democratic delegates so that the voice of real Democrats from Illinois may be heard in that convention."

At Democratic headquarters it was a day of repose. It was announced that Benjamin Adamowski, attorney of the election board, will be on the air tonight with a reply to McKibbin's charges that the Democratic machine is seeking to capture the rationing machinery of Chicago.

Col. A. A. Sprague, head of Chicago Citizens, a nonpartisan organization formed to aid Mayor Kelly, put out a statement that in nine years under Kelly, Chicago's debts have been reduced $112,699,900.

R. J. ROULSTON'S WIDOW INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Maud Roulston, 80 years old, 1148 Lake Shore drive, widow of Robert J. Roulston, former vice president of Durand-McNeill and Horner, wholesale grocers, was injured seriously last night when she was struck by an automobile at Dearborn and Goethe streets. She had slipped on the icy street and fell into the path of the car. Mrs. Roulston was taken to Henrotin hospital, where physicians said her right leg was fractured. Police freed Robert Kemp, 45, of 6230 Kenmore avenue, driver of the automobile.

Five children and two adults, waiting on the sidewalk to cross the street at 64th street and Union avenue, were struck and injured by an automobile hurled into their midst by a collision with a motor truck. The injured were taken to St. Bernard's hospital. Angelo Pusateri, 32, of 749 South Kilbourn avenue, driver of the truck, was arrested.

Mrs. Ella Jones, 85, 410 South Ashland boulevard, died in County hospital after being injured Tuesday when she and her son, Howard, 49, were struck by an automobile at Ashland and Jackson boulevards. Jones was slightly hurt. The driver, Paul Dopke, 25, of 2528 Wayne avenue, was held.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 100 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 78 persons were killed in Chicago, where 2,498 were injured in traffic accidents.

OFT-REGISTERED VOTER'S PENALTY 90 DAYS IN JAIL

William Gurley, 57 year old, a Negro living at 4913 Champlain avenue, was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki on his plea of guilty to a charge of falsely registering as a voter.

His plight was brought about in part by the suspicions of a girl clerk in the election commissioners' office. She registered Gurley Monday under the name Henry Peterson. Later she saw him attempt to register again at another desk.

REMOVE TUMOR FROM BRAIN OF FLYING BABY, 3

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 10 (AP).—Dr. Max M. Peet, University of Michigan hospital brain specialist, today removed a large malignant tumor from the brain of Isabel Salvador Sole, 3 year old daughter of a Cuban physician, rushed here by plane Sunday from Havana, Cuba.

Dr. Peet said the operation was successful, but said X-ray treatment would be required and that the tumor "will probably grow back."

REVIVAL OF TAX ON HELD PROFIT GIVEN SETBACK

Dividend Decision Jolts Treasury.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Plans to revive the federal tax on undistributed earnings of corporations received a setback when the United States Supreme court reaffirmed its earlier rule that dividends on common stock paid in the form of additional common stock are not taxable.

The decision, handed down 10 days ago, may have important influence on future tax legislation affecting corporations, it is believed by lawyers who studied the court's decision.

The treasury is reported to have been seeking a basis for putting the undistributed earnings tax back in the revenue code. Such a tax was in effect from 1936 thru 1939 and was repealed by congress over the protests of the treasury department.

Termed "Recovery" Measure.

The original purpose of the tax, as described by its sponsors, was to prevent corporations from accumulating unnecessarily large reserves from earnings. By taxing the undistributed earnings the administration sought to put a premium on the payment of dividends. The tax was defended by its proponents as a "recovery" measure.

Altho economic conditions have undergone a complete change since repeal of the tax, its revival is now favored by treasury experts on other grounds. The intention, until the court upset the plan, was to seek reenactment of the tax as a revenue measure.

The tax would force corporations to pay out more of their earnings in dividends which would be taxed in the hands of individuals receiving them.

It was realized by the proponents of this plan that a new undistributed earnings tax would be subject to the same criticism that led to repeal of the old act.

Many Need to Retain Cash.

The principal defect of the tax was held to be the inability of many corporations to pay out their earnings in dividends because they needed the cash to finance expansion and build up reserves. The argument would carry even more potency under present conditions when corporations are in need of cash to finance war production. The proponents of the undistributed earnings tax, however, believed that their case would be strengthened if dividends paid in common stock were made taxable. A corporation could pay dividends in the form of additional stock and the recipients of the dividends, not the corporations, would bear the tax. These corporations would then be on the same tax basis as corporations that were able to pay cash dividends.

Because the court reaffirmed the earlier rule, the plans to revive the undistributed earnings tax have been blocked for the time being. However, the court left a loophole which may yet prove to be the grounds on which a reënactment of the tax will be sought.

The court declined to reëxamine the 5 to 4 decision written in 1920 in the Eisner vs. Macomber case on which the tax exemption of stock dividends rests.

Leaves It Up to Congress.

In explaining its action the court said there has been no legislation by congress since 1930 authorizing the taxing of common stock dividends paid in additional stock and the old ruling still stands. This fell short of a clear cut victory for those who had fought the tax on the grounds that dividends paid in stock do not constitute income as defined in the 16th amendment and are therefore not subject to taxation.

Whether an effort will be made to get legislation thru congress at this session authorizing such a tax is still uncertain. It is considered doubtful that the present congress would approve it. However, such legislation will be necessary, it is believed, before the undistributed earnings tax can be revived with any chance of passage by congress.

Open New York-Dakar Radiotelegraph Circuit

New York, March 10 (AP).—R. C. A. Communications, Inc., announced the opening today of a radiotelegraph circuit between New York and the West African port of Dakar.

Stock Market Prices Decline; Volume Drops

New York, March 10 (AP).—Stock market prices today fell back a little more from the two year peaks established at the close of last week.

The swing was comparatively mild. Fractional losses were plentiful among leaders, and closing quotations were generally above the lows. Shipbuilding stocks and a few miscellaneous issues finished with gains ranging from fractions to a point or more.

A decline in volume on the sell-off led brokers to suggest there was no rush on the part of profit sellers.

Transactions totaled 928,950 shares, against Tuesday's 1,420,213. It was the first time dealings went below the million share level since Feb. 19.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off .2 of a point at 45.9 for the third consecutive time.

The German counter-offensive south of Kharkov and in the Donetz basin made buyers cautious, altho the war outlook as a whole still was regarded as favorable.

BOND PRICES NARROW.

New York, March 10 (AP).—Bond market prices were narrow today with firm spots in reorganization rails offset by numerous declines. Many issues were unchanged.

Activity fell off on the uncertain performance with sales at $15,028,700 against $18,615,000 Tuesday. Rails, industrials and foreign issues in the Associated Press averages were unchanged and the utilities and low-yields each declined .1 of a point. United States government issues and foreign loans showed little change.

CHICAGO LIST WEAK.

Prices were mostly lower on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on trading of 34,000 shares. Volume leaders included Loudon Packing company, up ½ to a new 1942-'43 high of 6¼; Peabody Coal, up ⅝ to a new high of 3½; Chicago corporation, down ⅛, and Four Weel Drive Auto company, up 2 to 11⅛ after touching a new high of 11½.

LEWIS PRESENTS MINERS' DEMAND FOR $2 PAY RAISE

New York, March 10 (AP).—A basic increase of $2 a day for all bituminous coal miners, with a minimum of $8 a day without exception, and unionization of all employés below the rank of superintendent were demanded formally today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. The demands were presented at the opening session of the Appalachian joint wage conference.

The requested increase, Lewis said, would help the miners meet increased costs of living which, he said had been in the case of food essentials, 124.6 per cent.

MILEAGE SAVED BY FLORISTS IN POOLING TRUCKS

Tire conservation thru the operation of a truck delivery pool has been achieved by seven northwest side florists who are participating in the arrangement, Paul Karns, assistant Chicago district manager for the office of defense transportation motor transport division, said yesterday.

The florists organized a corporation, pooled their trucks, and gave all their delivery jobs to the corporation, he explained. By this arrangement, they have eliminated duplication and wasted mileage and have achieved important economies. The florists are located in the Elston and Lawrence avenue district.

ARBITRATORS' RULING FINAL IF WAGE PEG IS NOT VIOLATED—WLB

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The war labor board emphasized today that it will review wage awards of arbitrators only on the question of whether the award is compatible with the wage stabilization program, and that it will not review other issues in the awards.

A formal opinion written by Vice Chairman George W. Taylor for the majority in the case of the New York Herald-Tribune and the CIO New York Newspaper guild upheld the decision of a three man arbitration panel selected by the parties. Employer members dissented from the 8 to 4 decision.

The board majority found that the wage award for employés of the editorial department "is quite within the board's 15 per cent maladjustment policy," based on the total average increases granted since Jan. 1, 1941.

Dr. Taylor's opinion said refusal to review judgments of the arbitrators except as to wage stabilization "is in the interests of preserving to the parties their right to use, as far as possible, mutually agreed upon methods for resolving their differences."

Adolph Hinder Is Convicted as Job Absentee

"Adolph Hinder," the war plant worker who wasn't there, was found guilty last night of tardiness and absenteeism in a mock trial held in the plant of the Manufacturers Screw Products company, 222 West Hubbard street.

Half serious and half comedy, the trial was arranged by the plant's labor-management committee and carried out to emphasize how one cog in the machinery of war production may hinder the flow of material to the front.

Because he has a mustache, Robert Gale, 4508 North Central Park avenue, the plant shipping clerk, was the defendant Adolf. A jury of six plant employés with perfect attendance records recommended all the punishment the law allows, and more for good measure.

Municipal Court Judge J. M. Braude, who brought a staff of bailiffs and clerks along to make it appear legal, compromised with a sentence at hard work in a war plant for the duration.

Benjamin J. Sackheim, company president, said the company's absentee problem had been minimized since it began awarding war bonds and stamps to steady workers and posting the names of absentees on the bulletin board, but added the innovation of a mock trial might have a salutary effect on the problem in war plants generally.

WRIGLEY VOTES EXTRA DIVIDEND PLUS A REGULAR

Directors of the William Wrigley Jr. company, Chicago chewing gum manufacturer, yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents on common stock, in addition to a bi-monthly disbursement of the same amount. Last year the company paid monthly dividends of 25 cents each.

Spokane International Railroad company declared an initial dividend of $2.50 on common stock.

252 Firms Get 80 Per Cent of War Contracts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—More than 67 billions of war contracts, or nearly 80 per cent of all contracts awarded, were held by 252 large corporations on Nov. 30, Col. Robert W. Johnson, chairman of the Smaller War Plants corporation, reported today.

Col. Johnson released a list of the companies and the amounts of their contracts in letters to the secretaries of war and navy and chairman of the maritime commission, asking them to report the extent to which these companies have subcontracted their business to smaller concerns.

Asks Subcontract Data.

Col. Johnson's letter said that "field reports failed to indicate any effective response" to a request made Dec. 15 by the war production board, army, and navy to prime contractors urging them to extend subcontracting to smaller companies.

He asked the war and navy departments and the maritime commission to report by April 7 the number and dollar value of prime and subcontracts for the 252 corporations, the methods being used to increase subcontracting and the methods used to assure subcontracting on an equitable basis.

"I am aware that some of the services have succeeded in getting some prime contractors to spread the work, and that some contractors have set up adequate reporting systems so that the information requested will be readily obtainable," Col. Johnson said. "Others I feel certain, are not doing so well."

Contracts Exceed 67 Billions.

Today's report by Col. Johnson showed that the 252 largest recipients of war business were awarded 67 billion 380 million 800 thousands dollars in war contracts between June 1, 1940, and Nov. 30, 1942.

Of these, 16 corporations were awarded contracts totaling more than 1 billion dollars apiece. Eleven others each received more than a half billion in contracts. The largest recipient was General Motors corporation, followed by Curtiss-Wright corporation, and Bethlehem Steel corporation. The top 16 companies and the total war supply contracts received by each follow;

OPA SAYS COURT LACKS POWER TO REVISE RENT PEG

Prentiss Brown, OPA administrator, has denied that the Emergency Court of Appeals, Washington, D. C., can give relief to individual landlords whose rents are frozen so low by OPA imposed rent ceilings that they are unable to meet operating expenses, it was learned yesterday.

Brown's assertion was in answer to an appeal to the court by Clarkson W. Loucks, Chicago attorney, of an OPA order last January refusing to grant rent increases to the owners of the 900 North Michigan Avenue building, 3750 Lake Shore drive, and several south side properties. The order said the OPA is not required by law to recognize individual hardships, even tho the owners are unable to pay real estate taxes or are in danger of losing their properties thru mortgage foreclosure.

Supply of Gasoline, Fuel Oil Declines During Week

New York, March 10 (AP).—National gasoline and fuel oil stocks declined in the week ended March 6 and index indicating civilian supplies on the eastern seaboard dropped to only 32.5 per cent of normal, compared with 35.7 on Feb. 27 and 60.1 on Sept. 12, 1942, the American Petroleum institute reported today. Total gasoline stocks decreased 312,000 barrels.

ASSERTS PRICE TOP WON'T EASE HOG PROBLEMS

Rice Urges Halting Illegal Sales.

Ceiling prices on live hogs, which are reported to have been decided upon by federal price control authorities, will not solve the widespread problem of illegal dealings in meat and will not increase meat supplies, Charles Rice, president of the Chicago Live Stock exchange, said yesterday. He declared such a maximum may even increase illegal market activities by reducing the operating costs of violators.

"A price ceiling on live hogs will solve nothing unless it can be enforced in channels other than the open markets," Rice said. "We have plenty of evidence, based on past experience of the office of price administration, which convinces us that it cannot be enforced except in markets where legitimate trading takes place.

Just One More to Violate.

"A price ceiling on live hogs will not give the army and lend-lease buyers more pork. It simply creates just one more ceiling to violate. Until the OPA finds a way to control black markets for meat, there is no use putting more restrictions on legitimate trade."

Rice said ceilings would prevent the open market from rising, but that illegal operators could exceed them just as they have broken quota restrictions.

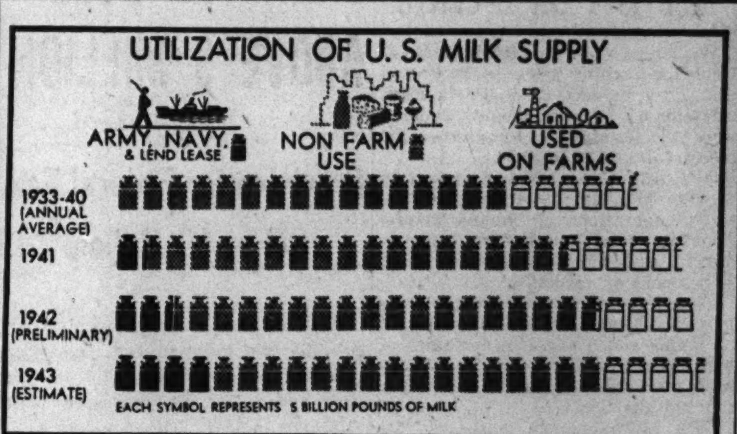
Other stockyards sources asserted that the OPA would find a live stock ceiling more difficult to enforce than retail and wholesale meat ceilings. They agreed such action in the long run would not increase the volume of animals passing thru inspected channels, altho a temporary increase is expected in sales by farmers who had held back hogs in the hope prices would go higher.

Report Order Is Held Up.

Other Chicago sources said they had been informed from Washington, D. C., that the department of agriculture is opposing the proposed hog ceiling because of the difficulty of administering it, and that James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, has agreed to delay announcing the measure until it can be discussed with industry leaders.

George A. Eastwood, president of Armour & Co., said that altho the present law under which price ceilings are established directs that allowance shall be made for a fair operating margin, present ceilings on meat in relation to live stock costs do not permit packers to operate profitably.

The retail ceilings, licensing and projected live hog ceiling were viewed as attempts by the government to comply with the packers' demands for a solution to the problems of animal supply and operating margins before expecting increased supplies of meat. Industry spokesmen also have asserted that illegal markets could be eliminated largely by increasing civilian supplies.



Milk and Egg Output Soars to New Peaks

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Production of milk and eggs, two major foods sought in larger quantities this year for war needs, established new records in February despite shortages of labor and other farm difficulties, the federal crop reporting board said today.

The board's report came after a senate agriculture subcommittee recommendation for an immediate increase in prices of milk and other dairy products as a means of forestalling what it described as impending shortages. The committee said a crisis in the dairy industry "will become stringently acute" by late summer unless more labor is made available and costs of production are cut.

Well Above Average.

The output of milk was estimated at 8 billion, 380 million pounds compared with 8 billion, 299 million in the corresponding month last year and with the average February production of 7 billion, 404 million during the 1937-'41 period. The total produced during January and February was 17 billion, 153 million pounds compared with 17 billion, 38 million in the corresponding months last year.

Food officials said this report on the production gave reason to hope that milk production this year may exceed last year's record output of 119 billion pounds.

High Protein Feeds Scarce.

"There have been numerous complaints from dairymen on inability to obtain high protein feeds for mixing home grown grains and of shortages of farm labor, but these factors have not caused a serious reduction in production per cow, the board said.

Egg production in February was estimated at 381,400,000 dozen, an increase of 19 per cent above the record output of February last year.

NEW RETAIL EGG PRICE CEILINGS EFFECTIVE; CHICAGO TOP 51 CENTS

New retail price ceilings for eggs, based on fixed percentage mark-ups over wholesale ceilings for four classes of stores, go into effect today.

The retail mark-ups range from 12 to 17 per cent over cost, with small independent grocers permitted to charge more than chain stores and other large retailers. For Chicago, this will result in a top retail price of 51 cents a dozen for grade A eggs.

The wholesale ceilings fluctuate with the seasonal rise and fall of egg production and prices will reach a peak in November. Thus during 1943, wholesalers can charge Chicago retailers 41.4 to 56.7 cents a dozen for grade A eggs, and 39.4 to 48.5 for grade B. According to the OPA, the effect will be to lower retail prices a cent or two this spring, but will raise average prices for the entire year about one to two cents compared with 1942 levels.

NEW TRUCK POOL FALLS TO 57,573; 111,758 RATIONED

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Only 57,573 new commercial motor vehicles remain in the national reserve pool, the WPB said today, describing it as a "critical situation."

It said the reserve pool would be drawn upon only in cases of the most pressing need.

At the same time, WPB announced that 1,532 vehicles were released during the week ended March 6, bringing the total released to 111,758 since rationing began March 9, 1942.

BORDEN PROFITS RISE LITTLE ON 25% SALES GAIN

Warns Civilians Will Get Less Food.

The Borden company, New York, large manufacturer and distributor of milk and dairy products, detailed in its annual report to stockholders yesterday the war impelled changes in its operations and finances during 1942. The company reported an increasing amount of food production for the government and said it would have less to sell to civilians during 1943.

Net sales last year totaled $325,350,306, an increase of 25.6 per cent over the 1941 volume of $259,128,514. Net income was $8,379,654, equal to $1.91 a share of capital stock, compared with $8,270,572, or $1.88 a share, the year before.

Operating Costs Climb.

Taxes totaled $15,096,404, against $8,593,518 in 1941. The company reported that in 1942 it paid $224,925,806 for dairy products, wages and salaries, and for taxes, compared with $187,470,287 for these items in 1941.

Theodore G. Montague, president, said the sales increase resulted in part from higher prices on many items and in part from larger volume in all major divisions except export. Results in the fluid milk division, particularly in large centers such as Chicago and New York, continued unsatisfactory, he said.

Concurrent with the annual report, C. L. Dressel, president of Borden's Chicago milk division, announced that the local unit showed a profit of 1.43 per cent on total sales last year. Rapidly rising milk costs in the last quarter, he said, had an adverse effect on operations.

Government Needs Rise.

As in 1941, Montague reported, large quantities of dairy products were needed to meet government demands, while civilian requirements also increased. He said the company is "wholeheartedly coöperating"

. . . HOW THE INVESTOR MAY JUDGE MUNICIPAL BOND MARKETABILITY
What are the factors that determine the salability of municipal bonds? Why do some municipal bonds have better marketability than others? These and related questions are answered in the booklet illustrated above. . . . Of interest to experienced buyers, and important to beginners who, by reason of increase in 1942 Federal income taxes, now find it advantageous to consider merits of municipal bonds, income from which, under present laws, is exempt from all Federal income taxes.

It's Always "Pay As You Go" With Estate Taxes

The desirability of putting income taxes on a "pay-as-you-go" basis has been increasingly favored in governmental circles. Estate taxes, however, have always been subject to immediate collection, even if forced liquidation of the estate is necessary to meet the obligation.

With death taxes at their current high levels, it is particularly important that persons of property prepare to meet the impact of such levies. In this connection, our trust officers can contribute valuable suggestions drawn from their years of experience. We invite you and your attorney to consult with them — without obligation, of course.

Why not come in today and discuss the practical, necessary steps which you can take now in planning your estate?

TRADERS WARNED AGAINST ILLEGAL CORN OPERATIONS

Violation of Trade Board Rules Is Reported.

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday acted to prevent the possibility of illegal market operations in corn futures prior to an office of price administration announcement in regard to permanent ceiling prices on that grain which, it was predicted, may be 8 cents a bushel above the current temporary ceiling.

Members were warned by exchange officials that certain transactions in corn futures had taken place wherein no exchange of cash grain for futures was involved and on which no quotations had been reported. The warning was said to be the outgrowth of an office transfer of 10,000 bushels of May corn from one individual to another, which violates exchange rules. The effort to transfer the corn was said to have been made at the ceiling price.

Futures Close at Ceiling.

In moderate trade in corn futures, which took the form of spreading between the various deliveries, some brokers bought May corn at 99½ cents a bushel and sold September at $1.00⅝, with May ⅛ cent below the ceiling. However, this "exchanging" was not regarded as new business and all futures closed at the ceiling price bid.

There also was spreading between September and December at ¼ to ¾ cent difference and at ½ cent difference between July and December.

Brokers explained that this class of trading was not in violation of OPA regulations as long as the highest price of any of the futures did not exceed the permissible figure at which it can sell. Traders expected the new ceiling prices and trading regulations to be issued on or before Saturday.

Wheat Closes Lower.

Trading in wheat, oats, and rye futures was not as active as recently, wheat developing an easy undertone on selling attributed to spreading with other markets and pressure from cash interests. It closed ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower. Oats finished ¼ cent lower to ¾ cent higher and rye was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Dry sections in the southwest have received partial relief thru snow recently, the weather bureau reported. Some damage was reported in parts of the Ohio valley where expanding soil has broken the roots of wheat plants.

OPA LIFTS TOP PRICES FOR BANANAS; RETAIL RISE IS 1 OR 2 CENTS

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Importers' ceiling prices in the United States for bananas from Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras and Panama were increased $1 a hundredweight today, from $4.50 to $5.50.

OPA said the action was taken to provide financial attraction for continued operations of banana plantations in those countries. Shipping difficulties have cut imports to about 20 per cent of normal.

The same order increased wholesale mark-ups 7 per cent for bananas sold on stems and 9 per cent for sales of bananas cut off the stem. The wholesaler mark-up now is 35 and 46 per cent for the two types.

OPA estimated the increased cost to the consumer at 1 to 2 cents a pound.

MOST OF SOVIET PIPE RUSH ORDER BEGS FOR BUYER

New York, March 10 [Special].—Recent lend-lease statistics showing that up to Feb. 1, about 580,000 tons of steel had been shipped to Russia with heavy tonnages of other items do not tell the entire story of the steel industry's great effort to assist the soviet, Iron Age asserted today.

Early last year mills were forced to shunt aside important domestic orders to get out about 130,000 tons of pipe and odd sizes for Russia, said the publication. Not all of it was shipped, however, and about 89,000 tons are still in this country awaiting a buyer thru the metals reserve company. Disposal may be difficult.

"The case is reminiscent of a large tonnage of galvanized sheets for China which still remains in this country," says Iron Age.

Wide progress has been made in relieving critical shortages of steel needed for aircraft, the publication asserted.

REPORT OF PRICE CEILING ON HOGS CAUSES DECLINE

Reports that the government plans to place ceilings on prices of live hogs caused a price slump yesterday, but brought only a moderate increase in farm shipments. The general level of prices was the lowest in two weeks.

Declines were 25 to 50 cents, a large part 35 to 50 cents lower in late trading. The average fell 40 cents to $15.25, and was 55 cents below the 24 year March high set three days ago. It is now only 25 cents above the $15 ceiling said to be proposed by the office of price administration.

Prices of other classes of meat animals were not influenced by the slump in hogs. Most classes held steady, with some slightly stronger.

File Fertilizer Facts.

March 10, 1943.

THE FARMER'S meal time once was a period of quiet and rest. Now under the steady pressure of hundreds of government regulations, the farmer finds himself trying to eat with one hand while with the other he fills out some of the innumerable federal forms that overflow his mail box and desk.

A chance visit at noon to the manager's house the other day found him spooning soup with one hand while filling out an application for fertilizer with the other.

He is planning to use commercial fertilizer on his cornfields this year, as the corn that was treated last season far outdid the unfertilized grain. The fertilizer is drilled in with the corn with a special fertilizer attachment on the corn planter.

Helps Speed Maturity.

As the machine moves down the field dropping the kernels, a thin stream of fertilizer is spread on the ground. This gives the corn an extra push thru the early growing season and also helps it to an early maturity.

The manager has ordered 10 tons of 4-12-4 commercial fertilizer. To get it he had to fill out an application blank specifying the crops it will be used on, the number of acres, the amount desired, and a history of the fertilizer used on the farm in past years.

Because of the expanded farm program there has been a heavy demand for fertilizers, and the manufacturers can deliver only 50 per cent of the order before April 1. Increased acreages and increased food goals have boosted the consumption of fertilizer so rapidly the dealers and manufacturers are hard put to keep up with their orders.

Under a federal food production order fertilizer may not be used on some crops, and its use on others has been limited. Crops have been divided into two groups, labeled A and B. The A crops are considered vital and have a priority over B crops in the use of fertilizer. They include hybrid corn grown for seed only, castor beans, hemp, guayule, vegetables, and others.

Feed Corn Is B Crop.

Corn grown for feed is classed as a B crop and hence must wait until the fertilizer requirements of the A crops are met before it can be served.

Also the order directs that fertilizer shall be distributed on a historical basis in line with the fertilizer used by the grower during the two previous seasons. Provision is made for A crops for the grower who has no history.

Despite restrictions and the greatly increased demand, the National Fertilizer association reports that there should be enough fertilizer to take care of all A crops by planting time. There may be a delay in filling orders for B crops, but even these are fairly sure of getting enough fertilizer to do the job.

The farm manager expects to get his five tons in a week or so. By hauling it himself, and also some for the neighbors, he will be able to get it more cheaply and help out other farmers who have placed orders and are awaiting delivery.

PULLMAN CO.'S EARNINGS CLIMB ABOVE 9 MILLION

Provision for Federal Tax Bill Is 10 Million.

The Pullman company, sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman, Inc., yesterday reported profit of $9,150,768 in the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $1,855,069 in 1941. The company said, however, that the 1942 figure was subject to a deduction of 2½ million dollars appropriated from income to create a reserve for post-war readaptation of Pullman equipment.

The company's gross revenue for the year was $95,439,990, against $66,002,739 in 1941. Provision for federal taxes on income increased to $10,454,616 from $894,631.

December Profits Increase.

December profits climbed to $3,717,987 from $285,127 in December, 1941. It was explained that the unusually large total for last December was caused principally by an overaccrual in the first 11 months of the year of provisions for federal income and excess profits taxes.

Consolidated net income of Link-Belt company, Chicago, was $2,472,829, or $3.21 a common share, in the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $2,913,059, or $3.95 a share, the preceding year. The 1942 total was before a post-war credit of $1,006,000 on excess profits taxes, addition of which resulted in a total of $3,478,829 net income transferred to surplus. Income and excess profits taxes more than doubled in 1942 to $11,426,000 from $4,742,463 the year before.

VICTORY TAX.

I am a traveling salesman working on a straight commission basis with no drawing account. I pay my own expenses and maintain an office and a staff of assistants. My manufacturers are deducting the 5 per cent victory tax from the gross amount paid me. Do they have the right to do this, especially when only a portion of the amount they pay represents net income to me?—J. B.

Answer: If there is a relationship of employer and employé between you and the manufacturers you represent, the manufacturers are obliged to withhold the victory tax. On the other hand, if you are an independent contractor, free to conduct your business without supervision or direction from the manufacturers, their payments to you would not be subject to the victory tax withholding.

Assuming that the relationship is that of employer and employé, the excessive deduction represented by the withholding of victory tax on payments covering expenses may be adjusted when your income tax return for 1943 is filed.

NOT DEDUCTIBLE.

I have been forced to borrow on my life insurance policy and the interest charged by the company is added to the loan, thus reducing my policy. Is this interest deductible from 1942 income?—R. P. C.

Answer: Interest payable to a life insurance company on a policy loan is not deductible if the interest is merely added to the amount of the loan and deducted from the value of the policy.

SERVICE PENSIONS.

I was a nurse in the British army during the first World war and now receive a pension from the British government because of injuries received. Is such a pension taxable as income?—T. O.

Answer: Amounts received as pensions, annuities or similar allowances for personal injuries or sickness resulting from active duty in the military service of any country are exempt from income tax.

NOT REPORTED.

A close relative lived with us during 1942 and contributed her share toward the upkeep of the home. Is this considered taxable income to us?—W. J.

Answer: If the relative's payments represented only her share of the living expenses and did not afford a profit to you, they should not be reported as income.

BORDEN PROFITS RISE LITTLE ON 25% SALES GAIN

Says War Will Cut Food Supplied Civilians.

For several years the company has diversified its products, and many of these new products reached new high sales volume in 1942. Current shortages of materials, containers and equipment, however, have made further expansion more difficult, except for those items required by the government, he said.

Montague said that efforts to develop new products will be continued this year, but that emphasis will be confined largely to those products which are needed for war. As an example of this work, he cited the substantial quantities of dehydrated soup, dried eggs, dried lemon and orange juices, and dehydrated coffee which Borden is producing for military use, and said that output will be stepped up materially in 1943.

Dehydrated Food to Increase.

He said that after the war the company will be prepared for "active participation in the field of dehydrated foods, which seems destined to become one of the most important developments in the history of the food industry." He mentioned dried cream soups, having a base of powdered milk, and dried coffee extract as some of the foods which will be ready for public distribution when the war is over.

"We shall have less [in 1943] to sell old customers," Montague said, "less ice cream, powdered milk, cheese, fluid milk and cream, and less of many other items of our normal line of products. We shall give more and more of what we do have to help the army, navy, and lend-lease."

Ice cream and cheese sales in 1942 were at new highs, he said.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Company) hereby invites tenders of the secured obligations of the several issues and series above listed.

Persons, desiring to tender any such obligations, should fill out and mail to the Company at its office at No. 2 Wall Street, New York, N. Y., a tender or tenders in the form supplied by the Company, limiting each tender to a single issue or series, if any, and to one price per $100 principal amount.

All tenders of any said secured obligations must be received by the Company at the above mentioned address on or before 3 o'clock p. m., Eastern War Time, March 20, 1943. Notice of acceptance in whole or in part or of rejection of tenders will be mailed to the makers of the tenders not later than March 29, 1943, at the addresses appearing in their respective tenders. Notice will be published on or before March 25, 1943, stating the prices up to and including which each issue and series, if any, have been accepted.

All such secured obligations shall be tendered at a price per $100 principal amount. Fixed interest on all secured obligations, delivered pursuant to tender acceptances, will be paid, as part of the purchase price, to April 15, 1943, but not thereafter.

All secured obligations, delivered pursuant to the acceptance, in whole or in part, of a tender, must be delivered in negotiable form and must be so delivered during the period April 5-15, inclusive, 1943, at the office of the Company, No. 2 Wall Street, in the City of New York, N. Y., where payment therefor will be made.

All secured obligations in coupon form, delivered pursuant to the acceptance, in whole or in part, of a tender, must be accompanied by all appurtenant fixed and contingent interest coupons, maturing after April 1, 1943. All registered secured obligations must be accompanied by duly executed bond powers, with signatures guaranteed.

Requests for tender forms may be addressed to the Company at its office, Baltimore, Maryland, and marked "Attention: J. J. Jenkins, Treasurer," or to the Company at its New York office, No. 2 Wall Street, New York, N. Y., and marked "Attention: W. R. Bixler, Assistant Treasurer." All other inquiries and correspondence regarding this invitation should be addressed to the Company at its office, Baltimore, Maryland, marked "Attention: J. J. Jenkins, Treasurer."

If not available at your bank or broker's office, tender forms will be supplied by the Company upon request.

If the principal amount of the secured obligations tendered by any one person (other than by a bank, trust company, insurance company or member of a national securities exchange or association) does not exceed $100,000 principal amount, arrangements must be made with a bank, trust company or member of one of such exchanges or associations to surrender the secured obligations tendered in case of acceptance, in whole or in part, of the tender. Banks, trust companies and insurance companies may make arrangements for delivery of the secured obligations tendered by them through another bank, trust company or member of one of such exchanges or associations. The bank, trust company, exchange or association member, signing the tender form in the space provided therefor, delivering and accepting settlement for secured obligations pursuant to and in accordance with an acceptance, in whole or in part, of a tender of another party or person, will be paid by the Company $2.50 per $1,000 principal amount thereof.

The Company reserves the right, in its absolute discretion, to accept or reject any or all tenders of any of said secured obligations or to accept any portion of the secured obligations covered by any tender and reject the balance.

Baltimore, Maryland, February 25, 1943.

LOANS

To Pay Income Taxes

If you have been unable to save up enough to pay your tax on March 15, investigate Household's simple plan. Borrow all or part of your tax instalment without endorsers—no credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

CASH LOAN YOU GET.	3 payments.	4 payments.	6 payments.	9 payments.	12 payments.
$ 25	$ 8.85	$ 6.73
50	17.69	13.46	$ 9.24	$ 6.43	$ 5.03
75	26.54	20.20	13.86	9.65	7.55

MONEY FOR INCOME TAXES

$25 for 30 Days
Costs Only 75c

Higher taxes and larger pay roll deductions may make it difficult for you to meet the March 15 deadline this year. If so, get the cash you need from Commonwealth. By repaying in monthly instalments tailored to your individual needs, you are relieved of the burden and inconvenience caused by large lump sum payments, like taxes. The cost is based on a monthly rate of 3% on balances of $150 or less and 2½% on that part of the unpaid balance over $150, and is, as illustrated above, quite moderate for short-term loans. Get any amount from $10 to $300.

FREE INCOME TAX BOOKLET: Written especially for the taxpayer in the low and medium income brackets, this pamphlet suggests numerous ways to reduce your taxes. It may save you money. For your copy call in person at any Commonwealth office.
